Robinson Gets Free Hand on Any Court Bill

Is Named to Negotiate Compromise; Hatch Plan Studied.

Sutherland Says He Won't Retire

Justices' Delay on New Deal Cases Assailed by Roosevelt.

By Robert C. Albright.

Senate Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson has been given carte blanche permission by the President to negotiate the most satisfactory compromise possible on the Administration's court plan, and attempt to marshal it through the Senate this session.

This was learned on reliable authority last night, as preliminary overtures opened on the compromise proposal of Senator Carl A. Hatch (Democrat), of New Mexico, providing one addition to the court every year for each judge on the bench over 70.

A forthright statement by Justice George Sutherland that he has no intention of retiring, meanwhile, left the President with only one vacancy to fill before the court convenes in October. Sutherland said none of his associates, to his knowledge, plans to retire this summer.

Roosevelt Assails Court.

These developments came on the heels of another attack on the court by the President. He criticized the court for taking a four-month vacation, with four Government cases still pending, and asserted his court reform program will pass Congress this session.

The President parried court compromise questions. He said the country sees the whole court reform program as a forest, while Washington frequently sees only the trees. Asked about a possible two-judge compromise, he said that was a question of trees, and he was talking about the forest.

Some observers interpreted the metaphor as meaning the President primarily wants court reform, and some compromise might prove acceptable.

Senator Robinson's call at the White House Thursday night followed decision of the court plan opponents to force the program to an issue this session, confident they had the votes to defeat it.

President Denies Change.

Senator Edward R. Burke (Democrat), of Nebraska, leader of the opposition, said this decision was reached after published reports the Administration would let the court fight go over until next session. He said he still believed this was what the Administration intended to do.

But the President at his press conference yesterday characterized as silly all stories the Administration would abandon its court fight. He said the Administration is seeking not only Supreme Court reform this session, but reform all the way down the line to the district courts.

Senator Robinson yesterday carefully refrained from additional comment. But he conferred with a number of Senators, and Senator Hatch is known to be among those receiving a call.

Although Hatch recently has been active with court plan opponents, the substitute plan he proposed before opposition lines solidified is expected to be the first basis of Administration compromise negotiations.

Must Be Sure of Passage.

If it is finally selected as the Administration's basis of settlement, it will be only after votes have been carefully canvassed and it is definitely determined that it can be passed.

If it passes this test, this or any other compromise proposal is virtually certain to head into an opposition filibuster. Senator Burke admitted last night opposition Senators will permit no bill to come to a vote unless they are assured of sufficient votes to defeat it.

The Hatch plan retains the Administration retirement age of 70, and would permit the President to make one addition to the court every year for every judge on the bench over that age. As retirements developed, the court ultimately would return to nine members. The prin-

Burglar Scared Off By Roosevelt's Son

Cambridge, Mass., June 4 (AP).—Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., son of the President, routed a robber from his Harvard College house early today and led fellow students in a short and unsuccessful pursuit of the invader.

Studying in his second-floor room, the President's son heard a noise, shouted an alarm and saw the robber flee through a window.

Awakened by the shout, other students in the house joined in a fruitless chase.

Dr. Townsend's Followers Split On Court Issue

Staff Seizes Leader's Paper; Congressional Ranks Divided.

Chicago, June 4 (U.P.).—J. W. Brinton, general manager of the Chicago Townsend Club, announced tonight he and ten other Chicago workers have resigned from the organization. These resignations, with those of the Washington Bureau, will be announced tomorrow, Brinton said.

Dr. Francis E. Townsend's opposition to President Roosevelt's court plan has split his followers on Capitol Hill, many of whom are New Dealers as well as Townsendites, and has resulted in the staff of the Townsend National Weekly seizing that paper.

This was learned last night, a day following a stormy meeting here of members of the Congressional Townsend bloc, when Dr. Townsend defended his opposition to the court bill and then left for Chicago in an attempt to deal with the recalcitrant staff members.

Led by J. W. Brinton, editor of the weekly, the staff has attacked Dr. Townsend in the columns of his own publication and informed him the paper will be suspended forthwith. Dr. Townsend is the owner of the three-year-old publication.

The blow-up followed a seven weeks' tour of the West by Dr. Townsend in which he championed the Supreme Court against the President's plan in 56 towns and cities

Although he reported his audiences everywhere were enthusiastic he came back to face a meeting last night of congressional Townsendites, a majority of whose members demanded that he stop attacking the court plan.

"It is more important to protect the Constitution of the United States and defend our democratic

Victim of Lynching Innocent, Jury Told

Montgomery, Ala., June 4 (AP).—A jury hearing the impeachment trial of Sheriff J. L. Corbitt, charged with failing to protect a colored man from a mob, was told today the mob "lynched the wrong man."

Wesley Johnson, colored, accused of attacking a white woman, was taken from the Henry County jail February 1, hanged to a tree and shot.

Attorney General A. A. Carmichael told the court "we will be able to prove, beyond all reasonable doubt, that the popular indignation was so great that the Sheriff was forced to arrest the wrong man."

Chief Justice John C. Anderson ruled, however, the evidence was not competent, and added "the sheriff is just as responsible to protect an innocent man as he is a guilty one."

Driver, 6 Passengers Killed In Flaming Bus in California

By the Associated Press.

Redding, Calif., June 4.—The bodies of seven men who burned to death in a bus which cracked up unaccountably and instantly became a funeral pyre, were recovered late today.

Coroner Roy S. Duggins said spectators' reports nine persons, including a woman and small child, had lost their lives proved incorrect.

The victims were burned beyond recognition, but company officials said they had identified one as Timothy Neville, of Redding, and that the driver, Mortimer A. Wilson, 37, was among them. A billfold bearing the name of Fred C. Farrer, Santa Ana, Calif., was found in the wreckage.

Spectators reached the scene only to find a glowing hot pile of wreckage which had lighted the sky and attracted their attention in the early morning darkness.

Boys from a nearby CCC camp threw water on the flames with little effect. They heard the screams of the trapped victims but could do nothing.

A vacationing Los Angeles policeman, F. J. Speck, said he reached

A. F. L.'s Aid To Wage Bill Is Qualified

Must Help Bargaining, Green Asserts; Lists 6 Amendments.

Agrees With Stand of Miss Perkins Against Exemptions.

By Sidney Olson.

The American Federation of Labor yesterday announced its support of the Black-Connery wage-hour bill, but President William Green, testifying before the joint Senate-House Labor Committee, hedged that support with six amendments to insure Government withdrawal from the labor field as collective bargaining enters.

Green in the course of a lengthy statement expressed fears the act might operate to stifle collective bargaining. The six amendments, he said, were "to make certain that the provisions of the act shall operate in fact and in practice to encourage and not to supplant collective bargaining."

Green, however, agreed with Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, an earlier witness yesterday, that no exemption of small industries should be granted whatsoever, but that the act should apply invariably in all cases.

Opposes Pay Maximum.

The six amendments, briefed, state:

The act must encourage collective bargaining.

Wages and hours regulations must not represent maximum wages and maximum hours in any craft, and must not operate to "preclude, prevent or discourage" collective bargaining that seeks higher wages or shorter hours than those prescribed by regulations.

Prevailing maximum hours and minimum wages in any industry or craft shall be used by the Fair Labor Standards Board, to be set up, as the standards unless provable objection can be raised.

In determining minimum wages and maximum hours, the collective bargaining standards already in force in any industry shall prima facie be considered the proper standards unless such are below those of competitors in a corresponding class.

Must Deal by Crafts.

The board must deal with each craft separately in any industry before ruling on standards in that industry

Where board rulings on maximum hours and minimum wages are different from the standards fixed by collective bargaining, the latter shall prevail, and the former shall only operate sufficient to make the latter effective.

Green supported the sections on child labor and the outlawing of industrial espionage and strikebreaking without qualification.

His support of the principle of Government regulation of maximum hours was based on his view that this was an expedient that would assist industry to attain economic stability.

In making recommendations for the "floors" to be set by the bill, he recommended the 40-hour basic work week, with the board authorized to reduce such a standard

Burning Vessel With T.N.T. Denied Entry to Canal

Cristobal, Canal Zone, June 4 (AP).—The port authority refused transit today through the Panama Canal for the United States Army transport Ludington, still at sea with a burning hatch, carrying 690 tons of T. N. T. and hand grenades, and due here at 3 a. m. tomorrow.

Cristobal fire tugs, chemists, firemen and doctors were assembling to meet the transport at the explosive anchorage in Limon Bay when she arrives.

Civilians were forbidden to approach the scene, and plans were made to open the hatch and battle the fire before the Ludington continues her voyage to California. She is carrying a naval cargo, consigned to Coco Solo, naval aviation base on the Pacific side of the canal.

Labor 'Dictates' Mail Delivery, Republic Steel Informs Farley

Charges Postal Officials Agreed With Union to Reject Parcels.

The Strike Front.

The Republic Steel Corporation wired Postmaster General Farley a protest against alleged interference of strikers with mail deliveries.

The Senate Civil Liberties Committee summoned two Ford Motor Co. employes to a hearing here July 1 on the beating of union handbill distributors May 26.

A Newberry, Mich., sheriff asked Gov. Murphy to send National Guardsmen to that town after riots which left one dead and several injured.

At Columbus, Ohio, a conference of Gov. Davey with union leaders broke up without a statement as to what progress had been made toward settlement of the steel strike.

Labor leaders in the strike at the Republic Steel Corporation's plant at Warren, Ohio, dictate to postal officials what mail shall be delivered to employes in the plant, it was charged here yesterday in a statement distributed by Harry B. Hunt, representing the corporation locally.

The statement, made by a Warren attorney, Lewis L. Guarnieri, was given out here after the steel corporation earlier in the day, according to Hunt, had wired similar charges to Postmaster General James A. Farley, together with a formal protest.

Guarnieri in his statement charged Walter Zeigler, parcel post clerk in the Warren postoffice, refused to accept four packages containing foodstuffs which Guarnieri desired to mail to Frank E. Flynn in the Republic plant.

With three companions, Guarnieri then went to nearby Niles, he said, where he talked to Bert Flaherty, assistant postmaster, in the absence of the postmaster.

His statement went on:

"Flaherty then came into the lobby to inspect the packages. I then told him that I desired to have the packages sent to Sam Brown at the Niles plant of the Republic Steel Corporation, and wanted the packages sent registered mail, with return receipt attached. Flaherty said that he was very sorry but that they

Drink Problem Grows Worse, W. C. T. U. Told

National Vice President Sees Issue as Challenge.

The liquor situation in America has grown steadily worse since repeal and today is a complete and unqualified challenge to all patriotic and humanitarian forces of the country, Mrs. D. Leigh Colvin, national vice president of the W. C. T. U., declared yesterday.

Speaking before delegates to the sixteenth triennial convention of the World's Woman's Christian Temperance Union in Constitution Hall, Mrs. Colvin said that 827,000,000 gallons of liquor are now stored in the United States "for future use."

"Each year distillers are making four times as much liquor as the people are drinking, although drinking is increasing each month. The Government has limited the production of corn, wheat, cotton and hogs, but no limitation has been placed on the manufacture of intoxicating liquors."

Before prohibition. Mrs. Colvin asserted, the annual American drink bill was $2,400,000,000. Now she estimates it at $3,500,000,000.

She presented the findings of a recent survey to show that approximately three times as many women are employed as "barmaids, hostesses, etc., enticing people to drink" as were registered in all American colleges in 1935.

"Investment of $2,500,000 of the taxpayers' money in rum distilling in the United States," Mrs. Colvin declared, "puts the Federal Government for the first time in our history into the business of manufacturing liquor."

To combat the spreading "alcoholic evil" in the United States, W. C. T. U. members are working to raise a $1,000,000 temperance education fund, to be realized before they meet for the celebration

House Places Restrictions on Tax Publicity

Compromise Reached on Measure to Plug Loopholes.

A compromise on publicity and other controversial features of the Senate's tax-dodging investigation resolution was reached yesterday at an all-day conference of House Ways and Means and Rules Committee leaders.

Differences which for three days have held up House action on the proposed tax inquiry are understood to have been completely composed and will be submitted to the Rules Committee for formal action on Monday.

Under the projected compromise, tax returns of individuals investigated could be made public only on direction of the proposed joint committee, which would take full responsibility.

The joint committee could not authorize Treasury officials to hold hearings in the name of the committee, but could designate an "agent" to make necessary investigations.

The Rules Committee had stricken out of the bill publicity provisions and power for Treasury employes to hold hearings, after Chairman John J. O'Connor had called it an unusual delegation of a power that Congress alone should exercise.

Coincident with the agreement, Chairman Robert L. Doughton of the Ways and Means Committee reported to the House the Administration bill to extend for two years so-called "nuisance taxes," estimated to yield $353,920,000 for the present fiscal year and $390,000,000 in the year beginning July 1.

Virtually all of the levies are hotly controversial, particularly the 3-cent postage on nonlocal mail and Federal gasoline tax provisions. Recognition of the opposition was given

Mutiny Splits Rebels After Mola's Death

Basques Open Drive as Rival Blocs Quarrel; Madrid Shelled.

Franco Weeps for Aide; Bomb Wrecked Plane, Belief in Bilbao.

Bulletin.

By the United Press.

Paris (Saturday), June 5.—A radio station in Bilbao, besieged Basque capital, said today reports were circulating that the airplane crash in which Rebel General Emilio Mola was killed Thursday was caused by explosion of a time bomb aboard the plane.

The death of Rebel General Jose Sanjurjo, early in the war, was similarly caused, it was hinted.

By the United Press.

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, June 4.—Open mutiny, unleashed by the death of Gen. Emilio Mola in an airplane crash, tonight threatened to split the Spanish rebel armies driving upon the Basque capital of Bilbao.

Frontier reports told of quarrels between Carlist Royalists and Spanish Fascists and between Mola's officers and the German and Italian "volunteers" who have joined their ranks.

The death of Mola, who was Gen. Franco's right-hand man of the revolution, removed the iron-fisted restraint that has kept down quarrels since the Bilbao offensive was launched two months ago, it was reported.

The besieged Basques on the Bilbao front, jubilant over the death of the man they held responsible for the destruction of their "Holy City" of Guernica and the "starvation siege" of Bilbao, opened a violent offensive along the entire front.

Madrid Shelled.

The rebels, proclaiming a state of mourning throughout insurgent Spain for the 50-year-old general, replied to the Basque offensive with a bombardment of Madrid.

Shells crashed into avenues around the Gran Via—Madrid's "Broadway"—at the rate of one a minute, killing 20 persons and wounding 60.

The crash of shells, fired from Gen. Franco's big siege guns in the Guadarrama Mountains, brought the capital's death toll during the last 12 hours to 33 persons.

Several buildings in the center of Madrid were on fire tonight.

Bethlehem, June 4 (U.P.).—Arab Catholics, gathering today in the Church of the Nativity to celebrate the festival of "Jesus' Heart," appealed to Premier Mussolini of Italy to "save us from British imperialism." Mussolini, they said, was "the second Jesus' Heart."

Franco Honors Gen. Mola.

Burgos, Spain, June 4 (AP).—Gen. Emilio Mola's commander in chief, Gen. Franco, his soldiers and the officers of his staff gave a military farewell today to the dead chieftain of the northern Spanish insurgent armies.

Gen. Franco, his face drawn and tears in his eyes, stood at salute with his staff as the bodies were transferred to the caissons.

The general led the march through the narrow winding streets of this ancient capital with its squat, stone houses and red-tiled roofs as muted bands played "Sueno Eterno"—eternal sleep.

The medieval music of fife and drum sounded the royal march of Castile, not heard in these streets since the fall of the monarchy.

The procession halted outside a small church opposite the Plaza de Toros Building. Suddenly the band

'Mystery Man' Reveals Keene Aloof on Boat

JAMES H. STARKEY.

Starkey, Old Friend, Tells of Odd Actions on Steamer.

Broker's Manner 'Cool,' He Relates

U. S. Aide Identified as 'Red-Faced' Figure; on RA Business.

The "red-faced man" in the Charles F. Keene mystery—the man who bought Keene a glass of beer on the Norfolk night boat on May 13—came to the forefront late yesterday, and the result was another amazing chapter in the bewildering case.

The man turned out to be James H. Starkey, 53, a civil engineer with the Resettlement Administration, living at 11 East Irving street, Chevy Chase, Md.—a close friend of Keene for 26 years.

Starkey told police he was on his way to Old Point Comfort when he encountered Keene on the boat, and that Keene's manner puzzled him because he wasn't as "cordial" as he usually was. He also described Keene as "reticent and preoccupied."

One of Best Friends.

To reporters, Starkey said:

"I had known Charles Keene for 26 or 27 years. If I knew that my head was going to be cut off, he would have been the friend I would have called to save my neck.

"But that night on the boat, he treated me as if—well, as if I were a bill collector who had been dunning him every day for a month."

Starkey, traveling on Government business, said he debarked at Old Point Comfort and did not learn until the next night that Keene was missing from a blood-spattered stateroom when the boat reached Norfolk. On Memorial Day Keene's body was found floating in Chesapeake Bay, a weighted briefcase around his neck. An autopsy showed that a bullet had entered his neck and plowed through his brain.

Discussed Case With Son.

Starkey said that a week after the tragedy he went to the Union Trust Building, where Keene had shared office space with Charles Osborne. He said he talked to Osborne and Lieut. Charles F. Keene, jr., son of the dead man, telling them about what happened on the boat.

"After talking the thing over," he said in his statement to police, "and although we didn't put it into words, I believe that it was in all our minds that Mr. Keene, sr., had committed suicide.

"I told Mr. Keene, jr., that I had placed my information in his hands and for him to do as he saw fit. He then said he didn't want his mother to know any more about it than she had to, and that as there was going to be another meeting in about two weeks, we had better wait and see what happened."

Told Story to Police.

"I told him that I didn't like to have my name brought into the affair if it could be avoided."

Starkey told his story to four detectives, Sergts. Jeremiah Flaherty and Charles Carver, of the local Homicide Squad, and Marlin Brubaker and J. J. Cassidy, of the Maryland State Police.

Flaherty asked Starkey:

"Had Mr. Keene borrowed any money from you?"

"Well, he had borrowed small amounts from me at various times, totaling about $25."

"After you arrived back in Washington on May 20, you state that you told Mr Osborne and Mr. Keene's son about being on the boat with Mr. Keene. Why did you not report this to the police?

Suicide Strengthened.

"Well, I suppose the real reason behind my action in not doing so was shock at what happened to my friend, and from uncertainty as to just what to do under the circumstances."

Starkey arrived at police headquarters with the four detectives shortly after 4 p. m. He remained until 8:30 p. m. He was booked for "investigation," but Detective Flaherty shook hands with him and thanked him for his help.

Osborne took part in the conference at headquarters. He afterward told reporters that Starkey's story had strengthened the suicide theory.

Sergt. Brubaker, returning to Baltimore, said he would make a report on the Keene case next week

Wallis Carried Over Threshold Of Her Castle

Edward Doesn't Stumble; Crowds Hail 'the King' at Milan, Venice.

By the Associated Press.

Noetsch, Austria (Saturday), June 5.—The Duke of Windsor followed the custom of bridegrooms the world over early today when he carried his bride over the threshold of their new home, fairylike Castle Wasserleonburg.

The honeymoon express train with the special car, which the couple had boarded at a small French station early Friday, rolled into Arnoldstein at 11:48 p. m. (5:48 p. m., E. S. T.)

They entered a motor car immediately and sped to the old castle in which they plan to spend the first three months of married life.

The duke carried his bride into the castle without stumbling, which according to tradition means their days here will be happy.

They reached their temporary home just 10 minutes after midnight, as a bright moon threw the giant surrounding peaks into sharp relief and silvered the walls of the castle.

Pausing in the forecourt of the chateau, the duke paused, picked his bride up in his arms, carried her a few steps across the threshold and disappeared inside.

The duchess laughed merrily at the man who gave up a mighty throne to become her husband.

The castle was lighted brightly for their arrival. At the entry were gathered members of the household staff, who bowed low in greeting. The couple acknowledged the greetings cordially.

Extraordinary precautions were taken to insure safety and privacy for the newlyweds. A truckload of

'Jekyll-Hyde' Case Is Solved By Methods of Psychoanalyst

By the Associated Press.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 4.—A psychological treatment for some strange "Dr. Jekyll-Mr. Hyde" personalities who try to be two persons instead of one was reported today before the American Neurological Association.

Dr. C. P. Oberndorf, of New York City, declared that he had been able to return to normal a 40-year-old lawyer who had been suffering from such a mental maladjustment since childhood and had succeeded in directing the energy formerly expended by the individual on two lines of thought into a single direct pathway.

To such persons the world about them never seems real, he said. They often carry on two separate thinking processes at the same time, and their minds never relax for an instant. In the individual treated the common emotions "of joy, pleasure, rage or disgust had never been felt," the New York physician declared, and his "co-consciousness" made him feel that he was not himself.

In this case and in many others the dual nature of the individual is

Sen. Bankhead To Push Action On Tenant Aid

Committee to Hear Farm Officials Monday on New Measures.

By Russell Smith

The stop-start progress of Administration farm legislation jerked forward another hitch yesterday.

Farm tenant assistance was advanced when Mr. Roosevelt conferred with Senator John Bankhead (Democrat), of Alabama, and Bankhead prepared to move his bill out of the Senate Agriculture Committee if the committee can be persuaded to act.

The committee itself meanwhile was agreeing to hear commissioners of agriculture from 13 Southern States Monday on farm legislation generally, including tenantry as a major phase. The corresponding House committee will hear these commissioners, or their representatives, the following day.

Market Bill Potent.

Another major Administration measure, just enacted into law, the bill authorizing negotiation of marketing agreements, will play a far more important part in future agricultural control by the Government than had been expected, it was revealed during the day in a statement by Director F. R. Wilcox, of the department's marketing agreements division.

A department press release cited the following regulations which are contemplated under the newly enacted agreements:

"(1) Controlling the rate of shipments from the shipping area to out-of-State markets by limiting the total volume permitted to be shipped during a specified shipping period; (2) prohibiting the shipments into interstate commerce of undesirable grades and sizes of the commodity handled, and (3) in cases ofunusual surpluses limiting the total quantity of the commodity shipped into interstate commerce, and, in some cases, providing for diversion of the surplus into other market outlets."

Land-Buying Program.

Following the White House conference, Bankhead disclosed President Roosevelt hopes for passage of legislation at this session which will authorize expenditure of $10,000,000 this year for a land-buying program, the land to be resold to tenants, $25,000,000 next year and $50,000,000 the following year.

The House Agriculture Committee has consistently opposed Federal land purchases and favored long-time low interest loans to tenants. Its bill has been tied up in the House Rules Committee for weeks awaiting Administration indication of the bill's place in the budgetary scheme.

Atom-'Smasher,' Tower 50 Ft. High, Planned in D. C.

A steel observatory, 50 feet high, in which atoms will be "smashed" is soon to be built at the Terrestrial Magnetism Laboratory of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, on Broad Branch road, according to plans filed yesterday in the District Building.

In the observatory investigations will be led by Dr. M. A. Tuve on a newly discovered force—36,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 times more powerful than gravity—which holds together the nuclei of atoms.

Within the observatory, to be built in the shape of a pear, will be an electrical apparatus with a propelling force of 5,000,000 volts which will shoot protons, neutrons and deutrons through a vacuum. When being used, the pressure inside the observatory will be 50 pounds to each square inch.

The main task to be done in the observatory consists in ascertaining the precise nature of "supergravity," the discovery of which was first announced last fall by Dr. Tuve and his associates.

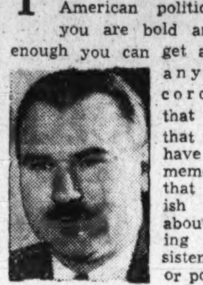
'Most Widely Traveled President' Applies Old Axiom in Assailing Court's Vacation.

By Franklyn Waltman



WALTMAN.

THERE is an ancient axiom in American politics that if you are bold and brazen enough you can get away with anything. A corollary of that axiom is that the people have a short memory and that it is foolish to worry about appearing in inconsistent attitudes or poses.

Consequently it is not surprising that President Roosevelt, one of the most successful political practitioners the country has ever known, should proceed along the lines indicated by this axiom and its corollary, especially at this particular time when Mr. Roosevelt is earnestly engaged in seeking to strike a popular note in the face of his disastrous Supreme Court reorganization adventure. Within the last week Mr. Roosevelt has given two splendid illustrations of the application of this political axiom.

What could be bolder or more brazen than the simulated indignation expressed by the President yesterday over the fact that the Supreme Court has adjourned for a four months' vacation? Let it be assumed for the sake of discussion that the Supreme Court has no right to a four months' vacation and let it be conceded for the moment—which is not true—that by taking a vacation the Supreme Court is seriously holding up the business of the Federal Government.

But even in the face of these assumptions, such criticism of the Court comes in poor grace from Mr. Roosevelt. We have never had a President so fond of taking vacations as Mr. Roosevelt and already he has won his place in history as the "most-widely traveled of Presidents."

The New York Times last November 15 reported that since he entered the White House Mr. Roosevelt had traveled 82,910 miles by railroad, with a total of 33,205 miles in 1936 alone. This was exclusive of five sea cruises, taken solely for pleasure, two long ocean voyages and many thousands of miles by automobile. Since that tabulation was made, the President has added many thousands of miles to his railroad travel record, made a 13,000-mile ocean voyage and another sea cruise to fish.

Indeed, there have been periods when Mr. Roosevelt has been so seldom in the White House that some of the newspaper correspondents assigned to him commenced referring to Washington as "a whistle stop."

During the last year the President's absences from the White House have totaled more than four months, even if his political trips during last October are omitted entirely. In June, 1936, we find Mr. Roosevelt was away on trips to Texas and Arkansas, Hyde Park, Philadelphia and on the Potomac River for virtually one-half the month. Mr. Roosevelt spent all but a few days of last July on trips to Virginia and cruising up the Atlantic Coast and at Hyde Park and his Campobello camp.

More than one-half of August was spent at Hyde Park, with a few more days devoted to a trip into the Northwest which extended through the first five days of September. Then there was another four-day trip into the South and another week at Hyde Park. We omit all reference to October, during which the President made his political campaign. The first week in November was spent at Hyde Park and on November 17 Mr. Roosevelt left for Buenos Aires not to return until December 16.

In January and February Mr. Roosevelt stuck close to the White House, but March 12 found him entraining for Warm Springs, Ga., to spend two weeks at that resort. Within a month after that vacation, on April 28, the President left for a fishing cruise in the Gulf of Mexico and again was away for more than two weeks. As the year ended the President was on a three-day visit to Hyde Park.

No objection is raised here as to the right or propriety of these Presidential trips and vacations. There is no doubt that Mr. Roosevelt is one of the hardest working men in the country and is subjected to a strain greater than any other American. Let it also be said that Mr. Roosevelt frequently works while traveling and thus is not exclusively idling.

But it also should be pointed out that, as evidenced by his two extended trips this year, he has left Washington when matters of unusual importance were pending and when his continued presence here would have prevented delay in reaching solutions. That is said without any reflection on the President, for it is undoubtedly true that if he waited until his desk were clear to take a vacation he would never leave the White House.

Yet apparently Mr. Roosevelt is not inclined to make the concessions to the Supreme Court which his friends claim for him. The members of that tribunal also work hard for eight months of the year. Their task is especially difficult and fatiguing because of its sedentary nature. Moreover, living cloistered lives for eight months of the year—it is essential that these men have freedom to re-establish their touch with the country and the people—certainly an undertaking which Mr. Roosevelt would not deprecate.

And the members of the Supreme Court work, too, on their vacations. Shortly after the court adjourns its clerks commence mailing to each justice, wherever he is, copies of all petitions and other papers filed. Thus during the summer recess approximately 300 petitions for writs of certiorari and about 40 appeals are sent to the justices. These they examine and study during the recess in order that they may be prepared to give prompt decisions on their return in October.

As for the work left undone by the court when it adjourned, the only matter of any importance is a series of cases forming one suit challenging the authority of the PWA to make loans to municipalities for the establishment of publicly-owned power systems. The court, on the day of its adjournment, announced its decision to hear these cases. Had it not adjourned, arguments could not have taken place until around July 1, since counsel would require that much time to prepare under the prevailing rules. A decision would not have been possible before August.

Altogether a final determination of the issue in these cases will be delayed about two and one-half months because of the court's summer recess. The other cases cited by the President were remanded to lower courts for further action and would not be reached until next fall anyway.

The second illustration of the last week of how bold Mr. Roosevelt can be was his contention that it was immoral for taxpayers to avoid income taxes. He made no distinction between tax evasion—which is an illegal escape from taxation, and tax avoidance, which is arranging one's affairs so as to escape legally from taxes which otherwise would be effective. Mr. Roosevelt maintains it is immoral for anyone to seek to avoid the intention of Congress, which in tax legislation, is that those with the ability should pay.

This talk of immorality sounds strange, indeed, coming from the chieftain of an Administration which in June summarily abrogated the gold clause in the bonds which it sold to its citizens in March; an Administration which takes steps to prevent taxpayers from recovering processing taxes illegally levied against them and which heavily taxes for unjust enrichment those processors who had sense enough not to pay the illegal taxes and an Administration which seeks to pack the Supreme Court to influence its decisions.

But perhaps Mr. Roosevelt has never heard of the proverb which says that "those who live in glass houses should not throw stones."

New Haven, Conn., June 4 (AP).—The Yale School of Music announced tonight that John Barrows, of San Diego, Calif., a student, has discovered an entirely new sound which may be produced on the French horn.

Drought Zone Assured Share Of Relief Fund

President Tells 'Dust Bowl' Senators Area Will Be Treated Fairly.

By the Associated Press.

Senators from the "dust bowl" and other regions said yesterday they had assurance from President Roosevelt that a fair share of the pending $1,500,000,000 relief appropriation would be available for present farm relief needs and any emergency that may develop.

During the day a group from eight States discussed Federal relief needs with Mr. Roosevelt, Secretary Wallace and W. W. Alexander, Resettlement administrator.

Senator McGill (Democrat), Kansas, leader of the group, said the main purpose for the White House call "was to get the picture of actual conditions in the minds of the men who will be administering relief."

McGill reported some farmers in the drought areas are facing "their fifth consecutive year without cash crops and are in worse shape than ever before."

"The sentiment seemed to be that Congress probably will be in session until late in the summer," Senator Nye (Republican), North Dakota, said. "If drought conditions become more serious or more funds needed, then Congress will have to appropriate more relief money before it goes home."

Nye added the Senators from the Dakotas, Montana, Nebraska, Colorado, Kansas, Oklahoma and New Mexico told the President they were "alarmed that sufficient Federal funds may not be available."

Officials at the Works Progress Administration said they already have outlined emergency relief projects that could be utilized if this summer brings a recurrence of widespread drought. They explained the projects include public works, dams and other activities proved worthwhile in the droughts of last year and 1934.

Weather Bureau officials commented that rains in the past ten days had greatly alleviated threats of widespread drought in an area extending from the Canadian border southward to Texas, except in Montana and western parts of the Dakotas.

Reich Maneuvers Fleet at Helgoland

Aboard the Steamer Roland off Helgoland, June 3 (AP).—The German navy today held its first maneuvers off Helgoland since this little island was refortified in defiance of the Versailles treaty.

Only a skeleton fleet participated; because so many of the Reich's men of war have been sent to Spanish waters.

Of Germany's three pocket battleships, not one appeared. Of her six cruisers, only the Nuernberg and the Karlsruhe participated. Only 12 of her 36 new submarines were here.

Terrorists Feared In New Paris Blasts

Paris, June 4 (AP).—Bombs exploded at three district postoffices today, sending police back on the old trail of the mad "Three Judges of Hell," who terrorized Paris in 1934 with a dozen explosive packages mailed at random.

They never were caught.

Today's blasts wounded two postal clerks slightly. One of the packages was traced to a "tall dark young man" who was seen to drop it in a postoffice slot.

Dunne Leaves $51,451.

New York, June 4 (AP).—Finley Peter Dunne, creator of "Mr. Dooley," a popular character of fiction whose comments on world affairs paced much of the wit of the Spanish-American War era, left a gross estate of $51,451 when he died last April, a transfer tax appraisal disclosed today.

Study Ordered On Vanderbilt, Mellon Rails

Senate to Investigate N. Y. Central, New Haven, Virginian.

By the Associated Press.

Railroad interests of Andrew Mellon, former Secretary of the Treasury, and the Vanderbilt family, long prominent in New York social and financial circles, became the subject of a Senate investigation yesterday.

In an unexpected secret session, the Railway Finance Committee voted to investigate the recent financial history of three railroads—the New York Central, the New York, New Haven & Hartford, and the Virginian.

Committee members said privately it is "quite possible" they will summon Mellon and some members of the Vanderbilt family to testify.

They asserted a Mellon-controlled holding company took over the Virginian Railway last December, and that the Vanderbilt interests have dominated the New York Central for many years, although their investment was less than 5 per cent of the line's total value.

Partners of J. P. Morgan & Co. may be called to describe the banking relationship between their firm and the New Haven, a carrier which has been investigated repeatedly in the last two decades.

Until yesterday the committee had limited its inquiry to 25 roads selected by the Interstate Commerce Commission. For nearly six months it has been tracing the financial history of the Van Sweringen system, the largest and most complex railway holding company setup in America.

The Senate recently voted an additional $150,000 to finance the committee's investigations.

Police Find Purse Of Slain Recluse

Farmville, Va., June 4 (AP).—Sheriff John A. Clark, of Prince Edward County, expressed the belief today the slaying of 83-year-old Francis J. Martin, farmer-recluse, was a "local" crime, as investigators found the aged man's purse containing $169.35 in an old bureau.

Finding of the purse and money, mostly in small bills, tended to throw doubt on previous theories Martin was killed in a robbery and left lying at his dining table, where the body was found Wednesday.

Martin lived alone on the 300-acre estate, once the property of Patrick Henry and Col. and Mrs. John Fontaine, son-in-law and daughter of the famous orator.

Boredom Kills People, First Lady Tells Girls

New York, June 4 (AP).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt told 12 girl graduates of the Todhunter School, of which she is a sponsor, today that "most people die of boredom," and suggested a formula to avoid ennui.

"I wish for you today," she said, "the ability to be curious and the unselfishness to think of others, which will in the end bring greater interest to your own lives. I wish for you always the ability to feel the flow of new ideas, so that you will never be old, never bored."

Prospector Cuts Cards To Spade Ace, Ends Life

San Francisco, June 4 (AP).—On the hotel room table the cards were cut to the ace of spades—the "death card."

On the floor sprawled the body of J. J. Munsey, silvery-haired Indian fighter and miner, who devoted most of his hardy 82 years to searching for gold, finding some—and spending it.

Police Inspector Alvin Torassa said Munsey had killed himself when he fell behind in his hotel bill.

Then the bodies were removed to motor hearses and ambulances to be driven to Pamplona for burial.

Spaniards wept openly at the loss of the man known as Franco's right arm, whose forces had swept to the north gates of Bilbao.

The weather was sunny in contrast to yesterday's fog, in which Mola's bi-motored plane became lost and crashed into a mountainside.

A squadron of fighting planes droned overhead during the ceremonial today, dipping in salute to the dead warrior.

Reds Seek Socialist Aid.

Moscow, June 4 (AP).—The Communist International today asked its long-standing enemy, the Socialist International, to forget differences for the moment and join in united action "against German and Italian intervention in Spain."

Georgi Dimitroff, secretary-general of the Comintern, in announcing the proposal, said it was the direct result of the German warships' bombardment of the Spanish port of Almeria Monday.

He invited the International Federation of Trades Unions also to participate in formation of a joint commission to work out aid for the Spanish government.

France Seeks Larger Patrol.

Paris, June 4 (AP).—France will ask the international "hands off Spain" committee to enlarge the naval patrol around Spain to include ships of all naval nations represented on the committee, foreign office informants said tonight.

The declaration came after consideration of British proposals designed to bring Germany and Italy back into the non-intervention committee. France, foreign office sources said, will accept all points in the British note, including establishment of guaranteed safety zones off Spain. But she insists, they said, the patrol fleet should not be composed exclusively of German, Italian, British and French ships, lest Russia be "frozen out" of Spanish affairs.

Daingerfield Assets in D. C. Ordered Freed

Court Rules Safety Deposit Box Should Be Turned Over to Committee.

Contents of a safety-deposit box maintained in the American Security & Trust Co. here by the socially prominent Mary H. Daingerfield, of Alexandria, Va., were ordered turned over to her committee yesterday when Justice James M. Proctor overrode objections of the trust company and held that Albert V. Bryan, appointed by the Virginia courts to represent Miss Daingerfield, was sufficiently qualified to take over her local assets.

The box, according to varying estimates, contained about $245,000 in securities. That was in addition to the vast estate held by Miss Daingerfield in Virginia.

After listening to arguments yesterday, Justice Proctor directed Thomas F. Burke, attorney for the trust company, to permit Bryan to open the box. He issued his decree after he had been informed there was an attachment on the box, issued at the request of Attorney Edward O'Connell, who, on behalf of the O'Day Investigation Bureau, had attached the box in a "prior-to-judgment" action filed in Municipal Court.

O'Connell claimed the firm had a bill of $900 overdue, and he issued the attachment.

Government Rum Making Drunks of Islanders, Charge

By the Associated Press.

Questions whether the Government is putting the natives of the Virgin Islands "on their feet" or "under the table" bobbed up in Congress yesterday.

When the record of a recent hearing on PWA's funds for next year was made public, itshowed members of the House Appropriations Committee asked pointed questions about rum. The Government has rehabilitated a rum distillery on the islands as a means of providing relief for the natives and an outlet for sugar cane.

"Somehow," remarked Representative Ludlow (Democrat), Indiana, "it grates on my nerves to have the United States in the rum business."

E. H. Burlew, PWA administrative assistant, replied:

"You can see what it is doing for the natives down there. It is putting them on their feet economically."

"Is it putting them on their feet or under the table?" Ludlow asked.

"I imagine they are too poor to drink rum," Burlew answered.

Reich Beheads U. S. Youth for Streicher Plot

Evidence Still Secret as Guillotine Claims Helmuth Hirsch.

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, June 4.—Germany's guillotine today chopped off the head of Helmuth Hirsch, Jewish lad charged with treason and for whom American diplomats vainly sought clemency because of his United States citizenship.

Hirsch was born in Germany and never lived in America, but he inherited citizenship from his Czechoslovakian grandfather.

Reliable sources said today the 21-year-old Hirsch specifically was charged with plotting to assassinate Julius Streicher, anti-Semitic leader and lieutenant to Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler. He was tried secretly and details of evidence were withheld.

Previously there had been reports that Hirsch was alleged to have drafted a plan to kill Hitler.

Diplomatic circles generally were agreed tonight that Chancellor Hitler signed the death warrant despite American representations as another indication he is determined to let the world know that anybody who offends Germany must expect unrelenting reprisal.

They saw in the execution a parallel to German bombardment of Spanish Almeria to avenge Spanish bombardment of the Nazi battleship Deutschland, and to apparent steps toward severing relations with the Catholic Vatican because of American Cardinal Mundelein's criticism of the Nazi regime.

Some thought that clemency was refused for Hirsch because authorities believed he acted at the bidding of Otto Strasser, anti-Nazi leader now exiled to Praha, Czechoslovakia.

The execution was carried out in Ploetzenzee Prison. A 20-year-old German, Oscar Denner, was executed with Hirsch on an identical charge of high treason.

The new, mechanical guillotine was used. It recently had been substituted for the ancient headsman's axe, formerly official weapon for capital punishment.

Arrested With Bombs.

Hirsch was arrested last December 20 upon arrival from Praha, allegedly with two "infernal machines"—(bombs).

Only a 10-line notice in evening newspapers and a brief billboard notice announced the execution to the German populace.

The American Embassy had not received tonight a transcript of evidence which Ambassador William E. Dodd had requested. He was told that this evidence was secret and must remain so until after the death sentence had been carried out.

Dodd had sought clemency on the ground that Hirsch was a citizen of the United States, where death is not inflicted for an intended act; the lad was very young and probably influenced by elders.

It was understood that the United States Department of State was pressing for this transcript, greatly interested in learning exactly what the proceedings were by which a young American was condemned and executed for the first time during the Hitler regime.

The transcript was expected to be available within a few days.

He saw Field Marshal August von Mackensen yesterday in another attempt to get at least a stay of execution until Dr. Hans H. Dieckhoff, Reich Ambassador to Washington, could be seen by American Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

It was understood that Dodd pointed out that people in the United States would find it hard to understand that the youth was decapitated in view of the circumstances.

In Praha, Hirsch leaves his father, Siegfried, a merchant; his mother, and a 19-year-old sister, Kaethe. The family was overwhelmed with grief, a dispatch from the Czech capital said.

The elder Hirsch's hair turned white overnight. The mother collapsed.

Young Hirsch's grandfather, Solomon Hirsch, was naturalized in New York on April 4, 1873. This gave Solomon's son and Helmuth Hirsch the status of American citizens.

Siegfried Hirsch lived in New York from 1902 to 1910, then returned to Germany. Helmuth was born at Stuttgart, January 27, 1916. He was arrested last December, when he came to Berlin from Praha.

Scarlet billboard posters advised Berlin of the beheading of the young man, whom Nazis termed "a Jew without citizenship."

'Bawl St. Journal' Pokes Fun At New Deal, Plight of Minsky

'New Court Approves Fourth Term, 41 to 9,' Reads 'Streamer' Headline; 'No Holds Barred,' Says Morgenthau Bond Advertisement.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 4.—If you hadn't blinked your eyes and looked a little closer, you would have sworn Wall Street had gone daffy today—but what everyone was reading was not the Wall Street Journal, but the annual edition of the ribster, the "Bawl Street Journal."

A "streamer" headline told the world:

"New court approves fourth term, 41 to 9"—while on the first page, in an item on the graduation exercises of the Electoral College, Franklin D. Roosevelt was listed as "the man most likely to succeed (himself)."

There was plenty of burlesque at the expense of the New Deal in the annual edition, which was issued by the Bond Club of New York for distribution at its annual outing today at the Sleepy Hollow Country Club.

One of the advertisements on the front page read:

"Deal with us—

"No restrictions, no holds barred, no legal opinions, no balance sheet, no income account.

"U. S. Government Bond Department, Henry Morgenthau, Prop."

And, speaking of burlesque, Minsky's was not forgotten.

Forced to drastic action by the recent order of the license commissioner, the brothers Minsky have entered negotiations with the powerful banking house of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. to finance an endless strpitease mill, which will be erected at the corner of Forty-second street and Broadway. No longer will the "strippers" be all dressed up and no place to go—that is, if you believe the Bawl Street Journal.

The Minsky brothers also had a "card of thanks" reading:

"To all the Wall Street bond salesmen, who spent so many happy afternoons with us, we say adieu.

"We will always treasure fond memories of those pleasant hours spent together, snipping the light elastic."

And in the "inquiring investor"—

"Dear sir: I a-lookin' for a good stock and been a-reading about the SEC. What is it payin'?"

"It's a-payin' in the neck."

Psychoanalyst Explains Method

developed as a defense mechanism to meet some situation which cannot be handled otherwise. Often a daughter will unconsciously develop the male thinking of her father in order to overcome the dominance of her mother or a son will develop a feeling "that he must be right in all things" to maintain his superiority over either parent, Dr. Oberndorf declared, and after the necessity for this defense passes the person continues to exercise it in order to live.

Treatment of the disorder is a long process of phycho-analysis and coaching of an individual in the elimination of the fear or dominance which originally brought it into being, he added.

Another strange case in which a child lived for more than three years without the frontal part of his brain was reported by Dr. Louis Casamajor, also of New York. The child was apparently normal at birth, he declared, but later developed a gradual and complete spinal curvature and blindness.

Spectrographic instruments such as those to be used next Tuesday to analyze the total eclipse of the sun by splitting light into its rainbow of colors are also being used, Dr. Abraham Myerson, of Boston, Mass., told the neurologists, to make new studies of the minerals in the brain and other parts of the body and thus aid in analyzing disease processes.

Some of the findings in this method of analysis contradict many old theories, he said, and "in general, tumor cells, inflammatory lesions, and any other condition in which there is active growth," show an increase in the amount of minerals present.

Highway Death Ends Vacation Of N.Y. Woman

Auto Collides With Truck in Va.; Husband, Other Driver Badly Hurt.

Death in an auto crash ended a happy vacation yesterday afternoon for Mrs. Alice Fox, 38, of New York City, on the Lee highway, 8 miles west of Fairfax, Va.

Mrs. Fox was returning with her husband, Charles A. Fox, from a vacation at Bluefield, W. Va., when their car, careening across the road after skidding off the shoulder of the highway, collided with a truck. The machines interlocked and Mrs. Fox, pinned between them, suffered fractures of the neck and skull.

Fox and the driver of the truck, Richard Moore, colored, of Gainesville, Va., were taken to Georgetown Hospital with serious injuries. The body of Mrs. Fox, removed from the wreckage after auto and truck had been pried apart, was taken to the undertaking establishment of Cross & Hall in Manassas, Va., for an inquest.

According to State Policeman E. H. Howe, who investigated the crash, Fox's machine skidded diagonally across the highway when he attempted to bring it back onto the pavement after running off the road.

Papers in the machine gave the address of the Foxes as 116 West Sixteenth street, New York. A letter from an insurance company, also in the car, wished them both a "happy vacation."

Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York, said last night there are a few "die-hard" manufacturing concerns "who choose to take up the weapons of industrial warfare" rather than to accept labor conciliation methods provided for in the national labor relations act.

Wagner, in a radio address on the law which he sponsored, did not identify the firms.

"It is only a matter of time," he predicted, "until these few remaining die-hards will be brought into line."

Homage Is Paid To Speaker Byrns At House Session

By the Associated Press.

Representative Sam B. McReynolds, of Tennessee, led the House yesterday in paying reverent and solemn homage to the late Joseph W. Byrns, the only Speaker who died while Congress was in session.

Standing all in white on the flower-banked rostrum where Byrns had presided, McReynolds called the late Speaker a "martyr for his Government' 'and "one of Tennessee's greatest sons."

Mrs. Byrns, and the late Speaker's only son, Joseph W. Byrns, jr., listened from front row seats, with members of the Tennessee Congressional delegation behind them.

Byrns died a year ago.

Yesterday the House lai daside its official duties to honor the tall, gaunt man who held its highest office. Sacred selections were played by an orchestra of Navy musicians just before the chaplain, the Rev. James Shera Montgomery, began the memorial exercises with an invocation.

The services ended with a cornet solo of the hymn, "Nearer, My God, to Thee."

N.F.F.E. Assails Vinson Bill as Blow to Merit

Terming the Vinson bill a blow to the merit system, the National Federation of Federal Employes yesterday voiced strong disapproval of the pending legislation, which would authorize assignment of commissioned officers of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps and other services to civilian positions under the Federal Government.

Addressing a letter to each member of the House, Luther C. Steward, national president, N. F. F. E., declared "we are unalterably opposed to such legislation. We believe that the assignment of officers from the military services to civilian positions in the Government would be a heavy blow to the merit system; that it would undermine morale, and that it would definitely lower efficiency."

He called employment of military officers throughout the Federal establishment "directly contrary to the American concept of government," and said introduction of the Vinson bill follows closely upon issuance of a memorandum to all ships and stations by the chief of the Bureau of Navigation on the subject of promotion in the Navy.

"This memorandum set forth the proposal, subsequently provided for under the terms of H. R. 7331, to enable officers who have been 'passed over' twice for promotion to continue in the Federal service, to continue their present pay schedules and to retain their customary allowances."

"In other words," commented Steward, "officers who have failed of promotion beyond the grade of lieutenant would be given full opportunity to win their promotions at the expense of the civilian personnel. Civilian employes of long training and specialized experience, clearly entitled to promotion to supervisory positions, would find opportunities for advancement shut off by officers who were unable to go forward in their own fields."

Roper Addresses Last Conference Session on Co-operation.

Dr. Lyman J. Briggs, director of the Bureau of Standards, was reelected president of the National Conference on Weights and Measures at the close of its twenty-seventh meeting here yesterday. F. S. Holbrook, also of the bureau, was renamed secretary and George F. Austin, jr., of Michian, treasurer.

George M. Roberts, of Washington, was appointed to the executive committee. Vice presidents are Rollin E. Meek, of Indiana; W. S. Bussey, of Texas; C. J. P. Cullen, of Pennsylvania, and John J. Levitt, of Illinois.

A feature of the closing session was an address by Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper on the subject, "Sustaining Standards Through Co-operation." He stressed the "joint responsibility of the Federal, State and Municipal governments and industry of perfect closer uniformity in methods, mechanisms and procedure.

Roper Urges Co-operation.

"So far the individual States have taken little initiative in setting standards of weights and measures, he said. Many of the regulations which have been made are purely local in scope. He made a plea for greater uniformity of legislation throughout the country.

Rollin E. Week, chief of the Indianapolis Bureau of Weights and Measures, urged the conference to oppose the use of nonstandard liquid measures, such as the one-third quart and the one-fifth gallon.

Dealers prefer these sizes because they do away with odd penny sales. But as the price of the commodity changes, the size of the container would have to be changed continually, to the inconvenience of weights and measures officials.

Edward H. Holmes, highway engineer in the Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Public Rroads, spoke on "Installation and Operation of Vehicle Scales on Highway Planning Surveys." The reading of reports and adoption of resolutions closed the meeting.

Immediately after he left the meeting, Dr. Townsend, who had asked his Chicago staff for their resignations and an accounting of recent receipts, which he estimated at $100,000, received a report that records in the Chicago office were being destroyed and that the staff intended to engage in a sit-down strike. There would be no publication of the weekly next Monday, he was told, unless he permitted the staff to dictate editorial policy and handle the business management. Dr. Townsend took the train for Chicago last night.

Troops Sought After Michigan Strike Rioting

Sheriff Fears Reprisals by Union After Man Is Killed, Several Hurt.

By the Associated Press.

Newberry, Mich., June 4.—This upper peninsula village, apprehensive of a recurrence of labor rioting which left one man dead and several injured today, awaited a reply tonight to Sheriff Ernest Shaw's request for National Guard troops.

The request was based upon reports from Munising that striking members of the Timberworkers and Sawmill Workers Union, routed in an attempt to close the Newberry Lumber & Chemical Co.'s plant this morning, would return with reinforcements.

May Send Troops.

The sheriff said he was informed the strikers intended to "take the town apart" in retaliation for today's defeat and for damage done to the union's hall and to automobiles abandoned by two strikers in their flight.

Gov. Frank Murphy, away from his office for the day, summoned State Police Commissioner Oscar G. Olander to Detroit for a conference.

"This looks serious," he said. "If Olander and I consider it advisable, troops will be moved into Newberry tonight. They can be sent to Newberry in an hour and a half from other upper peninsula towns if that step is necessary."

The outbreak of violence climaxed a strike of timber and sawmill workers which began May 24 and now involves 6,000 men in the upper peninsula.

Strikers Driven Back.

Twenty-five union men who sought to enlist the 1,000 Newberry Lumber & Chemical employes in the strike movement were ejected yesterday. They announced they would return with reinforcements.

Nine hundred men, including company employes and 20 special deputies, mobilized at 6:15 a. m. today when fire whistles gave the signal that the strikers were returning.

Fighting started when the strikers reached the plant and demanded that it be closed. The non-union men drove the strikers away with clubs and streams of water from fire hose. Most of the invaders were elderly men and a man who said he was a representative of the State Commission of Labor and Industry shouted to the company employes to "let the old men alone."

The union men were driven two miles into the country. Then the non-union men descended upon Finnish Labor Hall, the union headquarters, broke windows and smashed interior furnishings.

Some witnesses said several strikers were injured. The only person treated at the hospital here was James Sands, who has several fractured ribs. He said he was a union member but refused to join in the strike.

After the fighting ended, the workmen seized J. V. Kinzie, 70, a surveyor and farmer, smeared him with grease and took him out of town in a truck. The workmen said he was president of the union local.

New Deal Unmoved By Increased Flow Of Gold to America

By the Associated Press.

The Administration held fast yesterday to its present gold policy, unmoved by a continuing flow of the metal from abroad.

President Roosevelt told his press conference he knew of no plan to revise this Government's program. (There had been rumors that, in an effort to stem the inflow of gold, the Government would reduce the price it pays for the metal.)

The President advised questioners not to worry too much about the gold situation.

Under Administration policy, the Treasury must pay $35 an ounce for all gold offered. Critics of the program have contended this price acts as a magnet, pulling heavy shipments to this country.

Having increased more than $4,500,000,000 since the dollar was revalued early in 1934, the Treasury's gold hoard now stands at $12,026,949,000—the largest stock in history and more than half the world's visible supply.

The Commerce Department reported imports of $40,945,000 during the week ended May 28. Since January 1, the mental has been flowing in at the rate of about $5,000,000 a day.

Liberties Group Summons Two Ford Workers

Foreman and Foundryman Accused in Union Beatings Case.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, June 4.—The Senate Civil Liberties Committee, whose investigators watched union handbill distributors beaten and chased from motor company gates May 26, summoned two Ford employes today to testify at a hearing in Washington July 1.

In Washington the July 1 return date was described by counsel for the committee as "a formality" and that it probably would be extended indefinitely if hearings prove necessary.

The action came as new sit-down strikes and shutdowns in Chrysler, General Motors and Packard automobile plants threw nearly 19,000 workers out of employment in Detroit and Pontiac, Mich. All three producers have working agreements with the United Automobile Workers of America.

Of three Chrysler Corporation plants affected, the Kercheval and Jefferson avenue units reopened following a settlement this afternoon; the DeSoto division will resume operations Monday. More than 11,000 Chrysler workers were idle for the day.

One Is Foreman.

Robert Ehrlich, an investigator for the Civil Liberties Committee, headed by Senator La Follette (Progressive), Wisconsin, served the summons on Wilfred J. Comment, a Ford foreman, and Oscar Jones, colored foundry worker, as they waited outside the common pleas courtroom, where Judge Ralph W. Liddy is conducting a one-man grand jury inquiry into the riot.

Union members have charged that Comment and Jones were participants in the hand-to-hand fighting at Ford's huge River Rouge plant in suburban Dearborn, in which 18 unionists were injured. Both had been called to testify before Judge Liddy.

Personnel Head to Appear.

Harry H. Bennett, Ford personnel director, who is in charge of the company's police, notified the Wayne County prosecutor's office today he would appear before the grand jury Monday.

Process servers with a subpena had been unable to locate Bennett, who was reported recovering from severe sunburn at his home near Ypsilanti, Mich. Judge Liddy issued a subpena also for Edsel Ford, president and son of the company's founder, but it likewise has not been served.

In addition to the Chrysler units, automotive plants closed by strikes or resulting parts shortages today were the Packard Motor Car Co.'s small-car division at Detroit, employing 2,500; the Fisher body plant at Pontiac, employing 3,300, and the Pontiac Motor Co.'s assembly line, where 1,800 men work.

Labor Controls Steel Company Mail, Is Charge

Attorney Says Postoffice Agreed to Reject Packages.

were not accepting any 'irregular' packages for delivery to the Republic Steel Corporation.

"Flaherty then went on to tell myself and the other three gentlement present that yesterday a man brought in a package to the postoffice, saying that it was medicine for one of the Republic Steel employes. Mr. Flaherty said that they sent for Mr. Payne and Mr. Calloway of the union; that the package was opened and that it was found to contain medicine, and that Payne and Galloway then gave permission to allow the package to go into the mills."

Understanding Claimed.

The statement issued by Hunt continued:

"A postal inspector was present at the time and he reached an understanding with Payne and Galloway, according to Bert Flaherty, that no 'irregular' mail would be permitted to go into the plant, such as food, clothing, newspapers and the like, and Mr. Flaherty said:

"'You see we cannot take these packages because they will not allow it.'

"I asked who he meant by 'they?' and Flaherty said: 'Mr. Payne, Galloway and the union pickets would not allow clothing or newspapers to be delivered, but they would allow the postal department to deliver "regular parcel post packages" such as, for example, a parcel post package from Westinghouse Electric.'"

Bill to Extend PWA Approved By House Group

By the Associated Press.

Legislation to permit a two-year extension of the Public Works Administration won its first Congressional test yesterday in the House Appropriations Committee.

Starting a race against time, the committee approved a bill which would prolong until June 30, 1939, PWA activities which otherwise would expire at the end of this month.

Secretary Ickes had told the committee "a vast amount of work" remained undone. Although the extension measure would authorize a working capital of approximately $256,000,000 for PWA loans and grants none of the money would come directly out of the Treasury. Some of the cash already is in PWA's treasury and some would be raised by sale of its securities.

Only projects already approved by the PWA examining division would be eligible for loans or grants.

A Qualified Indorsement.

Although heartily approving the general objectives of the Black-Connery bill, Secretary Perkins' testimony before the House and Senate Labor committees shows that she is fully aware of the administrative difficulties and economic dangers lurking in this proposal to fix wage and hour standards by official edicts.

Secretary Perkins fully indorses efforts to set basic labor standards that afford "some definite guarantee of uniformity," believing that elimination of oppressive wages and unduly long hours of work is an advantage to fair and efficient employers. Such is the case, no doubt, provided standards are set with due regard for what a reasonably efficient employer can be expected to pay labor at any given time and in any given industry.

The great danger is, however, that too little allowance will be made for the handicaps of employers who for various reasons are not among the most efficient. Of course, the marginal or submarginal employers who can stay in business only by exploiting labor have no claim to consideration. But if the less efficient are eliminated simply because of inability to meet standards acceptable to the more efficient the result may be a serious reduction in employment.

Secretary Perkins realizes the importance of consulting both employers and employes before attempting to set a minimum wage for any industry. By such methods, she says the "chances of arriving at a realistic and suitable wage are greater even than when set by experts outside the industry." She likewise stresses the desirability of enlisting employer and employe co-operation to facilitate enforcement of orders regarding hours and wages.

These comments and other suggestions for clarifying and amending the wage-and-hour bill show that the Secretary of Labor is by no means as enthusiastic about the method of procedure indicated as she is about the major objectives of the bill. Indeed, her plea in substance is for a system of industrial self-regulation of labor policies, with the Federal agency acting largely in a supervisory capacity. She is also plainly worried about the possibility that the proposed Labor Standards Board might weaken the bargaining powers of the trade unions. And finally she states emphatically that legislation of this type will not solve the child labor problem.

Anyone reading this thoughtful testimony cannot fail to be impressed by the magnitude and difficulty of the task that would devolve upon the proposed Labor Standards Board. Secretary Perkins believes that, with the assistance of labor, industry and the public, it would be possible to set standards without risk of sudden shocks or dislocation of industry. But in calling attention to the pitfalls waiting to trap the unwary, she has provided opponents of the wage-and-hour bill with a good deal of destructive ammunition to hurl against it.

Streetcar Fares.

No sooner had the Capital Transit Co. revised upward its application to the Public Utilities Commission for an increase in token fares than spokesmen for the Federation of Citizens Associations reopened their demands for 5-cent streetcar transportation throughout the city. The transit company, in contrast, now asks for an 8¾-cent token price. The present average rate is 7½ cents.

The federation reasons that the increase in patronage naturally to be expected from a 5-cent fare would more than offset losses in revenue per passenger. The fact, however, that the company last January ended a three-year trial of weekly passes at $1, returning to the former $1.25 charge, appears to contradict the federation's theory, while making its secondary demands for improved equipment, along with lower fares, still more impossible.

Last year, when the company applied for 8 1-3-cent tokens, the P. U. C. felt it necessary first to inspect the valuations on which transit earnings were based. This considerable task has been completed, at least for 1935. Now the commission is studying the 1936 figures and, with these in hand, hearings on the company's arguments to justify a token fare increase are scheduled to begin shortly.

Until the P. U. C.'s conclusions on the company's valuations are known, the public can scarcely pass judgment on the token proposal. The annual report for 1936 shows the net income of the transit company to have been $29,000 as compared with $378,000 in 1935. Wage increases and taxes—principally for social security—were important factors in this decline.

The company contends that more than 100,000,000 of its 156,000,000 passengers would not be affected by the proposed increase in token fares, while more than 4,000,000 would enjoy reductions in their transportation expenses. Finally, it is a matter of record that among cities of over 300,000 population, 10 of the 24 today are paying 8 1-3 cents or more for token fares on streetcars and buses.

The P. U. C. may be expected to keep streetcar fares at the lowest reasonable figure. Nothing could be gained, of course, by forcing fares down to a point where the company would be unable to render satisfactory service.

The Fight Continues.

It is difficult to explain the tenacity with which President Roosevelt clings to his court reorganization bill. During the recent session of the Supreme Court several of the most important New Deal laws remaining untested were pronounced constitutional. Justice Van Devanter's resignation has given the President an opportunity to name a new justice of his own choosing. His extraordinary plan of injecting "new blood" into the court has been thoroughly discredited. Yet the President continues his fight in the face of almost certain defeat.

Senator Robinson has indicated a willingness on the part of the Administration to compromise. But that does not substantially change the situation. For weeks it has been known that the President would have to accept extensive changes in his bill to avoid outright defeat. And now it seems very doubtful whether any compromise jeopardizing the independence of the Supreme Court will be accepted in the Senate.

Because of the widespread hostility toward any measure to enlarge the membership of the court, most of the recent talk has centered, not upon a compromise, but rather upon face-saving. Realizing the strength of the opposition, friends of the President have suggested that the bill be permitted to lie dormant during the remainder of this session. In this way, it has been pointed out, a showdown on the court issue would be avoided, the impending breach in the Democratic Party might be healed, while the bill would still be on hand as a club over the head of the Supreme Court when it proceeds to consider other important New Deal acts next fall.

There will be general satisfaction that the President has not accepted this advice. Extended delay would likely solidify public opposition and carry the issue into the 1938 campaigns. More important, it would leave the Supreme Court in an intolerable position. Opponents of the bill who are trying to preserve the independence of the judiciary would doubtless fight such an attempt to intimidate the court as bitterly as they are now fighting efforts to pack it.

Still the willingness of the President to risk the future unity of his party for the sake of disciplining a coordinate branch of the Government remains a mystery. His present attitude seems to be that the court must not only stop rendering decisions against the New Deal, but must be taken in tow by the White House in any circumstances. That utterly unreasonable and apparently vindictive policy will doubtless serve to stiffen the opposition of Congress and accentuate the criticism of voters.

There can only be one reasonable outcome to this stubborn fight. The court-packing bill should be carried to the floor of the Senate and emphatically defeated. Mr. Roosevelt has had ample opportunity to correct his blunder in line with his much-publicized and little-practiced policy of trial and error. But he has chosen to continue his fight for an indefensible proposal, with little regard for the prestige of the courts, the traditions of the country or even the unity of his own party. Only an emphatic rebuke from Congress can properly terminate a foray of such vital significance to the future of the Nation.

A Washington Auditorium.

Certainly one of the most appealing proposals of the day is that provision be made for skating facilities in the contemplated Washington auditorium. Proponents of the idea believe that a rink for hockey and public skating would be self-liquidating. That would indeed be a point in its favor, both from the standpoint of finances and in light of the probability that the auditorium would frequently be wanted for other than skating purposes.

Whether a rink will be included in the design appears to hinge, in the first instance, on the auditorium commission's decision as to the precise functions the auditorium should fill. It might, for example, be a building of the type of Constitution Hall, designed principally for conventions, concerts and the like. Or it could be modeled more along the lines of the Madison Square Garden in New York, which can accommodate anything from a political rally to an indoor horse show.

This latter type seems the more desirable. Considerable interest has been aroused in activities that would use a general auditorium, to judge from the words of witnesses who have appeared before the auditorium advisory committee. Besides hockey promoters and a skating club urging a rink, others have recommended a building in which carnivals, drama, opera and banquets could be staged. Still other possible uses might be exhibits and shows of many sorts and athletic meets.

If Washington is to have an auditorium, ornamentation and dignity—while important—should be secondary considerations. The city has a superabundance of both. First of all, an auditorium here should be adaptable to many uses—not only because of the pleasure such a building would afford the public but also because its maintenance expenses could be more easily met if it could be frequently put to use.

Our Mounting Gold Stocks.

Recurrent rumors that the Treasury intends to cut its buying price for gold, and a recent report that gold prices are to be stabilized at present levels by international agreement, reflect a growing uneasiness over the rapid increases in monetary gold stocks. Official denials that any change in policy is imminent are of little avail in face of rising convictions that something will have to be done to control the gold flood that is pouring out of mines and private hoards.

The belief that action of some sort will be taken in the near future is strengthened by the admission of Sir John Simon, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, that the problem of gold is "under constant consideration." He added that he would not favor control of output or discuss demonetization as a means of checking the steady accumulation of gold in central bank reserves. Nevertheless the mere mention of these control methods emphasizes the seriousness of the situation.

Dr. L. J. A. Trip, president of the Bank of Netherlands, which has gained large amounts of gold during the present year, has come out strongly in favor of regulating the output of the yellow metal by international agreement. He is opposed to a lowering of the gold price paid by central bank stabilization funds and regards release of gold coin for general circulation as impossible under present conditions.

There is no doubt as to the dilemma into which the United States has been plunged by continuous huge gold importations, which have raised monetary gold stocks above $12,000,000,000. To counteract the inflationary potentialities of these accessions, the Treasury began last December to sterilize new gold by borrowing to buy it instead of issuing gold certificates in payment. The so-called inactive gold fund built up through such purchases had reached $793,861,973 on the first of June, and this total is being constantly augmented by heavy imports of the metal.

Devaluation of gold currencies and establishment of the tripartite currency agreement has brought a good deal of gold out of hiding in recent months. This dehoarding together with the excessive stimulation of gold mining, due to artificially high gold prices, has been responsible for the huge offerings made to central banks here and abroad in recent months. Eventually the movement out of hoards will slow down and become negligible, but the stimulus to mining, which has been especially pronounced in the case of Russia, will continue to be felt. Meantime every rumor of an impending change in policy stirs the gold-mining interests to active protest, creates flurries in mining stocks and brings more gold out of hiding.

Under existing conditions, gold has come to be regarded as a liability rather than an asset by a country in our position. Instead of strengthening our currency and budgetary position it is actually the cause of a debt increase that embarrasses the Treasury. And as speculation about the future status of gold becomes active, the fear that it might lose prestige as a money metal increases reluctance to incur obligations as a means of "sterilizing" additions to already superfluous stocks.

It seems not unlikely in view of these developments, that some change in present gold policies will have to be made at no distant date.

The President Is Right.

Belated though it may be, President Roosevelt's action in urging Congress to place all but policy-forming positions in the Government under the merit system is wholly commendable.

According to figures compiled by the Civil Service Commission and cited by the President, more than 70 bills have been introduced in this session of Congress which ignore the merit system in the matter of appointments. In addition, many other bills would place in the exempt class all but minor positions.

Here is another indication that the smell of patronage to be dispensed is sweet in the nostrils of members of Congress. For this Senators and Representatives are not wholly to blame. The Chief Executive's own conversion to the merit system, if judged by his acts during the first four years of his Administration, is of relatively recent date.

Nonetheless, Mr. Roosevelt is absolutely right in taking a stand against further distribution of spoils. As the Civil Service Commission points out: "The merit system without question is good business administration, making for the utmost in economy and efficiency."

With governmental activities still expanding, there is a growing demand for abolition of the vicious system of making Government jobs the prize for political services. The superiority of an efficient civil service in which the merit system is incorporated is firmly established. The President's recognition of these facts and his strong opposition to the tactics of Congress in seeking to sabotage the civil service should become the first blow in a knock-out maneuver against the patronage system.

"The price of our civilization is insanity," declares a French psychiatrist. Anybody who thinks this civilization is worth going crazy over is nuts.

Two Taxi Brotherhoods.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your issue of June 1 you have a news item concerning a meeting held by a group who called themselves the Industrial Brotherhood of Taxidrivers. This group is merely a disgruntled few who do not have the support or confidence of our members. The Industrial Brotherhood of Taxidrivers will in due time take care of these members who are known as "bore from within" artists.

The Industrial Brotherhood of Taxidrivers was organized on January 22, 1937, at 425 G street northwest, and have enjoyed the good-will of everyone with whom they have had business dealings and have had always the interest and well-being of the taxidrivers in the forefront.

The Industrial Brotherhood of Taxidrivers will resist any member or group of members who use the name "The Industrial Brotherhood of Taxidrivers" of which our organization has the exclusive and priority right. It might be interesting to know that our organization has the original draft of our constitution and all copies, all minutes, all membership cards and all other property of the industrial brotherhood. GEORGE A. MARTIN, Business Agent, Industrial Brotherhood of Taxidrivers.

Baldwin And Windsor.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Apropos of one or two letters in The Post and the editorial of May 19 on the subject of the Duke of Windsor, the following facts may be noted:

1. The Duke of Windsor has broken no law, and is therefore under no legal condemnation and deserving of no punishment.
2. To say he let the people down is fiction, since he had no power as king or "puppet king." Even his expression of sympathy and purpose to help was immediately noted as unconstitutional by The Times.
3. According to Rebecca West, Bolitho and others, Premier Baldwin's actions went beyond his constitutional powers. One may well ask what could he have done differently if he had been an acknowledged dictator.
4. The undignified pursuit of the former king by Baldwin who said, "For all the work (the king had done) we are grateful and we shall not forget," should have the opposite effect from what he intends. Surely it can not build up the present puppet king.

The monarchy is out of all harmony with modern life. No real man could stand the falsity of the position. The courage of Edward in refusing to continue in it does not deserve the treatment he is receiving from the government. It belittles the government, not the Duke of Windsor. AN OLD LADY WHO FORMERLY LOVED ENGLAND.

Washington Taxi Drivers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial of June 2, "Taxis in Washington," prompts me to say a word about taxi drivers as an occasional visitor from New York finds them in Washington. It is a real pleasure to encounter the courtesy, friendliness and intelligent interest which Washington taxi drivers show to their patrons. I have found nothing like it in any other city. The young men and those not so young, who pilot you around Washington appear to me fine American types. Good humor is their characteristic. Friendly but not "fresh," well informed about the city, appreciative of the tip, be it small or large, and philosophically tolerant of Washington traffic hazards.

These excellent fellows present to the visitors a refreshing aspect of American life. Taxi service in Washington is the cheapest and best in the country. Whatever reforms are effected in its regulation, I hope the taxi drivers will be treated with the justice that is their due. GOTHAMITE.

Treadle Incident.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The following incident has impressed upon me the belief that the treadles in use on our street cars are a danger. One day recently while looking for a seat, I was inadvertently standing upon one of these treadles when it suddenly sank under me, the door opened and I very narrowly escaped being thrown backward into the street.

I write you this knowing your wish and power to work for the good of the community.
L. M. ALLEN.

Government Employes On Economy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It seems to me that Government employes are apt to be apathetic as regards their own condition. They get excited about turmoil in Spain, the troubled path of the Duke of Windsor, and the plight of the sharecroppers down South, but they never think that the troubles that hit other people will ever touch them.

Right now there are proposals in Congress calling for 10 and 15 per cent blanket cuts in appropriations. Other economy proposals are impending. When cuts begin in budgets, departments have to trim down expenses to fit the new pattern. In the trimming process, it is inevitable that part of the personnel must be cut, or employes' salaries slashed, and there is strong likelihood of both.

Does the average Government employe worry about such things? Not he. He'll wake up after the cut has been administered to him and holler, "They can't do this to me!" R. SCHAEFER.
Washington, June 2.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Some portion at least of the American Federation of Government Employes is at last showing signs of life.

After giving every evidence of a do-nothing attitude in the face of a very real danger threatened by the Byrnes and Cannon proposals now being considered in Congress, a group of the more wide-awake lodges has decided to fight for the welfare of their members with every means available.

The Committee Against False Economy deserves the support of every Government employe, organized and unorganized, who wants to promote the interests of Government efficiency as well as his own security.
H. E. B.
Washington, June 3.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I was very much interested in the article in the Federal Diary of June 3 on the seven lodges and the Committee Against False Economy. It brings to light an interesting commentary on the way that democracy functions in this country.

Usually when a measure is introduced into Congress, it has been framed at the suggestion of either the President, directly or indirectly, or under pressure from some particular group. Then, when the measure is up for consideration, Congress considers it not only on the merits of the bill but also in relation to the reaction which the bill has brought forth.

In the past it has been only the well-fed groups which have recognized this power of the people and have used it to their advantage, through lobbyists in Washington and other mass pressure. But recently the more meagerly nourished groups have awakened to the possibilities of this type of action, as witness the farmers' delegation, the Workers Alliance, and the Women's Brigade.

Some people may not subscribe to this practice of Congress of taking into consideration the reaction aroused by certain measures, instead of merely passing on their merits. However, I think the "rebel" lodges have the right idea. It is the duty of Congress to listen to the dictates of the people, and how are they going to know how we feel about their proposals if we don't let them hear from us?
AGAINST FALSE ECONOMY.
Washington, June 3.

Unhonored Greats.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why is it our country is so reluctant to honor those to whom honor is justly due? I have especial reference to those to whom we owe our independence. There are six outstanding political characters (true statesmen) connected with our independence and history who will grow in stature as time passes and people universally become more enlightened, yet only two of them have been recognized by memorials in our Capitol. These two being so recognized and honored principally on account of their militant opportunism.

Not that they need it to be remembered, but the four greatest have stood unrecognized for 150 years or more, among whom is the keystone character of them all who has been persistently traduced and persecuted by his beneficiaries simply for the infraction of an intolerant and inhuman credo. These bulwarks of liberty all stood for freedom of conscience and freedom of speech, and self-determination by inherent right. While their environmental opportunities varied, their mental and humanitarian equations and principles of democracy under republican form of government were the same. Their having lived was a credit to civilization and a boon to humanity

Measured in respect to their universal worth (U. S. A. in particular) and contribution to mankind through self-sacrifice, I would index them as follows: Thomas Paine, Patrick Henry, Thomas Jefferson, Benjamin Franklin, George Washington and Abraham Lincoln

This is in no sense a reflection on others of like stature in this particular field who also deserve merited credit. Nor should it be considered disparaging to the many others in their respective fields of endeavor who hold merited claims for recognition. It is neither the size nor cost of a memorial that is of real value but the public acknowledgement of the underlying principles of the character for which it is erected.
A. W. CARTER.

Americans On Royalty.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Sometimes it is a good thing for those with English blood in their veins to live for a time in this land across the water. There is something about the attitude, the sincerity that is alien to the provincial Britishers. And that, as I see it, is the ability of the American to gauge royalty—by character, whether it is found in the voice of the king doing what he believes is right, or in the royal action of a man, referred to by the English clerics as "presbyter vagans."

It seems there have been others, whom the "archbishops" of their age have referred to as lightly as the equivalent of "presbyter vagans." Once there was a street preacher in Galilee; once there was a man in Assize. Strange we remember these vagans when we have forgotten the archbishops of the times.

There is a quotation, not unthought of among many of us today. It may be found in a certain book, with which many churchmen are, to judge from their actions, unfamiliar. It concerns the fact that though one's relatives may cast them off, there is One who does not thus desert. Dare any among us say that what this obscure person has done, may not have been inspired by such a One? To many of us, he has renewed our faith in those purporting to be that One's servants. K. C. HUNTLEY.
Washington, June 3.

The Court's Reversals.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The members of the Supreme Court not only know how to interpret the law of the land, but have recently demonstrated their ability to take a part in practical politics.

The justices, by handing down several decisions favorable to the New Deal, have actually outsmarted F. D. R. These decisions have resulted in bringing about a collapse in the group supporting the President's court plan. For the time being the Supreme Court is safe from any drastic change in its structure.

It is well to remember that most of these men will still be justices of the Supreme Court when F. D. R. will not be President of the United States and that they can always reverse a decision at a convenient time. IVO DE CAPET.
Washington, June 2.

The Post Impressionist

Serendipity.

Do you mind very much if I review a book I have never read and have never even seen? I know it is a little unusual. One is supposed to at least skim through a volume reviewed. But, my goodness, I knew this book 20 years before it was born, and that makes a difference, don't you think?

Even the stickler for form may on occasion with profit forget it. One of the joys of the strait and narrow path is the ease with which one may stray from it. Which may include book reviewing.

I like the way the book reviewer does his work. In a few brief italic lines he presents his facts (the book, its author, publisher and price) and is then in a position to ignore them. As a rule he presents them at the very beginning or the very end of his article, but why shouldn't he put them elsewhere if he wants to? Like this:

"THE AMERICAN BOOK OF DAYS," by George W. Douglas. (The H. W. Wilson Co., $3.50).

The back o' me hand to rules!

Do you chance to remember Sir James A. Barrie's rule for the writing of an editorial! It ran something like this: Two pipes equal one hour; one hour, one idea; one idea, one paragraph; three paragraphs, one editorial.

But this mixture of tobacco smoke and intensive thinking is only one way of preparing an editorial. Another way is to sit down to a typewriter and clatter away, putting down every stray thought that comes into your head. When your page is full put in a fresh page and carefully copy the few, the very few, connected thoughts on the first page; and then clatter away again. By the time you have written two or three thousand words all the chances are that you will find five hundred that you can string together. And there's your editorial. It's just as easy!

Now Dr. Douglas' way of getting his ideas into shape was something entirely different. But first you have to know the man himself. He is white-haired with a serene, benign countenance. He has a soft and slightly husky voice and a slow, pleasing smile. And everybody likes him. Well, then. When at council it was decided that he was to write the leading editorial he would walk into your cubby hole and say, "Now, my idea is to say ——" And then he'd tell you about it for three minutes, no longer, for he'd know you had work to do. Then he'd go into the next cubby hole and continue his theme. When he had made the rounds of all the cubby holes in Brain Alley, he would go into the local room and chat very briefly with every idle man. Then into the composing room, where he might catch a proofreader off duty. If the problem was a particularly knotty one he might take in the pressroom and the mailing room. But once he had made his round he'd sit down at his typewriter and rattle off that editorial in jig time.

And it usually happened that when he returned from his ramble he had something for one of his two collections, which he kept in indexed files. One collection, his favorite, was strange and unusual words. The other was holidays, what they were, how they originated and what they meant.

I'll never forget the day he found "serendipity." It was Saturday, April 8, 1923. I remember it because it was his birthday and he seemed to think the finding of that word was the best possible birthday present he could receive; and it was all the more appropriate because he found it when he was looking for something else.

And, indeed, Horace Walpole's princes had nothing on Dr. Douglas as he gathered material for his holiday book. He'd serendip into Montaigne and stumble on what the sixteenth century essayist thought of Pope Gregory's change in the calendar. He'd serendip into a tome for information about fast and feast days and discover some such fast as that Frederick County, Maryland, still celebrates its repudiation of the Stamp Tax; and this continual finding of the unexpected made the writing of the book a delight.

And thus it comes about that his book of days is finished and published before his book of words; and I don't expect to hear any complaint about it; for the book will be a boon to newspapermen.

Nowadays a man wants, we'll say, to write a few lines about the origin of All Fools' Day and he goes to the morgue for some dope and gets a bunch of envelopes and Chamber's "Book of Days."

Well, anyhow, that is all over. A man may now get the "American Book of Days" and get all the information he wants pronto; all the holidays observed everywhere; all the anniversaries; all the saints' days; all the birthdays of all the Presidents and Supreme Court justices; all the famous events in American history; and all the local celebrations rose festivals, cotton carnivals, apple feasts and tomato tom-toms.

All of this is good working knowlegde for the working newspaperman; but my contention is that there is a treat in store for all the Princes of Serendip, a royal race which embraces all of us. Facts and dates are all right in their way but the real joy is found in the unexpected and surprising things.

Fair Enough

Mr. Frick's Decision.

BASEBALL MEN generally do not keep abreast of affairs outside their own business, but it is hard to believe that anyone in the United States lives so deep in the past as Ford Frick, the president of the National League, which is a combination of business firms.

He was judge, jury and complaining witness in one, and his verdict was that Dean must sign a humiliating apology dictated by Frick himself or turn in his suit. Refusing to sign, Dean was ruled out, and he will lose pay until Mr. Frick decides that he has been punished sufficiently. The term, therefore, depends on how deeply Mr. Frick was hurt by the affront to his dignity and honor.

This occurs in a business which calls itself the American national game and directs its appeal to a public which has pretty generally indorsed collective bargaining and condemned autocratic and brutal treatment of employes by employers.

Of course, these baseball cases are trivial, and a man who gets $25,000 a year for playing a game does not make a very tragic martyr even when he is imposed upon. And Dean is even less pathetic, because he recently was accused of throwing his hard one dead at the skulls of the hitters in a game between the Cardinals and the Giants. A few days later, in the other major league, Mickey Cochrane was beaned accidentally and taken to a hospital with a broken head, and the resentment against Dean increased.

However, Mr. Frick did not punish Dizzy for conduct which might have been fatal. The suspension was based on reports that Dizzy publicly described Mr. Frick as a crook.

Now, if Mr. Frick can prove that Dizzy called him a crook and prove that he is not a crook, which shouldn't be difficult, he can find his remedy in the regular courts.

• • • •

BUT, INSTEAD, he took the old-fashioned baseball short cut and tried the case himself. The result is a much worse affront to justice and public sentiment than Dizzy offered when he threw his hard one at the Giants—if he did.

As to character, Dizzy has his virtues and his faults. Obstreperous he is, to be sure, boastful, erratic and a poor sportsman in some matters. But he is or has been a great pitcher; he has personally earned vast amounts of money for his employers; he has worked overtime at the risk of killing his arm and losing his livelihood, and he once was knocked flat by a thrown ball while serving as pinch runner in a World Series.

Taking him as he is, Dizzy is more deserving of public sympathy than his employers, who have been known to blacklist men for strictly temperamental reasons and drive them out of their profession by silent agreement.

• • • •

HE WORKS under a system of employment which not only denies the right of collective bargaining but, once a man has signed his first papers, thereafter allows him no right to bargain at all.

He is subject to house rules and regulations controlling his conduct in his leisure time, and, theoretically at least, he has no more human rights than the most degraded sharecropper. Actually, of course, he fares pretty well but only by the generosity of his owners.

The terms of employment in professional baseball are such that you would think Mr. Frick, as head of the National League, would be afraid to flout public sentiment as he has done in this case. But perhaps, being a baseball man, Mr. Frick doesn't realize what goes on in labor and industry these days.

Apparently they don't get around much intellectually outside their own business.

For purposes of propaganda organized baseball presents a tempting opportunity to organized labor. A players' union died at birth some years ago, but today a players' union could enlist the support of organized labor and astonish Mr. Frick and the chain-store proprietors with picket lines and a terrible boycott.

Mr. Frick ought to read the papers.

The Once Over

The Organized Circus.

("The Ringling Brothers Circus signed a union agreement with its employes and performers today."—News item.)

Come! Let us to the circus go!
Oh, how you'll be surprised
To see the greatest show on earth
Completely unionized!
The trainers in the tigers' cage
And in the lions' den
Are, oh, so calm and fearless now—
For they are union men!

Behold the acrobats! Perceive
Their work so free from faults!
They now are given double pay
For double somersaults;
The Frogman or contortionist—
In bowknots does his bit,
All smiles, for he gets overtime
For getting out of it!

The man high up atop that pole,
Held by his partner hale,
Is far more daring than before—
He gets the union scale!
Oh, see that tight-rope walker there!
No comfort does he lack:
He gets good pay when things are tight
And also when they're slack.

The elephants now with their tails
Thump bass drums, quite resigned;
The rate they get for work up front
They get for work behind;
Big Jumbo holds his keeper's head
Between his jaws quite hard . . .
Why is the keeper so carefree?
He holds a union card!

The lions and the panthers roar—
Ferocious snarls they make,
But they don't mean a thing tonight,
For "everything is jake";
They snap at the pale trainer there,
But everything is fine,
For they're all fellow members now
Of Local Number Nine!

The monkeys! See how they have changed!
Each monk is now at ease,
For on each cage there is a sign,
"The Cage Unfair to Fleas."
The ape now slumbers through the day—
All monkeyshines he cuts;
He knows the broader life will bring
His share of coconuts.

Oh, watch the trained seals do their stuff,
Their work is more than slick;
Their organizer's had 'em raised
To twenty fish per trick!
And when he plays the slide trombone
Just watch him shake his tail!
Why shouldn't he? They pay him now
The union music scale!

Those star performers in the air—
They're happy, you can bet;
For even if they get a fall
They do well, gross and net;
That girl held by her partner's teeth—
She doesn't flinch or shirk,
For she knows that she can depend
On union dental work!

Latest Improvements Lacking.

Homer Martin is having so much trouble starting that Ford strike that he must wish he had an electric starter instead of a crank.

Well, now that the circus is unionized nobody can claim that two-thirds of the nation's sword swallowers are ill fed.

Canadian Loopholes

Ottawa Correspondent Describes Means Of Avoiding U. S. Income Tax Levies; Liberal Government Has Acted.

By William Marchington,

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Ottawa.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S message to Congress on the subject of income tax evasion was read with great interest by officials of the Department of National Revenue here. From their own experience they are quite willing to believe his allegations about the extent to which tax evasion is practiced by rich Americans and about the complicated ingenuity of some of the methods adopted.

They are, for instance, thoroughly familiar with the device of organizing personal corporations in the Bahamas, where there are no income taxes, for the purpose of keeping securities beyond the sweep of Canada's taxation net. They are well aware, too, that some of the richest men in Canada have established domiciles there with this objective. They also know that a substantial number of holding companies have been incorporated in Canada by American citizens, but they decline to furnish any particulars about them in accordance with their practice of preserving complete secrecy about information given in income tax returns.

Furthermore, they have evidence that in recent years a certain number of wealthy Americans, in many cases people who have summer homes in Canada, have taken out naturalization papers in Canada thereby becoming liable to the Canadian income tax. It is not clear how they derive much benefit from this change of domicile, as on the average the Canadian scales of income tax, particularly in the higher brackets, are lower than the American. Officials can only conclude that the change of domicile is made either for the purpose of mitigating the incidence of succession duties, which in Canada are only imposed by the provincial governments and by them on a comparatively low scale in provinces like Quebec, or as a precaution against increases of taxation in the United States.

Canadian Law Invites Foreign Holding Companies.

CANADA, of course, does encourage citizens of foreign countries to organize holding companies in the Dominion. The federal income tax act contains a provision, exempting from its levies "the income of incorporated companies, whose business and assets are carried on and situate entirely outside Canada."

This exemption was inserted in the act in 1918 for the purpose of covering the cases of companies like the Brazilian Traction Co., which owns most of the public utilities in Brazil. This concern was originally organized by a group of Canadian capitalists headed by the late Sir William Mackenzie and a great deal of its stock is still in Canadian hands. Its business is all outside Canada, but its head office is in Toronto, and the government of the day was afraid that if it was made subject to Canada's corporation income tax, it would move to Brazil and thereby deprive Toronto of a valuable business.

This provision has resulted in numerous companies being incorporated in Canada by citizens of foreign countries, and in official circles the title "4(k) companies" has been applied to them because they are dealt with by paragraph k of section 4 of the income tax act. Under it, citizens of the United States could form corporations which up till the passage of the budget of 1936 were not liable to a Canadian income tax as long as they confined their operations to securities which had their situs outside the Dominion, situs being defined as the place where the securities were exchanged.

"4(k) Companies" Grew Freely Under Dispensation.

RICH MEN in Britain who wanted to avoid high income taxes began to resort freely to the practice of establishing "4(k) companies" in Canada and some of the larger Canadian trust companies did a thriving business in organizing and managing them. But the British government soon discovered that it was losing large sums of revenue. It is understood that its representations were largely responsible for impelling the present Liberal government of Canada to alter in its first budget, submitted on May 1, 1936, the provision conferring immunity from taxation upon such companies.

Bona fide commercial and industrial compan es which were carrying on business outside Canada were not touched but personal holding companies incorporated in Canada to hold the assets of a foreign individual or his immediate family and financial or investment companies holding securities representing ownership of or interests in enterprises located in various countries of the world found their privileges impaired by an amendment.

Modified Taxes Now Imposed On Foreigners.

ACCORDINGLY, these holding corporations are now liable to the Canadian corporation income tax on a modified scale, but tax officials here are emphatic that the revenues secured from them have not so far had any appreciable effect upon the aggregate yield of income tax revenue.

They cannot see any definite reason why American citizens should bother to incorporate a company in Canada as the foundation structure for another holding company in the Bahamas. There is no apparent advantage which they could not acquire by forming the Bahaman Co. direct. But it has been suggested that they may regard Canadian conditons as stable and think that by the implication they can get the benefit of the stability of Canada and the immunity from an income tax available in the Bahamas.

What worries officials here most about the developments at Washington is that they may imperil the fate of the treaty between Canada and the United States for reciprocity at the rate of 5 per cent in income tax levies in the two countries upon investments of the nationals of each in the other country. This treaty passed the Canadian Parliament last session but still awaits ratification by the Senate of the United States.

At present the income of Canadians from American investments is taxed at the rate of 10 per cent by the American Government as against a parrallel tax of 5 per cent in Canada and if the treaty becomes effective Canadian holders of American investments will have their rate reduced to 5 per cent.

Roosevelt Backer Wheels Huge Rock

New York, June 4 (U.P.).—Emmanuel Jonidas, 40, waited a long time and picked a hot time to keep his "promise" made on President Roosevelt's re-election, but he started tonight for Albany pushing a wheelbarrow weighted down with a 50-pound rock

From Albany he will push the rock-laden wheelbarrow to Washingtonwhere he will present to the President a copy of Plato's "Republic" in behalf of the Greek American Citizens' Club.

A year ago Jonidas promised his friends that if they would work for Mr. Roosevelt's re-election he would push a wheelbarrow to Albany and Washington.

Aridity of Plains Likened to Egypt

Bozeman, Mont., June 4 (AP).—The same processes that left buried cities in now arid sections of Egypt are forcing a stream of distressed farmers westward across Montana, E. A. Starch, agricultural economist at Montana State College, said today.

Starch explained that the area between the Rocky Mountains and the Mississippi River was at one time barren.

Slowly trees and grass spread over the plains.

The pioneers then depleted the vegetation responsible for the more frequent rains. Droughts resulted.

The same cycle was witnessed by the Egyptians.

Oil Strike in Mexico Grounds Army Planes

Mexico City, June 4 (AP).—Lack of gasoline today grounded the aviation arm of the Mexican army as continuation of the nine-day old strike of oil workers made the nation-wide shortage of motor fuel more acute.

Gen. Samuel Rojas, chief of military aviation, told President Lazaro Cardenas of this situation shortly after a secret session in the palace in which representatives of the president, the strikers and employers discussed means of obtaining fuel for public services.

Fascist Bloc

By

Barnet Nover

Field Marshal Blomberg In Rome.

MUSSOLINI put on a great show for Field Marshal Werner von Blomberg, the Third Reich's war minister, who is spending the week in Rome.

There was an impressive aerial display at Furbara. There was a simulated destruction of a naval base by giant bombers. There was a demonstration of a new Italian machine gun which, it is reported, fires with exceptional precision and of a depth bomb capable of blowing any ship out of the water. Thousands of Italian soldiers paraded for the visiting dignitary and thousands of young men went through setting-up exercises in Mussolini stadium for his edification.

One may safely hazard a guess that all this was out of more than mere courtesy to a high official of a friendly nation. The news of what happened at Brihuega on the Guadalajara front is no secret to the German high command and it is quite possible that it aroused in their minds a suspicion that Ethiopia offered no real test of Italian fighting ability.

The military and aerial display put on for Blomberg's benefit, it is possible to believe, may have been designed to reassure the Nazi war lords. And the show may have achieved this aim. For in the midst of the festivities in honor of the German war minister, Virginio Gayda, Mussolini's mouthpiece, announced that a "definite defensive entente" has been established between the two Fascist powers.

• • • •

IT IS BEING denied in official quarters in Rome that this constitutes a military alliance and these denials can be taken at their face value. Against only one country—Spain—would such an alliance contain any advantages to Germany and Italy, and with regard to Spain it is not necessary, at the moment, to emphasize the actual.

For Italo-German co-operation has been the rule, so far as Spain is concerned, since the very beginning of the civil war. From the first, the Fascist powers gave invaluable aid to Gen. Franco. They supplied him with planes, with technicians, with military advisers and even, in Italy's case, with whole armies of fighting men. What is more, they recognized his regime as the only legitimate government of Spain although their expectations that Franco would soon be in Madrid have proved ill-founded. Then came Brihuega, the most serious blow to his prestige suffered by Mussolini since the Matteotti murder.

The Ibiza episode, in which Italy quickly demonstrated its solidarity with the Nazi government, provided an opportunity for tightening the somewhat loosened bonds of German-Italian co-operation in Spain. And while the unquestionably dangerous situation that followed the attack on the Deutschland and the brutal bombardment of Almeria has eased somewhat, there is no certainty whatever that the Fascist powers are prepared to abandon their huge investment of men, money and prestige in the Spanish rebel cause.

THE ESTABLISHMENT of the "definite defensive entente" between Germany and Italy would seem to show they are not. But there is an even more striking indication of this. That is the circumstance that the Italian government, for the first time, has permitted the publication of a casualty list. To be sure, the names on this list are of those who allegedly fell in the siege of Malaga. The Italian people know that Italians took part in that fight for, when Malaga was captured, the regimented Italian press was permitted to boast of it as an Italian victory. They have not yet been told the story of the Italian rout at Brihuega.

Nonetheless, the cat of Italian intervention in Spain has now been let out of the bag so far as the Italian people are concerned and it is difficult to believe that this action was not deliberate and purposeful. The purpose may very well be to prepare the Italian people for a direct war on the Spanish loyalists.

With German co-operation assured, with the democratic powers revealing themselves once again as ready to permit any indignity so long as the shadow of peace is preserved, Rome and Berlin may feel that the time is ripe for a more ambitious move in Spain than any hitherto undertaken.

• • • •

CERTAINLY there appears to be little likelihood that Gen. Franco, with his present forces of Spaniards, Moors, Germans and Italians can make any great headway toward his goal. Madrid remains unconquered and after eight weeks Bilbao has not fallen. If the present deadlock is to be broken, therefore, that can only be done by large-scale intervention. In this connection the testimony of a Requete (monarchist) prisoner taken by the Basques and interviewed by G. L. Steer of the London Times is significant.

Stating that there was no German infantry active on the Basque front, this prisoner, according to Mr. Steer, added, "that all officers told him and his comrades that large contingents of German, in addition to Italian infantry, had been disembarked recently at San Sebastian, the latest group arriving no longer ago than last Sunday, preparatory to a 'final push' along the Bay of Biscay coast."

"This was," Mr. Steer adds, "a startling unsolicited corroboration of information that reached the Basque intelligence service two days ago, but hitherto has not been reported by this correspondent owing to the grave nature of the allegations involved."

It is much too early, therefore, to take the view that the international crisis regarding Spain has been more than temporarily eased by the mediatory action of Great Britain and France. The present breathing spell may be no more than that. Something is being cooked up in Rome this week. Let it be hoped it will not be another witches' broth.

Forty Names

By William Lyon Phelps

Prominent Men.

On the completion of that monumental work, the Dictionary of American Biography, the editor, Mr. Dumas Malone, wrote an article in a recent number of Harper's Monthly in which he skimmed the cream of America's prominent dead men, by the simple method, quite justifiable, of the proportionate space they received in the dictionary. He selected 40 names.

• • • •

The editor of the Saturday Review of Literature selected from this list all the men of letters, eight in number. Whether there should have been more than eight is in itself worth consideration. Here is the list in the order of excellence:

- Emerson
- Hawthorne
- Mark Twain
- Whitman
- Poe
- Thoreau
- Henry James
- Cooper

The editor believes that this list is already unacceptable. It is certainly true that the reputation of authors fluctuates like that of stocks and bonds, but it is certain that these eight men will not be forgotten; observe they are men, not women.

Of the eight, only two are recently dead; Mark Twain died in 1910, Henry James in 1916. The others all died in the last century.

• • • •

Curiously enough, there is less discussion about the first name on the list than on that of any other; we are all pretty well agreed that the first name in American literature is that of Emerson. I think I would put Hawthorne and Mark Twain next. How amazed literary critics in 1890 would have been if they could have seen then where Mark Twain stands now!

It will be interesting and the time will be well spent if two or three hundred thousand Americans make ou their own lists of eight.

It is interesting that the last two names on this list belong, respectively, to the least and to the most popular of famous American novelists. What is fame?

Roosevelt Hits Court Delay on New Deal Cases

Says Vacation Leaves PWA, TVA, SEC, Aluminum Suits Unsettled.

ciple would extend to the lower courts, by providing that district courts also return to their former size when judges over 70 retired.

No Compromise, Says Hatch.

Senator Hatch, who would accept no other substitute, does not regard it as a "compromise." He has contended throughout that he himself would not accept it as an instrument for changing the character of the court's opinions He originally drafted it as a "long-time" method of infusing new blood into the courts. He has said the President's plan does not accomplish this stated purpose.

Coincident with word the Hatch plan is the first focal point of Administration compromise efforts, one of the outstanding Administration supporters of a six-judge increase declared for the New Mexico Senator's proposal. He was Senator Sherman Minton (Democrat), of Indiana. Minton said the Hatch substitute is the most available of the compromise proposals, and he will support it

Also figuring in preliminary compromise discussions is the plan advanced in committee by Senator M. M. Logan (Democrat), of Kentucky, for gradual increases in the court size.

Logan, Hatch Plans Similar.

Originally, the Logan plan provided for two additional justices every year for every judge on the bench over 75. Logan later modified this, so it now largely conforms to the Hatch plan, except that 75 is retained as the retirement age, and it does not extend to the lower courts. It is believed Hatch would not fight over the age limitation, but would insist a similar principle be applied to the District courts.

There is reason to believe the Hatch proposal might have succeeded in the Judiciary Committee had the Administration at that time thrown support behind it. A number of the opposition Senators, as well as some Administration Senators, had indicated their sympathy with it. But one of these opposition Senators insisted last night the time for compromise has long since passed, and "the die is now cast on the original plan."

Administration hopes are said to center now on getting the best deal possible through the Senate, in belief that if any court bill can be pushed through the Senate it can be bettered in the House, and a satisfactory middle ground reached in conference between the two.

Sutherland to Stay.

Prospects the President would have more than one vacancy to fill before next fall, said to have been heavily banked on by the Administration, went aglimmering with last night's announcement by Justice Sutherland. Speculation recently had turned on Sutherland into retirement, during the recess. nito retirement, during the recess. Called at his home last night by The Post, Justice Sutherland confirmed reports he would not retire.

"I have no present intention of retiring," Sutherland said. "I fully expect to be back on the bench when the court meets again. Of course, it is always possible for one to change his mind, but that is my present intention."

Justice Sutherland added that he did not know of any other member of the court who plans to retire.

Senator Burke commented last night that "of course, no member of the court can afford to retire in the face of the President's astounding attack on the justices at his press conference today."

Urges Court Reform.

The President at his press conferences cited the court's recess for four months on June 2 as an illustration of the need for court reform.

As a result, he said, four Government cases important to the country must go over for six to eight months.

Among programs the President said would be held up because of the recess, he mentioned the TVA, PWA, with six favorable circuit court opinions, and the SEC cases, where both sides had asked for a decision.

The President said there is nothing in the statutes relating to court recesses, that the court's summer holidays were determined by their own volition. He said the justices had cleared their dockets except for six cases. He added all of these had been argued, but were put over for reargument next fall.

Cites Lower Courts.

Then the President turned to the lower courts, and said there were one or two cases there where the Government is getting no help. He said the Aluminum case was started in the Second Circuit, but enjoined by a Third Circuit judge, and the only course left is to carry it up through the Circuit Court of Appeals to the Supreme Court, and this might take a year.

He said the Supreme Court has the inherent right to help the lower courts with their work—that the situation could be cured but the Supreme Court has not suggested a remedy. He said the people want court reform—that prolonged litigation works against the poor man.

The President said he had nothing on court plan procedure to add to what Senator Robinson told reporters following his Thursday night White House conference.

House Adopts Tax-Dodging Compromise

Concessions on Publicity Made; 'Nuisance' Levy Bill Reported.

Cites Roosevelt's Power.

"Your committee recognized that many of these taxes are objectionable or contain objectionable features," said the Doughton report. "But the extension of these taxes for two years will not foreclose action on the part of Congress to remove them at an earlier date or revise them.

"In addition, the joint resolution extends to June 30, 1939, the power granted to the President under existing law to reduce the rates on nonlocal first class mail matter. Thus, if the President finds after a survey that conditions so warrant, he can reduce the 3-cent postage rate at any time."

The minority report, filed by Representative Treadway (Republican), of Massachusetts, and six other minority Ways and Means members, charged "an element of politics" in the two-year extension.

The committee Republicans said a one-year extension would require another extension resolution next year, "just prior to the congressional elections, which, of course, would work to the political disadvantage of the Democratic party."

Sees Democratic Gain.

The minority report suggested Democrats might contemplate bringing in a resolution next year to repeal the nuisance levies "and thus reap the political advantages which would result."

But aside from these arguments, the Republican minority said their opposition was based on continuance of the levies "until the Administration has first made an honest and earnest effort to reduce expenditures by elimination of extravangance and waste."

"The so-called 'nuisance' taxes are all consumption taxes," said the minority, "which fall most heavily on the poor and those least able to pay. They are also discriminatory in that they apply only to certain selected items."

With the compromise effected on the tax-dodging inquiry, and the nuisance tax extension favorably reported, it appeared next week's House calendar would be given over almost entirely to tax discussions.

Blocked by Maverick.

Tax investigation differences broke out in the House after the Senate, in double-time, authorized an investigation of tax evasion by a joint House and Senate committee. The resolution was blocked in the House the next day by Representative Maury Maverick, of Texas, and Representative O'Connor.

Sent to the Rules Committee, it was immediately modified to curtail extensive publicity provisions, and an entire section authorizing the joint committee to delegate hearing powers to Treasury officials was stricken out.

The compromise negotiated yesterday, if accepted by the Rules Committee, apparently would prevent another floor fight on the issue.

A report to House and Senate on committee findings would be mandatory.

downward to 30 hours. He recommended 40 cents an hour as a sound minimum wage, saying that it could be and should be paid by American industry.

In supporting, with qualifications, the minimum wage regulations of the bill, Green stipulated the federation supported them since these regulations dealt with a very limited, special class where annual wage earnings of $1,200 or less prevail, and represents a "portion of the industrial community where the principle of collective bargaining presents difficulties of application and so requires special protection from the Government."

He stressed the federation's unqualified opposition to general Federal wage regulation for men in private industry.

Green said:

"Any such proposal to deal with the fixing of general minimum wage standards by a Government fiat for men in private industry would be strenously opposed by the American Federation of Labor as contrary to our conception of democracy, and as violating the cardinal principle of self-government in private industry prevailing in this country."

"Way Is Open."

Green said flatly that the federation "is convinced that industry in general is now ready for a basic 30-hour work-week basis of employment and that it will in due course be so established. On the other hand, the federation appreciates full well that unorganized industry is generally established on a basic work-week basis closer to the 40-hour work-week, and that only in special and unusual cases should a longer basic work-week be tolerated."

Secretary Perkins, stating that "the failure to propose a substitute for the NRA was not due to lack of interest but to the forbidding language of the Supreme Court in holding the codes unconstitutional," added that "the way has now been opened."

She said: "With this vista cleared of constitutional debris, the view is still marred by the need for elimination of child labor and sweatshops and fair wages and a reasonable work-week."

Miss Perkins insisted that she had "no desire to see the NRA system re-enacted," but asserted that "its primary aims * * * are ideals which are profoundly worth striving for."

Expects Enforcement Trouble.

In line with Green's contentions, Secretary Perkins held that "great care should be exercised in framing this legislation to make certain that the objections of labor unions to the Federal Government taking over their functions and establishing minimum wages which have a tendency to bring down higher wages established by collective agreement be avoided."

In asserting enforcement of the act was "one of the greatest difficulties to be overcome," she expressed her doubts of the "wisdom of so broad an exemption as that contemplated which empowers the board to grant a blanket exemption to persons employing less than a certain number of employes." She asked that no exemptions of any kind be granted, and further urged the prohibition of industrial homework.

Today's Sermon

By the Rev. John W. Rustin,

Pastor, Mount Vernon Place Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

It is perfectly natural for a minister of religion to say that we need religion, but most of us know and admit that there is a real need for religion that is based on something far more fundamental than the statement of one of the cloth to that effect.

A famous psychologist has said, "Mankind either needs religion or some substitute for it not yet discovered." The experience of the human race is that we are so constructed that we need to feel that there is a higher power than ourselves to whom we can turn.

Religion is a tide that moves in among all of life's experiences. It is not a compartment of life, it is life itself. It is not something we may seek in distant places, it is ever with us, demanding our consideration. We hear it in the murmur of the waves by the seashore or in the rustle of the wind among the foliage on some distant mountain top. We feel it as we walk through the forest at evening time or stand alone in some beautiful garden. We see it in the smile of a babe or in the happy laughter of little children at play. Mankind has never outgrown this need.

All of every age and station stand in need of the grace which it alone supplies. "Without it the world has no meaning, existence no peace, death no refuge."

Evangelistic and Prophetic Bible Conference

Are we headed for the black midnight of the middle ages? Will frenzied Communism, Fascism, Nazism and Paganism plunge civilization into destruction?

Or is the world facing the imminent sunrise of Christ's Second Advent and the Golden Age for mankind?

Everyone in Washington should not fail to hear the inspiring, encouraging, hopeful message of

who has just returned from a two-year preaching tour of Europe, the Near East and the Holy Land, traveling 30,000 miles. He will describe the great spiritual Christian revivals that are occurring in the European hotbeds of Communism and Fascism. He will convince you that the greatest force in the world today is not human nor political but spiritual—the Holy Spirit of God at work in the Church of Jesus Christ, the world over.

CHRISTIAN AMERICANS AWAKE! The God of Finney and Moody still lives. Let us pray for a nation-wide revival.

Meetings begin Sunday morning, June 6, and continue for three weeks. Evangelist Nagel speaks each night except Mondays and Saturdays at 8 P. M. The character of these meetings will be undenominational so that all will feel welcome.

Gambling Play Holds Interest On Met. Screen

'Her Husband Lies' Owes Appeal to New Twists of Familiar Plot.

"HER HUSBAND LIES." Paramount picturization of a story by Oliver H. P. Garrett, adapted to the screen by Wallace Smith and Eve Greene, featuring Gail Patrick, Ricardo Cortez, Akim Tamiroff, Tom Brown, Louis Calhern, Dorothy Peterson, Jack La Rue, Ralf Harolde, Bradley Page and Ray Walker. Directed by Edward Ludwig. Reviewed Friday night by Arthur Branscombe.

A Hollywood special, entitled "Her Husband Lies," and featuring the big three of sin, sex and sentiment, was unveiled to show-seers yesterday at the Metropolitan. Ricardo Cortez, turning in one of his usual smart performances, supplied most of the sentiment and some of the sex; Gail Patrick handled most of the rest of the sex quite capably, and the sin was superbly put on by Akim Tamiroff, Jack LaRue and Bradley Page.

Everything starts off in a simple friendly atmosphere with "Spade" Martin, Mr. Cortez to you, taking Bullock, who is Mr. Tamiroff usually, for forty or fifty thousand a night at cards and gaining, strangely enough, his respect and affection for his trouble—in addition to the remuneration.

However, this can't last. This is drama, suggested, 'tis said, by the life of the late Arnold Rothstein, who died of lead poisoning, it seems, some years ago. Therefore, "Spade," the successful gambler, must keep his younger brother from the perils—and rewards—of the life.

Enter Kid Brother.

The younger brother, Tom Brown, whose freshness and life greatly help to relieve the tone of this opus, naturally resents being warned off, proceeds on his own hook, and the drama sinks into a welter of broken promises, crooked card games, hidden identities, sinister omens and deeds.

Eventually, it turns out as did the original Rothstein saga, for details of which see "Thrilling Murder Mysteries," Vol. 2, No. 4. Or don't even bother; just go down and see the film, since the screen characters are a lot easier on the eyes than the originals, any way, and the scene as Tom Brown and his personable bride, June Martel, broke but happy, head for home, is a lot easier to stomach than the original of Rothstein on the sidewalks of New York, horizontally.

By and large, "Her Husband Lies" is a well-played, strongly moving picture. If its motivation is a little twisted, if the theme is a little hard to take, it should be remembered that things happen like that in the pride of the Empire State. And any way, even if they didn't, this would still be a good story.

A number of short features, including one quite amazing reel on reactions of American sweepstakes winners, completes the bill.

"THIS IS MY AFFAIR." Twentieth Century-Fox picturization of a story by Allan Rivkin and Lamar Trott, starring Robert Haylor and Barbara Stanwyck, supported by Victor McLaglen, Brian Dnlevy, Frank Conroy, Sidney Blackmer and Robert McWade. Directed by William A. Seiter. Reviewed second week by Dorothea Lewis.

"This Is My Affair" is quite well worth seeing, buoyed up by the suspense of the truly hair-raising situation. As everyone but the anti-Taylorites probably knows by now, it deals with young Lieut. Richard Perry, U. S. N., who is entrusted with an important, dangerous and confidential mission by President McKinley and left in the shadow of the gallows without a champion or any shred of proof of his innocence of crime and murder when the President is assassinated.

It is an interesting legend and one that arouses real horror at Perry's plight. A considerable measure of additional suspense might have been created by keeping audience members in the dark as to Perry's identity and purpose for a while. As it happened, we were very much in the dark, because we arrived after the first 15 minutes of the play had been unreeled, and we thought young Perry in turn a cad, a criminal and a man with a mission.

Robert Taylor does a capable job as Perry, fortunately with less love-making and more action than his usual portion. He is probably better than we report, for we have taken to leaning over backward about this young man, whom we like very much and who hasn't yet shown or been allowed to show what we think he can do. His prison scenes are good, with a nice difference between his assumed terror and his later real despair. He still needs to be mussed up a bit.

Victor McLaghlen renders yeoman service as a not quite bright, but ominous, guy. Barbara Stanwyck is more repressed than usual, for which we are duly grateful, and she wears the period fashions with an air.

The subsidiaries are tops in cartoons and Pete Smith shorts.

Columbia

Loretta Young and Tyrone Power make a fine romantic pair in this comedy-romance of Paris in spring. Mr. Power is compelled by the gambling debt to take on the task of impersonating a youthful Russian nobleman, by way of winning Miss Young's favor—and fortune—but it doesn't turn out quite that way.

The whole sprightly scheme is engineered by Victor, in charge at the Cafe Metropole and involves a real Russian nobleman, working as a waiter in his restaurant, whose actual name inadvertently was appropriated by the masquerading young American. Out of this tangle of cross purposes there are evolved many amusing scenes, all of which are lent added charm by the richness of their embellishment.

Gregory Ratoff, Charles Winninger, Adolphe Menjon and Helen Westley are the principals who keep the plot blown up to balloon proportions at all times and each is beyond reproach in his respective role. Miss Westley seldom has been so much the dowager comedienne as in this subject.

The members of the supporting ensemble are no less proficient than those cast in the characters of primary importance in the working out of the frivolous story. Christian Rub leads the pack, as a weary and worried bookkeeper, for whom Victor is trying to get the money necessary to outsmart the auditors on the morrow.

Short sounds subjects and a new issue of the "Events of the Day" complete the bill assembled for this repeat engagement of a lively comedy on F street.

Nelson B. Bell About The Show Shops

'Kid Galahad' and Benny Goodman Score at Earle; Robert Montgomery and Benny Meroff Capitol Hits

"KID GALAHAD." Warner Brohers picturization of a story by Francis Wallace, adapted to the screen by Seton I. Miller, costarring Edward G. Robinson and Bette Davis, with Humphrey Bogart, William Haade, Jane Bryan, Harry Carey and Soledad Jimenez. Directed by Michael Curtiz. Previewed Sunday night, May 30.

This, to be sure, is a picture of the prize ring, its fighters, promoters and racketeers, but it contains so many elements of appeal that it should strike the popular fancy of feminine as well as masculine audiences. In fact, at yesterday's performances at the Earle it seemed to do precisely that.

BELL.

The story centers in the career of a bellhop in a Florida Hotel who knocks the world's heavyweight champion cold with one punch upon adequate provocation. He is picked up by a rival fight manager as a prospect for the title. And then complications begin to set in.

Nick Donati, the promoter, is enamored of "Fluff" Phillips and suspects that his new "boy" is too. To avoid the sinister threats of a rival outfit, it becomes necessary to hide "Kid Galahad" and he is taken surreptitiously, and without Donati's knowing it, to Donati's home in upstate New York. Here he meets his boss' kid sister, falls in love and life becomes still more complex.

Out of these situations has been woven a fast-moving and close-knit melodramatic romance that ends with a flash of fatal gunplay when Donati and "Turkey" Morgan shoot it out in a dressing room under the arena in which the "Kid" has just won the world championship. That seems to smooth the way for everybody except possibly the two boys who were knocked off.

Fight After Fight.

There is a great deal of apparently authentic ring stuff in this picture. I mean to say that the lads get in there and fight time after time as if their lives depended upon it—and under the circumstances of gunmen and gangsters, they did.

Edward G. Robinson and Humphrey Bogart are the rival promoters. They have been pitched into the pit together many times before and are the most earnestly belligerent pair of which this typewriter is aware. Robinson plays with his usual easy-going bravado and Bogart with his close-clipped speech and utterly omnious mien.

The two romantic roles are interpreted by Bette Davis, as "Fluff," the manager's "moll," and Jane Bryan, as his young sister, whom he tries to "shield" from the consequences of an honest love. Both of these actresses acquit themselves with high credit. Miss Davis, of course, is a veteran. Miss Bryan is a new ingenue, just coming along, and, as has been said here before, gives every indication of having what it takes.

That robust Spanish character actress, Soledad Jimenez, is prominently cast in the role of Donati's mother and translates her Castilian accents into those of Italian with fine success. Harry Carey, that veteran of the "horse operas" and latter-day features, also is cast in a role of some worth to the play as trainer for "Kid Galahad." There are, needless to say, many others who contribute to the merit of this outstanding film, foremost among them Wayne Morris, who plays the title role.

This Wayne Morris chap seems to be a youngster with a future before him. His screen personality is wholly agreeable and he acts with a naturalness and total unaffectedness that makes an immediate impression completely in his favor. How he looks as a fighter may be seen on this page.

Goodman Wins Ovation.

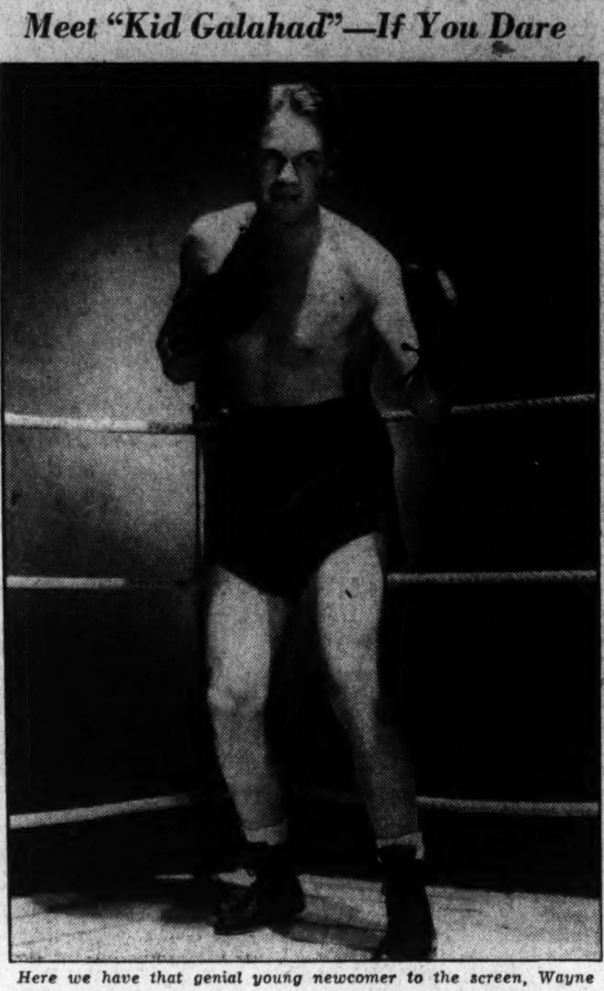
On the stage at the Earle this week, Benny Goodman and his orchestra are winning an ovation at every performance—and they are being put on so often they must think it is a continuous act they are doing. The Goodman band goes in largely for "swing" rhythms and plays tthem with a zest that knocked the audience right out of their pews yesterday afternoon.

He has with him on what, I believe, is his first visit to a Washington stage a considerable list of specialists—instrumentalists, singers, dancers and all of the other customary concomitants of this sort of turn. Foremost among them are Gene Krupa, Teddy Wilson, Lionel Hampton, Peg La Centra, Novak and Fay and Dale Winthrop.

It was difficult at the performance attended by this reviewer to establish the identities of many of these artists because the loudspeaker system had gone dead and Mr. Goodman's voice never got past the sixth row. We were sitting in about the twentieth.

But it all adds up to a bill of extravagant proportions and 100 per cent entertainment value, augmented by the new issue of the Paramount News and the pit orchestra's interludes, under the baton of Freddie Clark. Don't miss this one.

Meet "Kid Galahad"—If You Dare



Here we have that genial young newcomer to the screen, Wayne Morris, as he appears in the title role of "Kid Galahad," the prize-fight picture now on view on the screen at the Earle Theater. This young man seems to be a fine prospect for early stardom, what with his good looks, poise, pleasant voice and all.

'Night Must Fall' Offers Star Unique Role on Bill With Band.

"NIGHT MUST FALL." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of a play by Emlyn Williams, adapted to the screen by John Van Druten, with a musical score by Edward Ward, costarring Robert Montgomery and Rosalind Russell, with Dame May Whitty, Alan Marshall, Merle Tottenham, Kathleen Harrison, E. E. Clive and Beryl Mercer. Directed by Richard Thorpe. Previewed Tuesday, June 1.

It is an odd sort of film play that the spectator will encounter when he views "Night Must Fall," at Loew's Capitol this week. Not in any sense a mystery play—nothing is kept from the knowledge of the audience—it still takes rank as one of the most blood-chilling exhibits that has come along since the era of "Frankenstein," "White Zombies" and the rest of the line of nerve-tinglers.

"Night Must Fall" is the story of a gay and debonair young Irishman, who "has a way with him" with women—especially elderly and susceptible women who have reached the "grateful age" in their invalid chairs. But they must have money, or something else of value worth appropriating. Then Master Danny lays his trap of flattery, flippant jest, apparent kindliness and constant attention into which the dowagers inevitably fall. The next step is to decapitate them, hide the body and carry the head around in a hatbox.

It should not be understood that all this is revealed on the screen. That would be a little too morbid. But there never is any doubt in the mind of the observer as to precisely what has happened in Danny's past and what is to happen in his future. It is as plain as day. For this reason, "Night Must Fall" takes on an exaggerated stature as a giant among recent melodramatic releases. It is played with buoyance, laughter and spirit, yet always in the background is the dire threat of more murder to come. And it does come.

Night Falls.

Supreme egotist, cocksure and defiant of the world and the orderly procedures of society and the law, Danny harbors the futile conviction that he is the man who can commit the perfect crime and never be detected. There is one young woman in the household of Mrs. Bramson, however, who suspects everything he does and penetrates the deep-seated evil lurking in the back of his mind. She is his eventual undoing. And when night falls, Danny is headed straight for the gallows, all of his fine delusions of grandeur dissipated into thin air and thinner reality.

All this may sound like a drama of such ominous import as to be thoroughly distasteful, but that is not at all the case. It is a fascinating study of a war of wits, leavened with a little dash of romance—for the girl rather loves the glib young scoundrel—and enlivened by some clever and pert dialogue. It is, as I have said, a plot and treatment for which there seems to be no counterpart in the earlier records of the cinema.

Robert Montgomery, in the role of Danny, presents a character study unlike any he ever before has brought to the screen. His brogue is perfect and well maintained, and throughout the length of the picture, so far as I was able to judge, he was guilty of no lapse from the requirements of his exacting role. It is a deft, suave and villainous job that Montgomery does here, and he does it extremely well—better than anyone ever would have guessed from the playboy parts he has played in what is technically known as "sophisticated comedy." In the opposite role, Rosalind Russell performs a little too icily to suit this fallible taste, but still contrives to give the drama point and lend the climax power.

Meroff Is a Hit

The Capitol stage is occupied by Benny Meroff and his orchestra this week and it is a right merry scramble that he puts on. Always one of the most energetic and progressive of showmen, Meroff on this visit is introducing "jibe music." I still don't know just what "jibe music" is, but it sounded all right yesterday afternoon.

There are a flock of specialists with the Meroff ensemble who lend variety and speed to his bill. Jack Marshall is probably one of the most grotesque singing comedians known to the boards; Florence Gast is a singing comedienne and dancer, late of the Ziegfeld "Follies." In private life, I am led to believe, she is Mrs. Benny Meroff. Then there are Larry Powell, Miss Sonia, the Waltzers and the New Orleans Jibers, supposed to be the originators of this sort of thing. All very grand and a smash hit.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDDLER

HOLLYWOOD, June 4.—There is no quicker road to complete oblivion than to be the former husband of a movie actress. Even as a current husband of a star, the average man ranks rather insignificantly. But as a former husband, he dwindles to the obscurity of a Vice President. If you think I am talking just to fill space, try identifying a few of the following names.

MIRIAM HOPKINS

* * * *

Who is Brandon Peters? Who are D. W. Pratt and Ludlow Smith? To which stars were Jack Pepper and John Cecil Lawrence married? If you can correctly mate off more than two of these gentlemen, your movie IQ is upper bracket. Yet Brandon Peters was once married to Miriam Hopkins. Mrs. D. W. Pratt was none other than Edna Mae Oliver. Ludlow Smith was the husband of Katharine Hepburn. Jack Pepper dueted "I do" with Ginger Rogers, and John Cecil Lawrence is not so long divorced from Elissa Landi.

* * * *

Where are those exs today? Probably lolling in the comfort of no longer being husbands of famous women, if you ask me. And where is Lydell Peck, who objected to being called Mr. Janet Gaynor? And George Webb, who once said "Give me two more years of Ralston (he was Esther's husband) and we'll both be set for life?" They were divorced a few months later.

* * * *

Somehow, a screen star's husband reminds me of a chip of wood in a rippling brook. Bouncing merrily along, holding the eye until it reaches a bend in the stream, then gone forever.

* * * *

* * * *

I visited Jean Harlow's dress room yesterday and found her fitting hats for her next picture. One by one she settled new chapeaux on her head, and boy oh boy were some of them oddities. Jean must have agreed with me, because time and again she grinned amusedly at her mirrored reflection. At last she came upon a little number that pleased her. "This one's pretty," she said, "and it becomes me." Then she sighed, "But can't you throw on an extra feather and apple and maybe a bird. I'm afraid it isn't funny enough to be in style."

* * * *

The other Thursday evening (Robert Montgomery told me this), Bob answered his doorbell, it being servants' night out. He was confronted by a pleasant appearing young woman whose manner and voice were arresting. In few words she explained that she was seeking a secretarial position. Montgomery was so flabbergasted by her forthright and reasonable approach that he gave her a job then and there. "She's panned out swell," he told me today. "Darn efficient and clever. But I might have known she would be," he added, "when she was smart enough to call on Thursday night, knowing I would likely come to the door myself."

Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson

Bidding duels between partners can have only one outcome and that is a nice, fat present to the opponents. These duels not only boost the partnership to a level unwarranted by the respective holdings, but in the heat of anger and resentment that each holds for the other at being outbid, the final contract is apt to be in the very worst suit. I recently watched one of these vendettas in New York. This was the hand:

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ A K 8 4 ♡ 7 5 4 ♢ 8 ♣ Q J 9 6 5
♠ Q 10 7 5 3 2 ♡ 10 8 ♢ J 7 6 ♣ A 4	North West East South	♠ 9 ♡ A Q 3 ♢ K 10 5 4 ♣ K 10 8 3 2
	♠ J 6 ♡ K J 9 6 2 ♢ A Q 9 3 2 ♣ 7

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	Pass	1♢
1♡	1♠	2♣	Pass
2♢	Pass	2 N T	Pass
3♢	Pass	3 N T	Double
4♢	Pass	Pass	Double
Pass	Pass	Pass

It was East's mild little diamond bid that started all the trouble. East later told me that he had almost thrown the hand in but, even though he thought there was virtually no chance for a game, had decided to open it because he knew the opponents were far from expert.

Although any opening was questionable, the diamond selection was correct in that it left two clubs open as a possible rebid should West answer with one spade or one notrump. South's heart overcall was logical as were West's spade and North's two club bids. East was delighted to pass over two clubs, but this apparently supine action caused South to draw quite an erroneous inference from East's first bid. He jumped to the conclusion that the diamond bid had been "phoney." Of course this was an illogical assumption, considering that East's bid had been fourth hand. South's two diamond bid had unexpected repercussions.

West, not knowing just what was going on, discreetly retired from the bidding, and North then started on a suicide ride by mentioning two no-trump. East again "gave the opponents rope." South, having no love of notrump with his two five-card suits, persisted with three diamonds and North, totally overlooking the fact that he could give the preference bid at this point of three hearts, stubbornly repeated the no-trump. East decided that he had waited long enough and stepped in with a double. When South took this out to four diamonds North was too angry to return to the first-named suit (hearts) and disgustedly passed. The result was not a happy one for North and South.

West opened the ten of hearts, which was allowed to ride to South's Jack. On the club return West hopped up with the Ace and shifted to spades. Overlooking the fact that East was hardly likely to have three spades, declarer led a spade back to the Ace, hoping to get a discard on the King. But East ruffed the Ace, and from that point a cross-ruff developed, resulting in a 1,400-point penalty.

Four hearts should never have been reached but at least it could not have been severely punished.

New York, June 4.

HOMER S. CUMMINGS: Brian McMahon, your chief assistant, attended the Ellis Parker trials in Newark. The news photographers asked him to pose, exhibiting some official messages from you in connection with the Hauptmann case. McMahon obliged and posed in front of Newark's Federal Building. But despite a frantic search, he couldn't locate any Department of Justice message or document . . . One cameraman placed a telegram in his hand. Without stopping to read it McMahon unfolded it—and posed that way—displaying the wire . . . That "Department of Justice document" actually was a telegram sent from a sports editor to a reporter. It read: "Your horse won in the seventh race. Best bets for tomorrow are . . . !"

BETTE DAVIS: Your mother visited the set while you were making "Marked Woman." It was her first visit to a Hollywood lot, and the officials wondered what her reaction would be. They didn't wonder for long. Your mother asked the director for a one-day job as an extra. She was paid $5 for an unbilled appearance in that movie . . . Will Hayes: A Hollywood actor has doubled his weight since appearing in pictures. He's Andy Devine, who once weighed 140 pounds, now 280.

* * * *

EDDIE CANTOR: Ben Freedman, son of the late Dave Freedman who was your script writer, won the Adam Leroy Jones prize in logic at Columbia University this week. Ben, who is 17, is a junior at that college. Dave Franklin: Eight band leaders will feature your new hit song, "The Merry-Go-Round Broke Down." Eddie Jackson: Jimmie Durante, your former partner, is Hollywood-bound for his movie comeback. Lou Clayton, before letting him sign, will demand that the picture be right. In the meantime the score for Durante's next show will be written by Lew Brown and Ray Henderson.

* * * *

BARBARA HUTTON: Reggie Gardiner is telling of the circus strong man who held an orange in his right hand, squeezed every drop from it and then offered $50 to anyone in the crowd who could squeeze another drop from the fruit . . . A 6-footer in the crowd tried squeezing the orange, in vain. He was followed by a short, thin man, who succeeded in squeezing out three more drops . . . The manager of the show paid the $50 and then said: "This is the first time anybody's ever been able to do this. What business are you in?" . . . "I," the man explained, "am a buyer for Woolworth's!"

* * * *

PEGGY FEARS: A. C. Blumenthal drove to his Westchester home Monday afternoon with Gloria Swanson, Lady Furness and Gloria Vanderbilt. At 2:30 p. m. they stopped at the Glen Island Casino and demanded luncheon—although the place opens at 7 p. m. Headwaiter Tardie agreed to serve them, and served were the foursome—in a desolate room usually occupied by a thousand customers. Blumenthal then demanded music with his meals, and paid Tardie $20 to play the piano for them. Marc Connelly: Jules Garfield, of "Having Wonderful Time," went to the Crisis Cafe and sent out for a wedding gift for Frank Gould, whose role calls for him to lament: "Oh, if I only had a radio." Garfield bought him a radio.

* * * *

DARRYL ZANUCK: Last year Jack Haley turned down a job for which George Burns recommended him. It called for him to take over Dick Powell's program, but the shy Haley felt he couldn't fill it. Now, as a result of his portrayal of the mike-frightened singer in "Wake Up and Live," Haley was signed to star on his own program. Cinema Arts Magazine: Congratulations. Your new issue is excellent. Weather Bureau: The night club cooling systems offer the best relief during these hot spells. The Versailles has been the most pleasant spot these warm nights. Jerome Weidman: Your book, "I Can Get It for You Wholesale," is a best seller at 1400 Broadway—the building where your hero had his office.

* * * *

MINSKY BROTHERS: Across the street from the darkened burlesque houses on Forty-second street the Harris Theater is packing 'em in with the movie, "King of Burlesque." Walter Wanger: You'd better hurry up and finish that picture, "Fifty-second Street," or else the customers will ask: "What Fifty-second street?" Last night only three night clubs on that street had their signs illuminated. Press Photographers Association: Rudy Vallee, who has had a number of fights with some of your members, now punches the bag every day at the Midtown Gym. Blue Book: Muriel King, the designer, is opening a new shop in the midtown sector. Her backers are Mr. and Mrs. Sonny Whitney.

Hot Weather Speeds Diplomats' Vacations

Many Set Dates for Departure to Homelands Or to Cooler Portions of United States, Besides Group Already Departed.

The hot weather of the last few days has given an extra impetus to the plans of diplomats going away for the summer. Many of those who have not already sailed for their homelands have already set dates to leave the Capital shortly for Europe or for cooler parts of these United States.

Next week-end will see the Brazilian Ambassador and Senora de Aranha, with their daughter, Miss Zazi Aranha, installed at Ophir, the house they have leased for the summer near Leesburg. Last year they spent the season at Bluemont.

Senora de Espil, wife of the Argentine Ambassador, will leave early next month for Narragansett Pier, R. I., where she and Senor Espil have leased Sea Dawn, a villa on the Boston Neck road. This is a picturesque section of Narragansett, where many of the villas command a superb view of the bay and the Atlantic Ocean. The Ambassador will remain in Washington throughout most of the summer, joining Senora de Espil for week-ends. This will be their first summer there.

The Albanian Minister, Mr. Faik Konitza, is returning again to Swampscott, Mass., where he spent last summer. However, he does not plan to leave until the end of July, returning to Washington in the early fall. The Minister of Sweden and Mme. Bostrom are sailing today from New York for their home. Mme. Eickhoff, wife of the Counselor of the Danish Legation, has already departed to spend the summer in Copenhagen, and M. Eickhoff will join her later in the summer. Mme. Lucet, wife of the Attache of the French Embassy, is sailing shortly for France to spend the summer, although M. Lucet is remaining in Washington. The Ambassador of France is among the few foreign envoys who expect to spend most of the summer in Washington. He and Mme. Bonnet will not sail for France until the end of August.

Mallets Sail Wednesday.

The Counselor of the British Embassy and Mrs. Victor Mallet will sail next Wednesday for their home near Bath, England, where they will spend the summer. Rehobeth Beach, always a popular resort with Washington residents, will have among its vacationists the Austrian Minister and Mme. Prochnik, the Colombian Minister and Senora de Lopez—they leave next week-end—and the Commercial Secretary of the British Embassy and Mrs. Heywood.

Meanwhile, the envoys who remain in Washington will be busy with official entertaining, even though the supposedly dull season is approaching. Next week members of a Japanese economic mission who have been touring the country studying American industrial methods will arrive in Washington. The Japanese Ambassador, Mr. Hirosi Saito, is giving a luncheon for them on Thursday, June 10, and the Secretary of Commerce, Mr. Daniel C. Roper, will also entertain for them at his home on Woodland drive.

Mrs. Biddle Honored by Club Women

Made Honorary Member of Takoma Park Group at Luncheon.

Mrs. Walter P. Harman Takes Office as New President.

By Jessie Ash Arndt.
The Post Club Editor.

MRS. WALTER P. HARMAN received the gavel as incoming president of the Takoma Park Woman's Club yesterday afternoon at its annual luncheon and Mrs. Lloyd W. Biddle, president of the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs, was made a member emeritus. The luncheon, attended by 150 guests, was given at the Columbia Country Club in Chevy Chase, with Mrs. Byron M. Coon, retiring president, presiding.

Mrs. Coon presented the honorary membership to Mrs. Biddle, who has been a member of the Takoma Park club for 20 years and was its president from 1921 to 1923. After expressing her appreciation, the guest addressed the women on some of the projects of the federation. She emphasized the progress of the auxiliary to the Police Boys Club and urged an interest in the Boys Club work as a means of promoting good citizenship among the youths. She also outlined briefly the safety project the federation will begin in the fall.

Officers, in addition to Mrs. Harman, who assumed their duties at the annual luncheon were Mrs. Paul Burk, first vice president; Mrs. Edmond Graham, second vice president; Mrs. Charles S. Howard, recording secretary; Mrs. F. A. Shumaker, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Frank J. Hopkins, treasurer; Mrs. Byron M. Coon, Mrs. Frank Zundel and Mrs. Thomas Marshall, directors.

The affair was arranged by Mrs. Zundel, luncheon chairman, assisted by Mrs. Graham, Mrs. J. N. Quinn, Mrs. Clarence S. Ross, of Takoma Park, and Mrs. James A. Councilor, of Shepherd Park, D. C., and Mrs. Frederick C. Lincoln, of Barnaby Woods, Md.

Members of the garden section, under Mrs. Quinn, arranged the table decorations, flowers from their own gardens. In the center of the speaker's table was a large silver bowl with tall red roses, blue bachelor buttons and white feverfew. The other bouquets were a variety of early summer blossoms.

The program included music by the club choral and readings by Kathryn Hopper, who presented "Aunty Doleful," "Distracted Mother" and "Tired Tim." The choral, under the direction of Mrs. Edmund L. Green, and accompanied by Mrs. Walter Peacock, sang a Berceuse, written by Mrs. Dudley C. Jackson, one of the members of the music section, and presented in public for the first time yesterday. It was a five-part chorus, a transcription of a selection originally written by Mrs. Jackson for the organ. The choral also sang "June Rhapsody," by Mabel Daniels, American woman composer.

Mrs. Byron M. Coon, left, retiring president of the Takoma Park Woman's Club, bestows the gavel on Mrs. Walter P. Harman, new president, who took office yesterday at the annual luncheon at Columbia Country Club.

"MADAME CHAIRMAN"

HAWAIIAN LEIS always have appealed to me as picturesque and rather romantic—now I am impressed with their usefulness. I'd like to have several of the kind Mrs. Alice P. Broughton received before she left Honolulu for Washington to attend the W. C. T. U. convention—made of dimes, $5 worth. Every coin was wrapped in colored cellophane, so that the lei was as bright as a Christmas wreath. Its great advantage, of course, is that it can be picked apart and spent, and even when it's all pulled to pieces, as long as there's a single celephane petal left, no one can say it's not worth a dime."

* * * *

AND while we're on the subject of the W. C. T. U.—the banquet tonight promises to be quite a sizable party, with two hotels needed to accommodate all the guests. The Willard ballroom will have about 1,200 and the Washington ballroom in the neighborhood of 1,000. Each State will have a table at which the State president will preside and souvenirs will be characteristic of the section.

* * * *

REPRESENTATIVE EDITH NOURSE ROGERS, who had a part in the passage of the bill to invite the world conference to meet in the Capital, will be in the receiving line at the reception in Constitution Hall which will follow tonight's banquet.

Being an early bird herself, she is inviting the Massachusetts delegates to have breakfast with her at the Capitol Tuesday morning. Several of her colleagues also have been asked to the breakfast party, which is NOT "brunch"—it's at 8:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Mark Lansburgh, president of the Washington section of the National Council of Jewish Women, will open her home Tuesday afternoon for a garden musicale. Mrs. Lillian Krick, a pupil of Robert Ruckman, will present a piano program, at 3 o'clock followed by tea. The proceeds will go to the camp fund of the organization.

Head of Pen Women Here for Meetings

Mrs. Hoyt is entertaining at luncheon today for her daughter and her friend, Romona Randall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Randall.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

ALICE HUGHES.

WELL, our "Swing Alley" is sort of cooling off for the summer. That's the block of West Fifty-second street, between fancy Fifth and soggy Sixth avenues, which sports over 30 night clubs of all types and sizes, and is the scene of more concentrated insanity than any comparable area in the world, probably.

Some of the deadfalls are big and dignified, like 21, or Jack and Charlie's. It's the street's chief celebrity trap, and mere people like you and I could hardly get in with a search warrant. Almost next door is Leon and Eddie's, which is louder and funnier, with a boisterous floor show. Still further along is the famous Tony's, haunt of the smart New Yorkerish crowd, and once beloved of Bob Benchley, John O'Hara and Dorothy Parker.

Across the street is a row of smaller places, most of them very loud, small, crowded and airless, much like the cellar speakeasies of the twenties. One of them, the 18 Club, has been packed nightly by devotees of a great yet not widely known buffoon, Jack White. At another, the Onyx, Farley and Riley started that "Music Goes Round" madness, which, thank goodness, died pretty rapidly. And yet, on that incredible street, there is still room for some grand old mansions, inhabited by a Rhinelander, a Tilford and a Wagstaff! Several of these homes, during prohibition, carried signs reading "This is not a speakeasy!" In June the crazy street slows down, with its dogged merrymakers to be found at the Long Island beach clubs. But it is only cat-napping—next fall it will be madder than ever!

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—What has Nebraska got that we haven't? Only the other day we had a cyclone in the suburban town of Greenwich, Conn., something almost unheard of in these parts. True, it was only a baby, but it caused a 10-foot waterspout in the lake of the town park, and made us feel pretty pretty wide-open-spaces.

* * * *

The mighty nave of our looming Cathedral of St. John the Divine is now being used for sacred concerts and meetings, a very beautiful and thrilling place. But it won't do for concerts, they've found, as the echoes are appalling.

* * * *

This town's dancingest beau is Harry Evans, who will be found shaking a shoe wherever the pretty girls gather and the music plays. Harry edits a magazine in the daytime, but he's happiest among his rhumbas. And all the girls like to step with Harry, he's that good on the floor . . . One of the cleverest, most competent young misses here is Frances MacFadden, who is the girl behind the scenes at Harper's Bazaar. That magazine's fashion scouts are not required to be writers as well as expert clothes-spotters, and it is Frances who puts in shape the mass of material they bring in. And the book is remarkable for its high and even literary tone.

Conde Nast, the publisher who is also locally famous as a party-giver in his beautiful pent-house, has just given one to honor three of the women implicated in our smash comedy, "The Women"—Claire Boothe, the author; Margalo Gillmore, who plays the good wife, and Ilka Chase, who portrays the horrid feline of the piece. It's a mark of some distinction to get one of the Nastian engraved bids to these things—and the very sight of his beautiful home is worth dressing up for.

Senator Tom Connally to Make Presentation on Tuesday.

Memento of Lone Star State Will Rest in Memory Garden.

SENATOR TOM CONNALLY, of Texas, Tuesday will present to the National Girl Scouts' Little House, 1750 New York avenue, a native Texas limestone, to be placed in the memory garden with stones, trees and shrubs from other States.

Mrs. Frederick Brooke, member of the national board of the Girl Scouts, will accept the stone for the 400,000 Girl Scouts who have a part in the national Little House. A group of Washington girls will take part in the ceremony.

Mrs. James V. Allred, wife of the Governor of Texas, in a ceremony at the Governor's Mansion in Austin, Tex., presented the stone to the Texas Girl Scouts, to send to Washington. It is carved as a five-pointed Texas star from a piece of shell cordova, and a bronze plaque carries the inscription, "To Perpetuate the Ideals of Scouting." Also on the plaque are the names of Mrs. Allred, Mrs. F. W. Posey, Girl Scout commissioner of Austin; Mrs. Frank Spiller, local director, and Mrs. Carl Nesbit, of the Austin Girl Scout Council, who visited the national Little House, and instigated the gift.

In memory garden stones from other States include a copper ore rock from Butte, Mont., Girl Scouts; a stone from the foundation of the Mary Todd Lincoln home, sent by Lexington, Ky., Girl Scouts; a coquina stone from the Florida Girl Scouts; "Lava" from Mount Tom Reservation, Northampton, Mass.; a stone from the Rapidan Camp in Virginia, presented by the national president of the Girl Scouts, Mrs. Herbert Hoover; a stone once used as ballast in the early sailing ships and later for paving, was sent by the New Orleans Girl Scouts; a granite piece from North Carolina, and the most recent one is Tennessee marble from the first-class Girl Scout troop of Johnson City, Tenn.

There is the Buckeye tree from the Ohio Girl Scouts; a laurel shrub from Connecticut and box trees from Gunston Hall, Va. The herb garden contains American and English thyme, lavender, sage, caraway, peppermint, parsley, fennel and spearmint. There is also the camelia japonica from Savannah, Ga., the home of Juliette Lowe, which was planted by Mrs. Roosevelt, only a short time ago.

Legal Sorority to Honor Judge Annabel Matthews

Phi Delta Delta to Give Luncheon Today at Arlington for New Women's Bar Head and Member of Law Society.

JUDGE ANNABEL MATTHEWS, newly elected president of the Women's Bar Association, an organization of more than 250 lawyers, will be honored at a luncheon to be given today at Rixey Mansion, Arlington, Va., by members of her legal sorority, the Phi Delta Delta.

Miss Matthews' career has brought her in close touch with lawyers and judges throughout the country, and her work is regarded as a monument to women's achievement in law. Born and educated in Georgia, she taught in the public schools of that State following her graduation from Brenau College until 1914, when she accepted an appointment in Washington as technical clerk in the Bureau of Internal Revenue. Seeing an opportunity for advancement by acquiring legal training, she began the study of law and was admitted to the bar of the District of Columbia shortly after her graduation from the Washington College of Law, in 1921. Later, she was admitted to the bar of Georgia, and of the Supreme Court of the United States.

Harris & Ewing.

JUDGE ANNABEL MATTHEWS.

Her services as an attorney and tax expert in the Bureau of Internal Revenue were recognized by President Hoover in 1930 by her appointment to the U. S. Board of Tax Appeals, one of the highest positions in Federal service. This was the first time a woman had received such an appointment. Miss Matthews previously had represented the United States at the international conference on double taxation, in London in 1927, and served in a similar capacity at Geneva the following year.

Today's luncheon is in charge of Ellyne E. Strickland, Judge Fay L. Bentley, Helen R. Carloss, Lucy Somerville Howorth, Grace B. Knoeller, Ina D. Russell and Kathleen D. Smith. Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt and Mrs. Dora Shaw Heffner, both past presidents of the sorority, expect to attend.

Beta Chapter of Phi Delta Delta will hold its annual pledge party this evening at the home of Miss Dorothy Dorian in Bethesda, Md. A buffet supper will be served on the lawn following the pledge service in charge of Miss Elpie Carlson.

Those to be pledged will be Elizabeth M. Espey, Mrs. Lucille K. Fitzgerald, Margaret M. Heinmiller, Berniece-Jane Hicks, Alice Schlinger, Edith E. Edwards, Dorothy Jackson and Mildred Thissell.

Arranging the party with Miss Dorian are Mrs. Julia Hopkins, Miss Nora Rentz, Miss Marion Goshorn and Mrs. Nadine Gallagher.

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Logan Clendening.

NO MATTER how true the remark of old Robert Burton that every man should be a law unto himself about diets, he must include certain fundamental, basic things in order to eat a balanced diet. These are meats, dairy products, breadstuffs, vegetables, fruits, sugar and sugary foods, fat and fatty foods, and such miscellaneous foods as condiments, soups and beverages.

However, it is not necessary for him to take exactly the same amount of each as his neighbor does, nor the same form of each. There are substitutes for many of these things. For instance, in the realm of meat there are a great many things that could be substituted for those who are afraid of meat, or who have been told they should not eat it.

Anglo-Saxon people and people of northern Europe, particularly, are very fond of meat. As a matter of fact, it occupies a high position in the diet of most people. Different kinds of meat, however, differ very little in composition. Almost all meats contain a certain amount of fat; even lean meat contains 18 per cent. Meats are all good sources of phosphorus and iron. They are good blood builders, although muscle meats are not as good blood builders as organs, such as liver and kidneys.

The amount of meat that is eaten by the average person depends very largely on his financial condition, for it is the most expensive of all foods.

It is possible, however, to live without meats by using substitutes. Such a meat substitute list is given by Dr. Lewis R. Wolberg as follows: Cottage cheese, eggs, buttermilk, koumyss, whole milk, skim milk, sour milk.

People in the Near East eat very little meat, but they use a great deal of nuts, wheat and rice. Nuts and leguminous vegetables, such as beans and peas, are good substitutes for meat, and are the cheapest source of protein.

Dr. Wolberg says: "While the proteins of nuts and soybeans are fairly adequate (though not nearly as efficient as the proteins of milk, eggs and flesh), the proteins of dry peas and beans (navy, kidney, lima, frijolis) are of much lower biologic value. Canning does not materially alter legumes such as peas and beans. Legumes are good sources of phosphorus and iron, but poor sources of calcium, sodium and chlorin. Vitamin B is supplied in good quantity, especially by navy, kidney and soybeans; however, vitamins A and C are either low or lacking.

"Legumes and nuts may therefore be used as sources of protein in the diet, but it is necessary to consume, in addition, milk or meat in order to supplement the deficiencies of the protein.

"Eggs are an extremely nutritious element of the diet, helping to build blood, muscle and bone. The yolk of egg is richer in protective materials than the white.

College Girls Becoming Domestic, Home Economics Dean Observes

Girls Are Openly Preparing for Matrimony, Says Miss Mount.

By Malvina Lindsay.

NERVOUS MEN who see a woman jumping out from under every typewriter table to grab their jobs may be reassured to learn that college girls are turning their eyes toward husbands, bungalows and apartments. What is more, they are openly admitting it.

Only a few years ago, says Dean Marie Mount of the College of Home Economics of the University of Maryland, which today graduates about 35 young women, it was difficult to find a home economics student who was openly preparing for matrimony and homemaking. The girls—at least according to their own stories—were training to teach, demonstrate food, be dieticians or follow other careers. But now increasing proportions of them come boldly out and say they are preparing to manage their own homes.

"Of course the girls who talked about their 'careers' no doubt harbored private intentions toward matrimony and homes—sooner or later," said Dean Mount. "But the interesting thing about the present college girl is that she is sincere and open in her interest in domesticity."

Few Working Wives.

What is more, points out Dean Mount, the home economics graduate of today is inclined to look on homemaking as a full-time job. She does not want to work after marriage if she can afford not to. However, if she does combine marriage and work, she is not apt to let the home end of the partnership be neglected.

All of this, believes Dean Mount, points the moral that the home has been gaining caste in the last few years. She attributes a part of this attitude to the depression.

"The home attained greater importance during the acute economic struggle," she said. "Before that many people had taken it for granted. But the depression drove families back into the home. It also showed them how important a knowledge of homemaking was in the general matter of economy—in making the pennies go as far as possible.

"Another thing, women today are finding the home more interesting. It is no longer a place of drudgery. The woman in the home can lead a more interesting life. She can do a creative job in the scientific preparation of food, in interior decoration, in managing people, in developing the right psychological atmosphere. Labor-saving devices give her time for club and community activities."

Study Home Harmony.

The psychological side of homemaking is particularly engrossing both to college girls and to older women just now, according to Dean Mount. Family relationships form one of the most appealing studies to girls in the Maryland College of Home Economics.

"Learning to get along with people and adapt one's self to group life is a very important phase of homemaking training today," she said. "In the era of the large family the matter largely took care of itself."

Seniors in home economics at the University of Maryland are given this training both in an academic and a practical way. They have their class work in child psychology, then the experience of dealing with children in the nursery school. They study heredity, family organization, personal adjustments and finances—the rock on which many a home has been split—then try out what they have learned in the home management house, in which each girl must reside six weeks.

Graduate—1937 Model.

Surveying the girl graduate of 1937, Dean Mount is optimistic. She finds a new independence and initiative in girls—a new maturity. The spirit of defeatism that manifested itself in youth in the closing years of the depression has passed, she believes.

"College girls seem to be more self-reliant and able to go after their own jobs than formerly," she said. "They know what they want and seek it out instead of wistfully waiting. They are not so timid, not so dependent on parents and teachers. It is encouraging to note that about 20 per cent of our undergraduates voluntarily work in hospitals, camps, tea rooms, playgrounds and similar places in summer to increase their fitness."

Sincereity is another outstanding quality of the 1937 girl graduate, according to Dean Mount. She is also socially minded—in the broader sense—and is likely to have an interest in hobbies. And—lest she should seem too noble and earnest—let it be remembered that she has an absorbing concern in her looks and her clothes.

Call this last the glamour craze if you like. Dean Mount calls it the "longing for self-improvement" and thinks it is a very good thing indeed.

"College girls today recognize that clothes, appearance, personality are big factors in their success and happiness," she said. "They are going after these things in a definite and intelligent way."

Harris & Ewing.

DEAN MARIE MOUNT, of the College of Home Economics of the University of Maryland, says the 1937 girl graduate is sincere, independent, self-reliant, also interested in clothes and beauty.

Hems of Evening Gowns Are Higher

Slim ankles and sandal shod feet, coyly covered by the sweeping line of evening frocks for many seasons, will appear in the open once more this summer as fashion decrees the raised hemline for hours after dark.

Another departure in hemlines for evening is the slightly raised skirt in front with the back still touching the floor. This uneven line, which Paris is now proclaiming as the season's last word, was introduced in Southern resorts earlier this year at smart centers in Miami and Palm Beach.

Although evening frock hems are not confined to any particular length, the mode for daytime calls for considerably shorter skirts, 12 inches from the floor being the current length. Thus footwear becomes particularly important.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Married to Man She Doesn't Love, Wife Has Twice Been Unfaithful; Half-Crazed, She Asks Advice.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: It will sound terrible to put my problem in writing, but that's what I'm going to do. I am bringing it to you, hoping for the truth—for common sense, unsentimental advice. I am married to a man I don't love. I do love another man. My marriage was always impossible but I haven't the moral courage to break loose, for I dread what may be the ensuing confusion. Recently I have been going out with the other man. This has made my marriage seem all the more impossible.

* * * *

"What is wrong with my marriage?" you ask. The answer is—everthing . . . There is something wrong with my husband. Just what it is, I don't know; but I understand it could be one of a number of things. It has been a source of great worry to me but it is by no means the whole trouble. We haven't a thing in common. We have nothing to talk about and we never go any place together. I am about to lose my mind over the situation.

* * * *

To make matters worse, my conscience bothers me about the other man. I have twice been unfaithful to my husband. It sounds terrible, really, and yet I'm not the sort of person you might suppose from reading this confession. Naturally you would like to know more about "the other man." But it is hard to give an unbiased picture of someone you love, don't you think? In my opinion, he is all that he should be, but I suppose the rest of the world would think him a rat.

* * * *

He has asked me to marry him but I have not taken his proposals seriously. I sort of thought he might be using them to mold me to his ways, for his purposes. And I am convinced I did wrong. Now I want you to tell me what is the right thing to do. Shall I leave my husband? Should I continue having an affair on the side rather than hurt him? Or should I make the best of my marriage and refuse to see the other man?

SALLY.

The Thing to Do.

DEAR SALLY: Basically sound and normal persons can become so starved for mental and physical companionship that they lose all sense of perspective and, as a result, commit offenses against social and moral codes which they might never commit if more adequately nourished. Such may be the explanation of your actions. If it should be that yours can never be a marriage in the realest sense, and if you have heroically tried and failed to achieve either mental or social comradeship with your husband to compensate for all that has been denied on the physical side, then I am convinced it would be a tragic mistake to continue in the partnership.

* * * *

But are you sure you have exhausted every other possibility of remedying the situation? Has your husband, or have you, a first-class diagnostician's statement to the effect that his condition is irremedial? If not, both of you have completely overlooked an approach to the problem which might have resulted in its happy solution long ago. Organic, functional and psychic obstructions to physical consummation of marriage, which may exist in one partner or the other, can and often do yield to modern scientific methods of treatment. If your husband is so devoted to you that divorce would hurt him greatly, (as you seem to believe), it must be that he loves you. And surely, if he loves you, he would be willing to follow any course of action which would bring about a happier and better-substantiated relationship.

Tomorrow's Problem.

Apparently angered by girl's inability to keep social engagement, young man who she describes as "a perfect gentleman" later gives her the cut direct. Despondent, she asks what to think and do. Her problem will be considered in Sunday's column.

* * * *

Before considering divorce as the final and only solution of this intolerable dilemma, I suggest you discuss your despair with your husband. Tell him you and he must know the scientific truth of how much or how little you can expect of this marriage. Tell him the situation has progressed, for you, beyond the limits of sane and decent endurance. Tell him you are starved for physical consolation, for mental companionship and social comradeship—for all that marriage presumably provides. Tell him you are willing to fight to the last ditch to make a go of the marriage; but that if there is nothing either of you can do about it you must ask for freedom in which to work out your own salvation.

* * * *

Since your goal is a rightful share of happiness, and since such a talk would be in essence a dedication of yourself to one last attempt to find it with him, it might be more harmful than helpful to confess your infidelity. If the marriage can be saved by and through a physician's assistance it would be infinitely better to let such bygones go absolutely unmentioned. To know of them might fill your husband with such despair that he would not have the heart to co-operate toward a better state of things; he might feel it was too late. On the other hand, of course, such a confession might indicate to him just how urgent is the need for constructive action, but I think he could profit by such bitter truth only if he is an unusually understanding and generous person, fully aware of how sorely he has failed you. On this matter a physician could give you wise and confidential counsel after he had heard both sides of the story.

* * * *

If your husband should refuse to accompany you to a physician's office after hearing your urgent appeal, divorce is the only course left open. Discontinue your intimate association with the other man at once. Half-crazed as you now are, you have no standard for judging whether or not he is in the least compatible; or whether he represents anything of genuine happiness or eventual good for you. He may be no more than a case of "any port in a storm," and as you half-suspect, he may be taking advantage of your unfortunate state to exploit you for his own selfish pleasure. Tell him you cannot see him again until you know definitely what future course you propose to follow. If, eventually, divorce seems the only solution, keep him at a distance until you are wholly free.

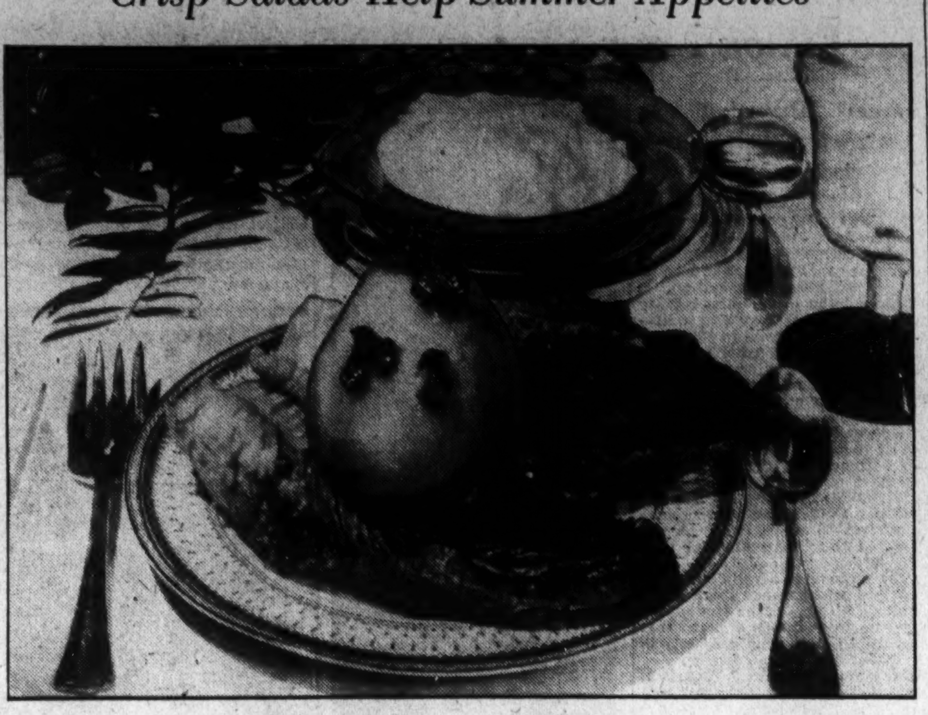
Crisp Salads Help Summer Appetites



It is not wise to eat quantities of heavy food in the summer, neither are these foods appealing. If appetites are jaded by hot weather, plan crisp salads for the main courses of your meals as well as secondary courses. For a dessert-salad this coronation salad combines canned pears and cottage cheese on a nest of Romaine and is trimmed with red Bar-le-duc.

Salads Are Ideal Substitutes For Hot Dishes During Summer

By Rebekah Blake.

SUMMER is the season for salads. They may be small or large, light or substantial, but there always is a crispness about them that is refreshing and appetizing.

A salad may be the main course with the rest of the meal planned around it, it may be a secondary course served to complement the main course, it may take the place of one vegetable, or it may be a combination dessert and salad. Its uses tare many and so are its varieties so don't stick to a few pets throughout summer. Surprise your family with new dishes to taste as well as see.

Meat, fish and vegetable salads rank highest in main course dishes. When hot weather takes away appetites, these substantial and piquant foods replace hot roasts and baked and boiled vegetables and furnish sustenance for heat sufferers.

Sometimes the main-course salad contains a starchy ingredient such as potato or macaroni. It is usually dressed with both French dressing and mayonnaise. It may be served for luncheon, dinner, late supper or picnics.

Should Not Be Large.

The secondary salad, served with or after the meat course or at the beginning of the meat as sort of appetizer, should not be too large or too hearty, and certainly not too sweet, for it has only secondary place in the meal, and should stimulate rather than dull the appetite. French dressing, mayonnaise or any other dressing is appropriate for this course. Fruits and leafy green vegetables and other raw vegetables are used in this.

The dessert-salad combination, two courses in one, makes a popular ending to an informal luncheon or dinner and is a favorite for in-between-meal refreshments. It is a dressy type of salad usually made of fruits—alone or with cream cheese and nuts. It is usually served with whipped cream, mayonnaise or some special dressing.

The fact that salads are easily and quickly made, and so many of them may be prepared in advance is another reason for their popularity. Fresh fruit and vegetable salads are best when prepared just before serving, but molded salads may be prepared in the morning if they are to be in the dinner menu, and many meat salads may be mixed several hours in advance.

Chicken and Vegetable Salad.

First mix 2 cups diced cooked chicken with 1 cup cooked peas, 1 cup cooked snapbeans, cut in 1-inch lengths, ½ cup diced cooked carrots, 1 tablespoon grated onion and 1 cup French dressing. Chill at least 1 hour, drain off excess dressing (if any) and add 2 tablespoons chopped parsley. Edge a chop plate or platter with crisp lettuce and turn salad into center. Sprinkle with 1 tablespoon capers and garnish with 4 hard-cooked eggs, sliced or quartered, 4 slices tomato, 4 large stuffed olives, 4 pickles. Serve with chutney mayonnaise.

Coronation Salad.

6 fresh or canned pears
½ cup cottage cheese
Red bar-le-duc
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
Romaine

Peel raw pears and sprinkle with lemon juice to keep from discoloring. Hollow out bottom portion so it will retain its shape. Stuff with cottage cheese and mayonnaise mixture. Slightly scoop out the center and top and fill with 1 or 2 teaspoons of red bar-le-duc. Arrange on salad plates and serve with mayonnaise.

Broiling Aids Flavor Of Less Costly Meat

Some people have the idea that only expensive cuts of meat can be broiled. The truth is that many inexpensive foods acquire sudden distinction and sophistication from the broiling pan. For example, the round, rump and chuck of well-aged, quality grade beef, cuts well known for their full-flavored succulence, are surprisingly good when broiled.

Fish, too, steps up in the world when the quick heat of broiling gives it a lovely golden brown without drying it out. And you have to broil liver, brushed with melted butter or margerine, to know how good it is—or sausages, bacon, or hamburgers.

Wallis Carried Over Threshold Of Her Castle

Edward Doesn't Stumble; Crowds Hail 'the King' at Milan, Venice.

husky young gendarmes came on the scene shortly before their arrival and began a patrol of all roads near the castle.

In their ride from Arnoldstein the couple passed through two hamlets whose inhabitants stayed up three hours beyond their usual bedtime to wave to the speeding car.

The arrival at Noetsch, a mile from the castle, was quieter than it might have been. A group of villagers had planned a serenade, but officials, sensitive to the wishes of the Duke, promptly quashed the idea.

The arrival of the honeymooners shared public attention with the latest sensation of the Noetsch countryside, a lf scare. Two days ago 32 unemployed men were taken on by the local government to hunt for a wolf that has been harrassing the neighborhood for months, including the estate.

Great crowds gathered at stations along the route from France to Austria to cheer the duke and duchess. They appeared at a window to acknowledge the acclaim for the first time when the train halted at Milan. The Italian press sent 100 Riviera carnations to the car.

Duke in Shirt Sleeves.

They walked through lines of Premier Mussolini's Blackshirts and received the Fascist salute at Venice. Then they rode down the Grand Canal before resuming their trip to Wasserleonburg and the "fairy" castle, where they will spend the next few months in the solitude for which they asked yesterday after their marriage at Monts, to work out their own happiness as private citizens.

Married but a day, the duke quickly assumed the comforts of a domesticated husband by sitting about the house in shirt sleeves. It was a blue and white striped shirt, noted through the window as the Windsor train pulled into the Venice station.

Duke Writes Wires.

Between Milan and Venice, the duke sat at a table and wrote replies to some of the congratulatory telegrams and letters.

Signing himself alternately David or Edward, he dispatched these telegrams:

"The King, Sofia, Bulgaria: We thank you both sincerely for your good wishes. David."

"Italian Ambassador, London: We thank you sincerely for your good wishes. Edward."

"Perier, Surete, Paris: Our sincere appreciation to you and all concerned for arrangements during our stay in France and for our wedding. Edward."

The duke printed the telegrams in broad firm pencil strokes, despite the rocking express. He used paper of heavy block linen, bearing the duke's crest, the unicorn rampant over two towers, at the upper left corner, with the motto "Fide Virtute et Labor."

The couple then sat down to lunch in their flower-decorated room in the center of their private car, while others of their staff ate in the dining car.

The Windsors enjoyed hors d'oeuvres, veal cutlets, peas, potatoes, pastry, cheese, fruit and coffee.

For the most part during the journey, Edward and his duchess spent their time alone, talking and reading with pleased smiles the messages of congratulations.

The heat became oppressive during the afternoon, but neither the duke nor duchess seemed to mind.

Wears Straw Hat.

At Venice, the duke marched briskly from his car, carrying a straw hat in his hand and wearing a light gray suit, blue shirt and tie with red and green stripes and dotted with white.

The duchess wore a belted dark blue and white printed traveling dress with white straw hat. Two gleaming brooches were fastened about her neck.

The first honeymoon appearance at Milan was after numerous cries from the crowd: "The king."

Shouts and clapping at first were ignored, but as they persisted, Windsor's hand fumbled with the corner of a curtain. Then he yanked up two blinds at the center of the car, and the couple waved acknowledgment of the cheers.

"Oh, aren't they nice," remarked Wallis.

"Very charming," agreed Edward. He pulled the shades again as the train left for Venice.

Wisconsin Bids for Duke.

Madison, Wis., June 4 (AP).—The Wisconsin Legislature adopted a resolution today congratulating the Duke and Duchess of Windsor on their marriage and inviting them to come to this State.

The resolution said the Duke of Windsor had boldly and fearlessly asserted his individual rights, demonstrated his democratic ideals and relinquished his throne.

The agreement, which was signed by officials of the Fisher plant, cleaners and dyers, provides for a 5-day week, complete recognition, increases in wages of from 25 to 50 per cent for the 60 employes and time and one-half for holidays and overtime.

Ex-Sen. France Asks Divorce At Elkton From Russian Wife

Charges Desertion by Emigre Spouse He Married in 1927.

By the Associated Press.

Elkton, Md., June 4.—Dr. Joseph I. France, former United States Senator and a candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination in 1932, asked the circuit court today to dissolve hins marriage to a Russian emigre he married in 1927.

Dr. France charged his wife, the former Tatiana Dechterava, hed deserted him in September, 1931. His petition to the court, filed through Attorney Joshua Clayton, stated the couple was "beyond any reasonable hope of reconciliation."

DR. JOSEPH I. FRANCE.

Mrs. France was the daughter of a member of the Russian court of appeals under the Czar. During the revolution she fled the country with her mother. She met Dr. France in Paris and they were married in a civil ceremony on July 7, 1927. Twelve days later a religious ceremony was performed in the Russian Orthdox Church. Later the couple came to this country, but Mrs. France did not appear in society to any extent due to poor health.

Mrs. France became a citizen of the United States by naturalization in 1929. Her citizenship papers said she was born in Moscow in 1905, two years after Dr. France's first marriage.

Dr. France, a native of Misosuri, studied at Cornell, Leipzig, and the University of Maryland. He was a teacher at Tome Institute at Port Deposit when he married the widow of its founder, Jacob Tome. She died on April 22, 1927, and he inherited from her $300,000 and the residue of her estate.

Dr. France told the court that his wife had returned to France after leaving the home he provided for her. He asked the court to set a date for trial of the suit and to order his wife to be present. He petitioned for an absolute divorce.

Electricity Used To Patch Torn Retina of Eye

Delicate Technique Explained to Ophthalmologists Meeting Here.

The technique of a delicate operation to correct retinal detachment in the human eye was explained to convening ophthalmologists yesterday by Dr. Daniel B. Kirby, of New York.

A common cause of blindness, the condition occurs when the retina, which lines the interior of the eyeball and upon which the image is cast, becomes separated from the adjoining choroid tissue. Generally the cause is a tiny rent in the retina, permitting the escape of vitreous fluid which acts as a wedge between retina and choroid.

The recently developed operation, which is based largely upon the pioneering efforts of Aruga and Lacarre, Spaniards, employs high frequency current to produce an inflammation whose resultant scar tissue serves, in effect, as a patch on the retina.

Dr. Benjamin Rones, of Washington, described retinal arteriosclerosis, or hardening of the blood vessels in the eye, as the six-day postgraduate course which is being held at George Washington University Medical School neared the end. He showed that this particular defect is often an indicator of a general condition in the patient.

Yesterday afternoon the specialists toured the Bureau of Standards to view demonstrations in lens making, spectrum analysis, colorimetry, polarimetry and better lighting.

The course will close today with papers by Drs. S. Hanford McKee, of Montreal; William Thornwall Davis, of Washington and Harry S. Gradle, of Chicago.

Means to Silence Locust Pest Sought By X-Ray Movies

Rochester, N. Y., June 4 (AP).—Plans to take soft X-ray movies of the mechanism of the locust's sex call, the siren scream which is the loudest noise in the insect world, were announced today.

When some of these cicada appear next month, Harold F. Sherwood will use the new method of soft X-ray photography to take the first pictures of these insect drums in action.

It is expected to get details of this screaming apparatus. The noise is made with aid of the insect's hollow abdomen, which he beats somewhat like a gorilla beating its chest.

The cicada's "drum" is one of the most complicated in nature. Its sounding board is a tympanum set on the abdomen. The beating is done by a vibrating muscle.

If entomologists could see the interior of this mechanism in action they might think up some sort of spray which when eaten by the insects would at least muffle their drums.

Bob Burns Says:

I remember back when I was a boy, people use'ta talk about the trains bein' slow in Arkansas. If you really want a slow train, just go to New York and ride on commuter trains.

My Uncle Hod came to visit me in New York, and I took him on one of those commuter trains. The train wouldn't no more than get under way than it would stop again to let some people off at another settlement.

Uncle Hod started to fume and fret about the train bein' so slow and not gettin' any place, when one of the commuters sittin' behind leaned over and tapped him on the shoulder and says, "What are you kickin' about, brother? I've been ridin' this train, day in and day out, for the past six years." Uncle Hod looked at him and says, "Where in the world did you get on? You must'ta got on way back there!"

Surprise March

Now comes into the light again the five A. F. G. E. lodges that were given the boot from the national convention last September. At least quiet—if not contented—in their ousted condition for many weeks now, seemingly satisfied and full of hope as the Inter-Union Council, the five on Thursday made a surprise march to the embattled headquarters of the A. F. of L. and asked the A. F. of L. executive council to investigate the reasons why the executive council of the A. F. G. E. had ousted them.

They left there a stout paper, titled "Protest and Appeal." Then they declared themselves quits with the A. F. G. E. But they asked for an investigation of their once much-talked-of case and said: "We stand ready to establish the truth of the charges made above at any time we may be called upon."

The "Protest and Appeal" is aimed at the executive council of the A. F. G. E. as straight as on a bull's-eye. The wording is not all sweetness. The seven points have many barbs. They relate the experiences of the five unions in their relationship with the A. F. G. E.

Paragraphs point out how the five lodges applied for admission "in good faith, with the belief that they would be accorded full rights and privileges in the organization." All five lodges paid full per capita taxes and fulfilled all other conditions, it was stated.

Then the protest alleges that the executive council, A. F. G. E., illegally deprived them of representation at the 1936 national convention, and then expelled them "on unsubstantiated" charges of radicalism. It is further charged that their application for reaffirmation was afterward denied "without even the formality of a hearing."

William Green, of the A. F. of L., was constrained to intervene, "but to no avail." These actions, the document points out, "are apparently motivated by a determination to stifle all opposition to their policies and to prevent even the expression of minority views."

A spokesman said: "We are watching with great interest the developments within the A. F. G. E., where the antagonism to the national officers is apparently growing very rapidly. This antagonism is crystallizing around the question of resistance to the Congressional economy drive.

Meanwhile, the Inter-Union Council has forwarded to all A. F. G. E. lodges throughout the United States a notice of its "protest and appeal."

Resolutions

War Department Federal Employes Union, No. 261, N. F. F. E., at a meeting this week, took favorable action on a number of convention resolutions, including one intended to relieve conditions among War Department employes transferred to foreign service. This would provide transportation for their families and effects and the payment of a differential to offset the increased cost of living at foreign posts.

The union elected delegates and alternates to the N. F. F. E. convention—to be held in Springfield, Ill., in September, as follows: Delegates, Miss G. E. Coyle, Finance Office; William S. Kinney, Quartermaster Corps; B. R. Kleinwachter, Signal Corps, and Charles Bonneville, Insular Affairs. Alternates: Walter E. Marlow and J. S. M. Zimmermann, Soldiers' Home, and Miss Pearle Cooper and W. E. Hoffheins, Finance Office.

James B. Williams, special collaborator of the National Parks Service, will lecture on "The People's Parks" at a meeting of the National Association of Retired Federal Employes to be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon in room 43, Natural History Building, National Museum. The lecture will be illustrated by motion pictures. John M. Kline is president of the organization.

Fire Chiefs Tour City, Attend Dinner

The second day of the convention of the Eastern Association of Fire Chiefs closed last night with a banquet and dance at the Mayflower Hotel. Earlier in the day the chiefs visited the Bureau of Standards and made a tour of the city.

The morning session consisted of discussions of the responsibility of fire and police departments in certain accidents, the regulation of inflammable oils and the fire department's part in child safety in schools.

This morning directors will be elected. The president, Chief Ross B. Davis, of Philadelphia, and Edward H. Warr, chief of the salvage corps of Baltimore, will speak.

The convention will end with a trip to Alexandria, where the delegates will visit Gadsby Tavern.

7-Cent Fares, One-Man Cars To Be Argued

Randolph Sub-Committee to Study Finances of Transit Company.

On the heels of an application by the Capital Transit Co. to raise its token fare to 8¾ cents, the House District Committee yesterday prepared for hearings on a bill to limit the fare to 7 cents.

Chairman Mary T. Norton appointed Representative Randolph (Democrat), West Virginia, head of a sub-committee to hold hearings on two Dirksen bills and to delve into the financial set-up of the transit company.

The other measure proposes abolition of one-man operation of both street cars and buses.

Other members of the sub-committee are Representatives Arnold (Democrat), Illinois, and Dirksen (Republican), Illinois, the latter of whom is the author of the bills.

Randolph said he hoped to start hearings the latter part of next week.

Dirksen issued a statement renewing his demand for a general investigation of the operations of the Capital Transit Co.

"The amended petition of the Capital Transit Co. for an even larger token fare than that for which it petitioned last summer," he said, "is added reason why Congress should scan the operations of the company as soon as time permits."

Anglers and Those Who Say They Are Hold Shad Bake

It is hard to conceive of anything fishier than a shad bake attended by the Izaak Walton League, the Hook, Line and Sinker Club and members of the Bureau of Fisheries. The event actually transpired last night at Fort Belvoir, Va., with the Izaak Walton League as host.

About 150 had come and gone before the long evening was over. Visitors included C. E. Sykes, chairman of the Oklahoma State Game and Fish Commission, and Swepson Earle, former commissioner of conservation of Maryland.

Also present were Commissioner Frank T. Bell, head of the Bureau of Fisheries; Fred G. Orsinger, director of the bureau's aquarium, and Dr. M. D'Arcy Magee, president and international vice president of the Izaak Walton League.

Entertainment and the awarding of prizes followed the dinner, which consisted of the season's last catch of shad.

Nazi Propaganda Flood Predicted

A new flood of Nazi propaganda may be expected to sweep over the country as a result of the recent installation of Hans Dieckhoff as German Ambassador, Representative Byron Scott (Democrat), of California, last night warned the Capital Forum.

In describing various other fragments of "the world struggle between reactionaryism and progressivism," Scott touched on the now deceased "red rider."

He traced its rise and fall, and declared it "will not be the last attack on freedom of speech or on the schools," for with the "red rider's" repeal, "we must not erroneously assume that the controlling element in the House has become liberal."

In conclusion he told "middle class America to beware of Liberty League propaganda."

A.I.A. Fights Plans to Alter U. S. Capitol

Action Blow to Connally Bill; Washingtonians Lead Debate.

With two Washington architects and a former chief of the PWA housing division leading the debate, the American Institute of Architects, convening in Boston, yesterday adopted a resolution opposing proposed alteration of the Capitol.

The institute's action was a blow to the Connally bill, passed by the Senate and awaiting a House vote, which provides for extension of the east front of the Capitol at a cost of $4,000,000.

The resolution was a compromise submitted by Robert D. Kohn, former PWA housing director, after Francis P. Sullivan and Dr. Leicester D. Holland, both Washingtonians, had clashed over the wording of a previous resolution opposing the alteration because of the "historic and esthetic loss."

Sullivan, who is chairman of the A. I. A. public works and National Capital committees, supports the remodeling plan, while Dr. Holland, chief of the Library of Congress fine arts division, is strongly opposed.

Kohn's compromise eliminated reasons for the opposition, according to the Associated Press, taking a stand against "any material alterations of the central portion of the Capitol, either in form or materials."

Mrs. Lucy Purdon's Death Accidental

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald yesterday issued a certificate of death from natural causes in the death of Mrs. Lucy E. Purdon, 43, wife of a retired Army captain, who was found dead in a bathtub in her Connecticut avenue apartment Thursday. Before rendering his verdict, Dr. MacDonald performed an autopsy.

Her husband, Ruben Purdon, president of the National Homes Exposition, Inc., of New York City, who discovered the body, had last seen his wife two days before and described her as in the best of spirits.

A chronic heart condition was given as the direct cause of death. Funeral services will be held in Fort Myer chapel this morning at 10 o'clock, with burial in Arlington Cemetery.

6,000 Depositors Neglect to Collect Dividend Payment

Some 6,000 depositors of the Federal-American National Bank & Trust Co. have failed to call for dividend checks representing a 15 per cent distribution. The checks have been ready since April 5. They constitute about one-fourth of the total number and total approximately $200,000.

Claimants may call for the checks at the office of the receivers, 1336 New York avenue northwest.

Rabbi Simon Backs Boys Club's Drive

Emphasizing the educational value of the Metropolitan Boys Club, and declaring it "helps build better citizens," Rabbi Abram Simon, at the report luncheon held yesterday in the Willard, indorsed the present campaign for $75,000.

John A. Remon, chairman of the board of the club, urged the campaign workers to greater activity. Clifford L. Johnson, campaign director, reported "good results" from the descriptive circulars which have been distributed.

Of the total goal, $75,000, almost one-third, $20,558, has already been subscribed.

Phone Operators Hear C.I.O. Attack

About 75 telephone operators, attending the first open meeting of their newly formed union, last night heard W. A. Calvin, former boilermaker and now secretary-treasurer of the American Federation of Labor's metal trades department, attack the Committee for Industrial Organization.

He declared that the industrial method of organization was "spawned in the cradle of company unionism" and that the C. I. O. was "reeking with communism."

Julia Parker, national president of the Telephone Operators Union, stressed the need for organization. Albert N. Dennis, news editor of the Trades Unionist, outlined the history of unionism. Mrs. Billie Freeman presided.

A.F.G.E. Bans Seven 'Rebel' Organizations

Units Suspended Because of Fight on Federal Economy.

2,000 Federal Workers Severed From A. F. L. Affiliations.

President Charles I. Stengle, of the American Federation of Government Employes, yesterday suspended the seven "rebel" lodges that have bucked him on the issue of how strongly the organization should fight Congressional economy measures.

This means that some 2,000 Government workers are separated from the American Federation of Labor, with which the A. F. G. E. is affiliated.

The cleavage between the lodges and the national office came several weeks ago when the national office was pressed by the lodges to make a vigorous and out-in-the-open fight against Byrnes and Cannon economy amendments. The lodges proposed a "monster" mass meeting to arouse public opinion against economy which they claimed would "curtail essential Government services."

Protest Meeting Set.

In a boisterous meeting, the District of Columbia Department of the A. F. G. E., by a wide margin sided with the national office and disclaimed the activities of the seven lodges. Meanwhile, the recalcitrant groups have called the protest meeting for the night of June 10.

In suspending the lodges—Resettlement, 206; Labor, 12; Agriculture, 31; General Accounting Office, 8; Interstate Commerce, 58; WPA, 139, and Beltsville, 125—President Stengle stated:

"By direction of the National Executive Council, I have today suspended Lodges 8, 12, 31 58, 125, 139 and 206. The National Executive Council has appointed a committee, headed by James A. Camubell, of Cincinnati, with instructions to thoroughly investigate and make such recommendations as it deems advisable to the entire council concerning certain charges made against these lodges by me."

Violated Order.

The principal charge is that the lodges, acting "through certain of their duly elected officers or delegates," violated a cease and desist order against the holding of public mass meetings "and other demonstrations against alleged Congressional action on economy."

He cited also "publication in the press of criticisms of the Congress and of the national office in violation of article 13, sections 3 and 4 of the A. F. G. E. national constitution."

"At the time I issued the cease and desist order I ontified these lodges that I would complain to the National Executive Council about their actions and offered to send to the Executive Council along with my complaints any statement of justification which they cared to make." Stengle stated. He said that no statement has been forthcoming.

He said he tried to persuade the lodges not to violate the constitution. "But they were so insistent in having their own way that they issued to me an ultimatum that they would carry out their plan regardless of any action I might take."

The special committee named to investigate the charges is composed of Vice President Campbell, Vice President oJhn B. Murray, of Boston; Vice President John Daniels, of Philadelphia; National Treasurer Cecil E. Custer, of Washington; Vice President Ira Y. Bain, Vice President G. Carrol Diamond, and Vice President Michael D. Schaefer, of Washington.

The committee will meet next Saturday at 10 a. m. in room 209 of the Hamilton Hotel. Thereafter it will give report and recommendations to the council itself and through the council to the convention to be held in Philadelphia beginning September 13.

All Not in Accord.

Stengle did not believe that all the members of the lodges were in accord with the break from the national headquarters. "For that reason, those members who give assurance and proof of their loyalty to the A. F. G. E. and willingness to co-operate in its works will receive favorable consideration from me with a recommendation that this suspension in their case shall be lifted." Because of the emergency situation, the council has suspended the entire lodge "to let the public know it has no part in a proposed mass meeting against so-called false economy."

Simultaneously with this statement from Stengle—the first he has issued since the seven lodges banded in a "Committee Against False Economy"—the lodges announced that William Green, of the A. F. of L., has been invited to address the mass meeting in the Willard Hotel. Senator Pat McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, and Representative R. G. Allen (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, have accepted invitations to speak.

Ninety-eight per cent of WPA Lodge has expressed indorsement of the break. Loans and Currency is said to have voted approval of the Committee Against False Economy.

DOROTHY SISLEN.

Girl, 14, Is Youngest of 486 To Graduate at Central High

Dorothy Sislen Is Rated One of Best Students in Her Class; to Enter G. W. U. Next Fall; May Become Doctor.

But 14 years old, and rated one of the best students in her class, Dorothy Sislen, of 4129 Ninth street northwest, will be the youngest of 486 graduates from Central High School at graduation exercises on June 23. She is one of the youngest graduates of all time from Central.

Dorothy entered Central two years ago, after finishing Macfarland Junior High School in the allotted time. But she skipped several grades while at Petworth grammar school, and went four years ahead of others who started with her. She skipped the first, second, fifth and one other grade—Dorothy can't remember which one, it was so long ago.

Next fall she will enter George Washington University for the regular four-year academic course. There is a possibility, however, that she may change to the premedical course, with the intention of becoming a doctor.

At Central most of her grades have been A's and B's, though a few, Dorothy hastens to add, have been lower. During her two years in high school she has been a member of the Latin Club, the Library Guild, the Bonsecour organization, and was recently elected a member of the National Honor Society.

Mathematics is the subject she likes best—and also the one in which she gets her best marks. Dorothy's father operates a grocery store on Rock Creek Church road.

Alumni Dance Tonight Honors G. W.'s Seniors

Association Will Convene Before Reception at the Mayflower.

George Washington University seniors will attend the first of their commencement events tonight. They will be guests of honor at a reception and dance given by the General Alumni Association at the Mayflower Hotel.

Preceding the reception, the association will hold its annual meeting, convening at 8 p. m., at the hotel. Charles S. Baker, retiring alumni president, who has just been elected to the board of trustees of the university, will preside.

President Cloyd H. Marvin will be present at the alumni meeting and will tell something of the plans for new buildings and other university developments.

The Law Association also will hold its annual meeting tonight, meeting at 7:30 p. m. at the Mayflower with E. Hilton Jackson presiding. Law alumni will join in the general meeting following their own session.

Tomorrow night baccalaureate services will be held at the Washington Cathedral. Other events on the commencement program are the reception in honor of the graduates and their parents to be given by President and Mrs. Marvin Monday afternoon at the Washington Club; the initiation banquet of the Order of the Coif, legal honor society, Monday night at the Cosmos Club; an interfraternity sing Monday night in the university yard, and class night exercises Tuesday night in the yard.

The university will confer honorary degrees upon three women who have made distinguished contributions to education at its 116th commencement Wednesday at 8 p. m. in Constitution Hall.

Mrs. Henry Alvah Strong, of Washington and Rochester, N. Y., philanthropist and benefactor of education, will receive the degree of doctor of laws.

The degree of doctor of laws also will be conferred upon Dr. Helen Taft Manning, dean of Bryn Mawr College.

Dean Elizabeth Peet, of Gallaudet College, will receive the degree of doctor of pedagogy.

A series of citywide merchandise robberies from liquor stores within the past several months was believed ended yesterday when police arrested a 31-year-old colored suspect.

According to members of the robbery squad of detective headquarters who made the arrest, numerous stolen cases of liquor were found in the cellar of the suspect's Southwest home. He was charged with housebreaking.

Navy Opens Bids For Sub Motors

Bids on propelling machinery for four Navy submarines were opened yesterday at the Navy Department in the presence of Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of Naval Operations; Rear Admiral H. G. Bowen, chief of the Bureau of Engineering, and Rear Admiral G. J. Rowcliff, judge advocate general of the Navy.

Three sets of bids were offered, estimates ranging from $1,229,578 to $1,422,253 per unit. Awards will be announced shortly.

Yesterday's openings indicated that the Navy's difficulties in securing mechanical equipment have been overcome. During the winter, wage and hour provisions of the Walsh-Healey act delayed the Navy's construction program.

Testimonial Dinner Given Frederic Neely

A testimonial dinner to Frederic R. Neely, former chief of the Information Section of the Bureau of Air Commerce, was given at the Harrington Hotel last night with about 30 local aviators and Department of Commerce administrators present.

Only speakers were Joseph S. Edgerton and Mr. Neely, who spoke briefly. Neely resigned from the Bureau of Air Commerce three weeks ago to enter private aviation in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Senate to Act On D.C. Taxes Next Week

Committee May Restore Many Items Cut by House.

Omnibus Revenue Bill Given to Kennedy By Seal.

An omnibous bill containing all the District tax bills approved by the Kennedy sub-committee, together with other legislation requested by the Commissioners, was submitted to Chairman Kennedy yesterday by Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal.

Meanwhile, the Senate sub-committee on District appropriations prepared to mark up the 1938 District supply bill today so that it may be reported to the Senate early next week.

While Senator Thomas, the chairman, declined to forecast the sub-committee's action, it was believed most of the budget items cut by the House will be restored by the Senate group.

Indications also are that the departmental transfers proposed by the House sub-committee will be stricken out in the Senate bill.

More Taxes Needed.

Restoration of appropriations to the Budget Bureau estimates will increase the amount of the District deficit for the next fiscal year and necessitate the raising of more taxes than projected by the Kennedy sub-committee unless the supply bill total is curtailed in conference.

Senator Thomas and other members of the sub-committee met yesterday with the Commissioners in a final roundup on budgetary problems.

Among the matters discussed, it is understood, was the necessity for additional funds to set up an administrative and collection agency to handle the new taxes.

The District heads also emphasized the need for authority to obtain monetary advances from the Federal Treasury until collections parallel expenditures.

Supply Bill Rider.

Although this authority is contained in the revenue omnibus bill before the House District Committee, the Senate sub-committee may decide to attach a rider on the supply bill to assure its enactment before the beginning of the new fiscal year.

Despite the requests of social welfare organizations, it is not believed the Senate sub-committee will increase the appropriation for unemployment relief, although it probably will eliminate a House provision limiting administrative expenses to 10 per cent of the total expenditures.

The District supply bill as it passed the House carried $45,228,000. Should budget estimates be restored, the total would be raised to nearly $46,500,000.

Father Saves Son In Path of Truck; Goes to Hospital

The life of William H. Larson, jr., 2, 709 Jackson street northeast, was saved by his father, William, sr., yesterday by quick thinking as they were crossing the intersection at Seventh and Jackson streets northeast.

Waiting for traffic to clear before attempting to cross the street, both were caught in the path of a moving truck operated by Ruben Crutchfield, colored, 34, 109 Fifteenth street northeast. Quickly the father pushed his son several feet to safety as he was being knocked to the street.

Taken to Sibley Hospital he was treated for laceration of the scalp and possible fracture of the skull. The son escaped with slight bruises and shock.

Crutchfield was charged at the Twelfth Precinct Station with reckless driving.

Heads Democratic Club.

Peter J. Connolly, an attorney in the Postoffice Department, last night was elected president of the New York State Democratic Club of Washington at the Willard Hotel. His opponent was Col. Edward Stacom, of the Veterans' Administration.

Is Mr. Ford Frick's Face Red Over Dizzy Dean Affair?

By Paul Mickelson.

New York, June 4.—After some 40 years, Ford Christopher Frick has learned not to play with matches.

DIZZY DEAN

The "matches" in his case is Dizzy Dean, who left the National League president with a red face and singed hands at the termination of today's hippodrome which lifted the St. Louis Cardinal pitching star off the suspension list.

Sports writers, who have grown up with the distinct impression that no one man is bigger than the game of baseball, have their doubts about it now. Almost to a man, they agreed that the National League through Frick's representation was thoroughly licked by a ball player.

* * * *

Dizzy was given five separate statements, one of them pledging his allegiance to baseball, to sign. He didn't sign one of them. In fact, he all but threw them into Frick's face along with a screaming series of very uncomplimentary remarks. At the finish, before Manager Frank Frisch marched him out of the office, he stood before Frick and yelled:

"See I didn't sign nuthin'. I'll never sign nuthin' and I'm gonna take this case to Judge Landis, to the highest court in the land, and I'm gonna win!"

Westbrook Pegler's column on Page 7 deals with the Frick-Dean controversy.

* * * *

Frick just sat there. Like the newspapermen, who usually delight in a big show, he was worn to a frazzle and just about ready to sign anything, himself.

* * * *

But for the newspapermen, the dispute would still be raging. They suggested the statement, and Frick snatched like a drowning man reaching for a log. Even then, Dean roared defiance, but Frick declared the armistice.

* * * *

What the consequences will be in the Dean case is impossible to foresee. Diz is a good-hearted fellow and he certainly knows how to pitch, but he can't stop popping off. He came into baseball popping and he'll keep right on popping till his ticker stops ticking and orders are placed for his wreaths.

* * * *

"He just doesn't know the meaning of silence," remarked Frisch. "Sometimes I wonder how I keep from giving the bunt sign with the bases loaded and two out. I'll probably do that this afternoon."

* * * *

Diz's main trouble is that he likes a commotion. He'll join a discussion on any controversial subject and adds conversation that is almost too good to keep out of the public prints. If you suggest that so and so, no matter if he be a big-league official or player, is a big, no good bum, Ole Diz will agree with you and get quite eloquent on the subject.

* * * *

Most of those in attendance yesterday and today were of the opinion that Frick erred in his procedure. Frick, himself, later said it would have been better if he had called Dean into his office, explained his stand privately, and then asked him to sign a statement.

* * * *

Instead, he wired Dean, asking him if he said the balk rule was aimed at him and if he said those uncomplimentary remarks about Umpire George Barr and Frick in his Belleville Church speech. Then he suspended him without a personal hearing.

* * * *

"I guess I did err in that procedure," said Frick, "but I had to straighten this out. I don't give a rap for Ford Frick, but I do for the integrity of the National League, for baseball and for what they represent."

* * * *

For a time during the noisy proceedings, many baseball writers believed there was something more behind Dean's suspension than revealed. Some guessed Owner Sam Breadon, of the Cardinals, wanted his pitcher chastised, but all those thoughts evaporated today when Frick showed such eagerness to get out from under. Breadon, who'd like to sell Dean, also seemed relieved.

* * * *

Anyway, the price on Dean's autographs took a jump and Branch Rickey, vice president of the Cardinals, won new appreciation. It is Rickey who convinces Diz each spring to sign his contract. Diz tells Rickey he "won't sign nuthin'" every year but does.

Ranger Is Victor In 'Cup' Trials

Aboard Coast Guard Cutter Argo, off Newport, R. I., June 4 (AP).—Ranger, Harold S. Vanderbilt's new potential America's Cup defender, today beat Rainbow by 2 minutes in the third trial race to select a yacht to meet T. O. M. Sopwith's British challenger.

Rainbow, which Vanderbilt sailed to a victory in 1934 to defend the cup successfully against Sopwith's Endeavour I, was beaten yesterday by Yankee, Gerard Lambert's entry.

Ranger led Rainbow at the outer mark today by 2 minutes. The latter gained slightly in the final leg, which was a reach instead of a run with the wind shifting to the west, but was unable to pass Vanderbilt's new sloo-

By Lewis F. Atchison.

"Slingin' Sam" Baugh, 180 pounds of All-American football player from Texas Christian University, last night definitely cast his lot with the "Slingin' Sam Baugh, 180-pounds Washington Redskins for a professional gridiron career.

A telegram from Owner George Marshall, now in Texas, ended a lengthy period of doubt as to Baugh's plans for the future. The pair discussed salary at a meeting here last winter, but the terms agreed on were not disclosed. Baugh at that time was also considering a coaching berth or a possible baseball career.

Marshall, an astute business man, is believed to have offered him an option of $350 per game, or a flat salary of $6,000 for the season. At the firm's local office it was said that Baugh would be one of the league's highest paid performers.

Asknowledged as the game's greatest forward passer, an All-American for two years—last year a unanimous choice, and a colorful player Baugh will be a valuable asset to the Washington club both at the box office and on the playing field. His name was a household byword during the past football season, and his name almost revered among aspiring young football players.

During his three years of varsity play at T. C. U., Baugh acquired his reputation as the game's most accurate passer by an almost uncanny ability to throw the ball. During the three years he played in the "Horned Frogs" backfield he tossed 599 passes and completed 274 for total gains of 3,479 yards. His passes accounted for 39 touchdowns in all.

Although out of the line-up for a time because of injuries last season, it was one of his best years. He finished the season and his collegiate career in brilliant style against Marquette in the Sugar Bowl game, completing 5 of 13 passes for 110 yards and a touchdown.

aBugh's home is in Sweetwater, Tex. He is 6 feet 2 inches tall, weighs 180 pounds and has a nice personality. He should go places in the pro game.

Illinois Leads Qualifiers in Central Meet

By the Associated Press.

Milwaukee, June 4.—Don Lash, Indiana brilliant distance ace, raced to a new meet record of 4 minutes 13.4 seconds tonight to score another triumph over his sturdy Wisconsin rival, Charles Fenske, in the one mile run, opening final event of the twelfth annual Central Intercollegiate Conference track field championships in Marquette stadium.

Milwaukee, June 4 (AP).—Displaying power in the sprint races and hurdles, Illinois today led the qualifiers for tonight's finals in the twelfth annual Central intercollegiate track and field championship meet.

Headed by Stubby Bob Grieve, who turned in the fastest times of 9.8 seconds for the 100-yard dash and 21.8 seconds for the 220-yard event, the Illini captured 10 places and stirred up enough of a threat to assure Indiana's favored defending champions of a battle. Bob Ashley joined Grieve in the finals of both dash events.

Jack Robinson qualified in both hurdles, finishing the 120 highs in 14.8 seconds, fastest time of the day, and winning his heat of the lows in handy style. Dick Brunton also arranged for a place in the high hurdles, and one in the broad jump, and Dean Frary rounded out the Illinois threat by qualifying in the shot put and discus.

Indiana gained five places for fourth place back of Notre Dame and Iowa, which had six each. Bob Collier gave the Hoosiers places in both dashes, Mel Trutt and Sam Miller, in the half-mile, and Malcolm Hicks, in the 440-yard runs.

Mungo's Son Ill.

New York, June 4.—Van Lingle Mungo, star Brooklyn pitcher, has been called to his home at Pageland, S. C., because of the serious illness of his 7-month-old son, who underwent an operation for double mastoid about two weeks ago. Van Mungo left for Pageland last night.

Leading Marksmen of East Gather Here for Skeet Tourney Today

War Admiral Is Favorite At Belmont

$50,000 Stakes Lure Big Field; Pompoon Is Rated Second.

Entries, Weights, Jockeys and Probable Odds for the Belmont appear on Page 18.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 4.—War Admiral and Pompoon bring their rivalry for the 3-year-old turf crown down to Belmont Park tomorrow for the sixty-ninth running of the $50,000 Belmont Stakes, a mile and a half test of speed and stamina.

Five other colts, three of which trailed the pair in either the Kentucky Derby or Preakness, also have been named for the final event of the American turf's "triple crown." It is the presence, however, of Samuel Riddle's War Admiral and J. H. Louchheim's Pompoon, furnishing the outstanding "natural" of the year, that is expected to draw a crowd of 40,000 and break all recent records for attendance at the beautiful Long Island track.

The Admiral himself also has been burning up the Belmont oval in morning spins, three times covering the full route in less than 2.35. As the result the bookmakers installed him the 4-to-5 favorite today with the prospects the odds would be still shorter when the field parades at about 3:30 p. m. (Eastern standard time).

The Riddle ace already has shown he has the speed and he should not be lacking in the stamina for he tossed back all challenges in the Derby and Preakness, run at shorter distances. He was sired by Man o' War, winner of the stake in 1920 and holder of the track record of 2:28 4-5 for the distance.

Supporters of Pompoon, headed by his trainer, C. F. (Danny) Clarke, are confident the Louchheim ace, a son of Pompey, will turn the tables this time. Still the bookmakers consider him no better than a 7-to-2 choice.

John Hay Whitney's Flying Scot, third in the Preakness and winner of the Withers Mile, holds the third spot in the pre-race betting at 6 to 1, with Brooklyn, the fourth choice, at 8 to 1. The Bradley colt, a son of Blue Larkspur, which won in 1929, failed to train for his Derby engagement but since then has shown remarkable improvement in trials.

Maxwell Howard's Sceneshifter, fifth in the Derby, the Wheatley Stable's Melodist, fourth at Churchill Downs, and the Falaise Stable's Vamoose complete the field. All are outsiders with Sceneshifter, trained by Earle Sande, who rode five Belmont winners, held at 10 to 1, Melodist at 20-1 and Vamoose at 30-1.

Douglas B. Nichols and his son, Douglas, jr., of the Loanataka Skeet Club, Morristown, N. J. Junior at a recent skeet tourney had shot three poor rounds and was promised $10 by his exhorting father if he shot a perfect 25 in the final. Papa paid, for junior fractured 25 in a row and walked away with the ten.

Cooper and Smith Lead Field In $4,600 Inverness Tourney

By the Associated Press.

Toledo, Ohio, June 4.—"Lighthorse" Harry Cooper, No. 1 choice to win the National Open at Birmingham, Mich., next week, and Horton Smith shot their way into the lead in the $4,600 Inverness four-ball matches today with a pair of par-shattering performances.

The two stars carded a 61, 10 under par, this morning to defeat Denny Shute, P. G. A. champion, and Lawson Little, former grand slam British and American Amateur titleholder, 6 up. Then they came back this afternoon with a 66 to hand Sammy Snead and Ralph Guldhal a 1-down defeat.

The standings, at the end of three of the scheduled seven matches, in which each pair of the 16 top-notch stars meet each other twosome:

Smith and Cooper, plus 5; Guldahl and Snead, plus 3; Tommy Armour and Jimmy Thomson, plus 2; Henry Picard and Johnny Revolta, plus 1; Olin Dutra and Gene Sarazen, even; Shute and Little minus 3; Paul Runyan and Ky Laffoon, minus 3; Ray Mangrum and Jimmy Hines, minus 5.

Under the Inverness scoring system, a team is given a plus or minus rating on each match, depending on how many "up" or "down" it is at the end of the 18 holes.

The stars took the course apart again today, turning in 95 birdies and an eagle in the two 18-hole rounds. They crashed through for 46 birdies in yesterday's single session.

Jimmy Thomson, the siege gun driver from Shawnee-on-Delaware, was the day's hot shot. In the morning round he clicked four birdies and an eagle into the cup, and this afternoon he counted eight sub-par holes.

Today's results, with the best ball scores on the par 71 layout:

Morning round—Snead-Guldahl (63) defeated Mangrum-Hines (68), 5 up. Thomson-Armour (64) defeated Runyan-Laffoon (67), 3 up. Smith-Cooper (61) defeated Shute-Little (67), 6 up. Picard-Revolta (63) defeated Dutra-Sarazen (65), 2 up.

Afternoon round—Shute-Little (65) defeated Mangrum-Hines (67), 2 up. Armour-Thomson (62) defeated Picard-Revolta (64), 2 up. Runyan-Laffoon (67) defeated Dutra-Sarazen (68), 1 up. Smith-Cooper (66) defeated Guldahl-Snead (67), 1 up.

Tomorrow's opening round pits Smith and Cooper against the Picard-Revolta team winners of the first Inverness meet two years ago; Runyan-Laffoon against Mangrum-Hines, Shute-Little against Dutra-Sarazen, Armour-Thomson against Guldahl-Snead.

That slate places all the "plus" pairs against each other, and the "minus" teams line up the same way, insuring plenty of action.

The afternoon card has Armour-Thomson vs. Smith-Cooper, Dutra-Sarazen vs. Mangrum-Hines, Runyan-Laffoon vs. Shute-Little, Picard-Revolta vs. Guldahl-Snead.

Mrs. Schluderberg Golf Play Winner

Baltimore, June 4 (AP).—Mrs. Theodore E. Schluderberg shot an 18-hole 89 today to capture the gross laurels in class A of the Maryland State Golf Association's championship competition at the Hillendale Country Club.

It was Mrs. Schluderberg's second triumph within a fortnight. She won the Rodgers Forge Invitation Match Play Tournament last week. Mrs. E. Boyd Morrow, of Elkridge Club, was runner up today with a 91.

Mrs. A. F. Pierce had the highest net score. She shot a 97 but her handicap of 15 gave her an 82. Second net went to Mrs. W. H. Evans with 93-11—82, and third to Mrs. C. E. Hanson, 97-14—83.

Schmeling Consents to Fight Braddock-Louis Bout Winner

Shirley Povich's "This Morning" column on Page 17 deals with the Schmeling-Braddock situation.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 4.—A new factor entered into the slightly scrambled heavyweight situation late today when Promoter Mike Jacobs, of the Twentieth Century S. C., announced that Max Schmeling had agreed to meet the winner of the heavyweight championship bout between James J. Braddock and Challenger Joe Louis, in Chicago on June 22.

Jacobs, in stating that the German former champion had consented to such a bout "if it can be arranged," added that he would seek to promote it, probably in September, with one of the New York ball parks as the likely site.

Schmeling, who earlier in the day had announced his sudden decision to sail for home aboard the Hamburg at midnight tomorrow, may sign a contract to meet the Braddock-Louis winner before he leaves, Jacobs added.

The Teuton Schlager, who will be accompanied on his return trip to Germany by Trainer Max Machon, made a surprise move when he announced his intention of going home. Previously he had stated that he would remain here until he had regained redress for the mental and financial grief he suffered when Braddock failed to appear for their scheduled bout at the Madison Square Garden Bowl last night.

Lucky 7th Produces 7 Runs and Victory

Bridges Allows Only Six Hits After Getting Off to Wobbly Start; Greenberg, Kuhel Hit Home Runs; Travis' Error Is Costly.

By Shirley Povich.

A Staff Correspondent.

Detroit, June 4.—The Tigers toyed with the Nats for six innings today and then went native in a wild seventh, savagely mauling Pete Appleton and Ed Linke for seven runs, which, added to what the Tigers already had, brought about a 10-3 drubbing for Washington.

All of a sudden the Tigers began to get obstreperous in that seventh. Washington was firmly in the ball game at the time, trailing 3-2, and eager to return to the attack, but the Tigers were up there at bat for a half hour in that seventh.

It probably seemed interminable to Appleton and Linke, who were being assaulted for six hits during the session, but Appleton's plight was pleasant compared to Linke's.

Because on the first pitch that Linke aimed at the plate Charley Gehringer slammed a two-bagger against the leftfield wall that sent two Tigers scurring across the plate. And on the second pitch that Linke threw up there (after intentionally walking Hank Greenberg to fill the bases) three more Tigers scored, because Gerald Walker whaled that pitch for a two-bagger to centerfield.

Whatever the run-scoring par might have been for two pitches, the Tigers at least equaled it when they scored those five runs off Linke on his two heaves.

Nats Get Six Bingles.

But the Nats were asking for a licking today. They were making only six hits off spare-ribbed Tommy Bridges all afternoon and only Bridges' wildness and Joe Kuhel's fifth-inning home run were keeping them in the ball game.

Among other things, Bridges struck out Al Simmons the first three times that worthy came to bat and on his last appearance he couldn't get the ball out of the infield

Hank Greenberg, who personally ruined the Nats in the opening game of the series the other day with his long-distance clouting, put the Tigers ahead, 1-0, in the second with a four-bagger into the upper deck in right center.

But Kuhel's well-socked homer into the rightfield seats tied it up in the fifth and then Bridges walked four hitters, three of 'em in a row, to force Shanty Hogan with a run that put the Nats ahead, 2-1. Johnny Stone left three Nats on base when he sent a line drive to Pete Fox in centerfield.

Kuhel Hits Homer.

After that the Nats made only two hits—Buddy Lewis' triple against the rightfield wall that evolved as a run in the eighth, and Joe Kuhel's infield hit in the ninth.

The Tigers didn't linger long in the ruck. They tied matters at 2-2 in their half of the fifth inning after Goslin and Owen singled, and in the sixth three consecutive singles by Gehringer, Greenberg and Walker put 'em in front, 3-2.

Those were the figures when the Tigers came to bat in the seventh Pete Appleton got Owen out on a fly to Stone, but he never did get anybody else out—except himself. George Tebbetts beat out a hit to Buddy Lewis, Tommy Bridges singled to center, Pete Fox was safe when Travis muffed his grounder and the Tigers had the bases full.

The first run of the inning trickled across the plate when Rogell hit a single off Appleton's glove, and Appleton was taken out of the box. That's where Ed Linke came in.

And that's when Charley Gehringer doubled on the first pitch, to score two more Tigers. Greenberg didn't get a hit because Linke purposely passed him to fill the bases, but Walker got a hit. It happened on the first ball Linke threw up there to him and it was a line-drive two-bagger to left that emptied the bases of all but Walker.

That made it six runs for the inning and a bit later the Tigers made it seven when Tebbetts blasted a single to center.

That boosted the score to 10-3 and the Tigers must have been satisfied with making it round figures because they didn't score any more.

After the game the Nats entrained for Cleveland for what they hope will not be a three-game scalping party.

Just a Habit!

Mike Jacobs Is Winner in Schmeling Mess.

By Shirley Povich.

Detroit, Mich., June 4.—There seems to be no great resentment in the United States over the fact that Champion Jimmy Braddock gave Max Schmeling the run-around and chose to risk his title against Joe Louis. But over in Germany folks appear to be very much exercised.

POVICH.

At least, it would seem so from today's news dispatches which relate that Adolf Hitler's official newspaper, the unpronounceable Voelkischer Beobachter, is denouncing the affair as "an organized fraud of Schmeling's rights."

It probably is all of that, as the Nazis maintain, because Mr. Hitler should certainly recognize an organized fraud when he sees one. I personally would say that as an authority on organized frauds, Mr. Hitler has no superior.

* * * *

But it is easy to forgive American fans for their deafness to Schmeling's own private squawks about the deal he got from Braddock, because Max is simply getting a taste of his own tactics when he owned the title and the deal he gave Jack Sharkey is still rather vivid in the memory of our fight-goers.

* * * *

Off that performance, Schmeling is a fine guy to go around shouting that he was cheated of a title chance, because it was not so many years ago that he, in Braddock's position, gave the No. 1 challenger the same kind of a royal run-around that he is now getting from Braddock.

That was after his fight with Jack Sharkey in which Schmeling won the title while in an undignified sitting posture on the canvas at Yankee Stadium. You remember that he claimed a foul in the third round and was sustained in the claim and became the first champion in history to inherit the title while off his feet.

* * * *

A great portion of the public regarded Schmeling as a cheese champ after that affair. But Max took his title very seriously—so seriously in fact that he refused to meet Sharkey in a return bout, and when the New York Boxing Commission ordered him to defend his crown against Sharkey before he risked it against anybody else, Schmeling laughed in their faces and galloped over to Cleveland to cash in on a title bout with the late Willie Stribling.

So it would seem that Schmeling, in his squawking against Bradock's present tactics, is not coming into the case with clean hands.

* * * *

The big winner in the heavyweight title mess appears to be Michael Strauss Jacobs, who has maneuvered everything nicely into his own promotional hands. Jacobs, who last summer held only the promotional rights to Joe Louis, now finds himself as the promoter of the next two title battles to the utter exclusion of Madison Square Garden.

* * * *

His price for allowing Schmeling to fight Louis last summer was a half interest in the title fight between the winner and Braddock, which was to be promoted by the Garden. But when Braddock, who was under contract to the Garden, balked at fighting Schmeling, Promoter Jacobs got a swell break.

* * * *

In Joe Louis, Jacobs has only a well-punched meal ticket. Louis' drawing power suffered sadly when Schmeling beat him and Jacobs apparently had lost his grip on the heavyweight situation, what with the Garden having both Braddock and Schmeling under contract.

* * * *

And then the Garden got a cruel break; New York's anti-Nazi element set up a terrific howl against a Schmeling-Braddock bout, threatened to boycott it, and played directly into Jacobs' hands. Braddock, fearing lean gate receipts in what probably would be his last big-shot battle, pulled out of the bout and offered to fight Joe Louis for Jacobs. Jacobs made the match and left the Garden and Schmeling to squawk, for all the good it would do them.

* * * *

Jacobs is now firmly in the saddle, having the contract rights to both Braddock and Louis. And today comes the report that Schmeling—accepting half a loaf—has agreed to fight the winner of that bout for the title, which means he will be fighting not for the Garden, but for Jacob's who has quite frozen the Garden out of the heavyweight promotorial picture.

Reds Defeat Phils, 9 to 8; Yanks Bow

Macks and Browns Split Double Bill, Browns Triumph in 1st, 7-6.

By the United Press.

New York, June 4.—The Boston Bees scored their second straight victory over the National League leading Pittsburgh Pirates, 9-1, today behind the five hit pitching of Jim Turner.

A six-run attack off Bill Swift in the second inning paved the way for the Bee triumph. After Swift was yanked, Boston batsmen reached Hoyt and Bauers for three more tallies. The Bees reached the Pirate hurling trio for 11 hits including a home run by Wally Berger, his third in two days.

The loss cut the Pirates' lead to two games over the New York Giants, who stopped the Cubs' winning streak by taking the second game of a doubleheader, 4-2. The Cubs had made it eight victories in a row by winning the opener, 6-5. Billy Herman's fourth hit of the day, a single in the eleventh, gave the Cubs their triumph tally in the first encounter, after they had run Carl Hubbell to cover in the eigth. His rescuer, Cliff Melton, allowed Chicago to score another run in the ninth, tying the score, and was reached for the final tally in the eleventh to be charged with the loss. Bryant, who followed Davis and French to the mound, was the winner.

Slick Castleman bested Bill Lee in the nightcap, permitting only six hits and holding the Cubs scoreless until the ninth when Augie Galan hit a home run with a mate aboard.

Cards Beat Dodgers.

The fourth-place St. Louis Cardinals, swamped the Brooklyn Dodgers under a deluge of 18 hits to win, 14-4. Bob Weiland held the Flatbushers to 6 hits. Hamlin held the Cards to 4 runs until the seventh when he was driven to the showers with a 5-run barrage.

The Cincinnati Reds put down a ninth inning uprising to score their second straight victory over the Philadelphia Phillies, 9-8. It was strictly a slugging match with the Phils outhitting the Reds, 15-13, but not bunching them as effectively. Riggs and Kampouris homered for Cincinnati and Arnovich and Camilli for the Phils.

The New York Yankees had their American League lead cut to two games when they suffered their second straight loss to the Cleveland Indians, 5-3. Sammy (Bad News) Hale singled in the eighth inning with the bases loaded, driving in two runs for the Tribe triumph.

Beau Bell Homers.

Beau Bell's home run in the ninth, forcing the game into extra innings, allowed the St. Louis Browns to nose out the Philadelphia Athletics, 7-6, in the first game of a double-header. The winning run was picked up in the tenth, when Manager Rogers Hornsby got his third hit of the day, a single to deep short, was sacrificed by Knickerbocker to second, and singled home by Huffman.

The A's came back in the nightcap to score a run in the tenth and win 4-3. Jack Knott, who dueled all the way with Harry Kelley, threw his own game by walking three straight men, forcing in Rothrock, who had doubled, with the winning run.

Boston at Chicago was rained out.

Barney Welsh Meets Mitchell In City Tennis Finals Today

By John R. Vosburgh

All decks were cleared yesterday for renewal of the city's blue-ribbon tennis feud today—the final round fight between Barney Welsh and Dooley Mitchell for the city championship at the Edgemoor Club.

Welsh brushed aside Tony Latona, playground instructor, 6-1, 6-4, yesterday but Mitchell found considerable trouble before he could solve the chop-strokes of slick-haired Frank Shore and win, 6-1, 13-11. Today's match, at 3 p. m., will mark the fourth match between the Rockville Rambler and Mitchell.

Of their past matches, Mitchell has won one—a tournment final at Morgantown, W. Va. about six years ago. Three years ago, Barney outlasted Dooley in five sets for the city Public Parks crown and last year won in four sets in the District tourney final.

Also in Doubles Final.

Barney and Dooley will also collide in the doubles final, tomorrow at 3 p. m. Holder of the singles title, Welsh will pair with Latona to defend his doubles diadem against the new combination of Mitchell and Lieut. Bill Howard.

Welsh is favored to emerge with his unbeaten local tournament record still unscathed after five years.

He lost the first two games of the second set and then raced through the next five to lead, 5-2, before dropping two more, thereupon quickly drawing the match to a close.

Mitchell, on the other hand, came a scant inch from losing the second set of his match with Shore. The latter, who had arrived half an hour late for the match, moved to a 5-4 lead in the second chapter as his chop strokes and drop shots broke up Dooley's aggressive driving game.

Lob Just Outside.

Frank went from 40-15 on Dooley's service to advantage point but missed taking the set when a high lob, designed to shake Mitchell from the net, fell an eyelash from the base-line. Dooley took the next point on an error by Frank and took the game when Shore chopped into the net, trying a drop-shot.

Shore was two points from the set at 8-7 and 30-all, only to loose a back-hand into the barrier. His drop shots took him to 10-9 and 11-10. At the latter count, Frank struggled to a 40-30 lead for his second set point try but ended a hot rally with a back-hand cross-court shot which landed in the alley. Dooley, with sparkling smashes, went on to take this and the next two games.

A pair of crisp volley placements by Dooley gave him a 12-11 lead as he broke Frank's service and he finished off the final game with a series of smashes which had Shore lobbing desperately in a futile attempt to drive his foe back to less dangerous territory. The last point was one of those desperate back-hand stabs which landed in Dooley's forehand alley.

Justa Gal Wins.

Agawam, Mass., June 4 (AP).—Justa Gal, dark bay filly, sired by Flying Ebony, today took the feature race at Agawam Park, the Worcester.

Charles Town Feature Won By Tody West

Ancient Mare Outclasses Field in Fish Day Race Program.

By Walter Haight.

A Staff Correspondent.

Charles Town, W. Va., June 4.—Tody West, an old mare which operated in rather select company before her legs went bad, had her second taste of competition in two years today and outclassed a field of seven others in the Doddridge Purse, feature race of the fish-day program here in the mountains.

Asking only guidance from Jockey Leon Garrett, the Westwick mare lifted them up and put them down in a manner that found her four lengths in front of the heavily played Easter Herald at the end of the route of slightly more than 6 furlongs. Fredalva managed to gather in third money a head away from Easter Herald.

The race was run over a good track in 1:18 4-5, creditable time under the conditions. Tody West rewarded her scattered backing with a $25.20 mutuel. A crowd of some 4,000 witnessed the seven-race program.

Easter Herald was the cut-up of the party at the post. When Starter Palmer was satisfied with the alignment, Tody West fairly bounded to the front, shook off Goantell and came over on the rail to save ground. Jockey Machado, on Easter Herald, went to work on his mount and pounded all the way to the wire, but Tody West just had more on the ball than her rival. Garrett was just easing her along approaching the wire.

Crushed Ice, running in the colors of Claude Feltner, survived to take a nose decision over Margaret Jones in the five-furlong sprint that opened the program. Jockey L. Machado almost tossed away the decision when he began to ease up with a long lead in midstretch. Margaret Jones closed with a rush and would have won in another jump. White Sweets was third. The winner was clocked in 1:03 2-5 and paid a $6.20 mutuel.

Stand By, an 11-year-old, which ran third here yesterday, came back today to cause an upset in the second race, winning by four lengths and paying a $25.40 mutuel. Ridden by the ancient F. Munoz Stand By defeated, among others, Good Gracious and Landsman.

Mrs. K. N. Gilpin's Frank Brooke made good in the role of favorite in the third race, shaking off an early bid of Scold, to draw out to a good lead in the stretch and last ahead of Frank Brooke's closing bid. The winner paid a $4.40 mutuel.

Jockey Sammy Palumbo, who never fails to find racing room on the inside of horses entering the stretch, came through again with Morun and a victory resulted. While earning a $9.20 mutuel, Morun defeated Halloo and Artic Kay over the "Charles Town" Course.

Palumbo rode his second winner of the day aboard Red Label in the sixth race. The Pete-Wrack mare paid an $11.60 mutuel and downed Precious King by four lengths. The favored Never Idol, poorly handled, was third.

Dress Maker brought Jockey Garrett his second winner in the day's finale. The Mayne filly paid $9.

At The Post
WITH BILL BENNINGS

Selections at Charles Town.

Dear Al:

The $1,000 Shenandoah Handicap features a good program at this track tomorrow. The battle at 7 furlongs brings together the best horses on the grounds with the Belk entry of Wise Sister and Scudder likely to be backed into favortism. Trainer I. Gorham, suspended in 1935, has been restored to good standing here. The horse Flower Time, barred for being doped at the December meeting of last year, has been reinstated. A Benningite wrote me and wants me to advocate a $1 daily double and ends up by suggesting a daily "triple." All I can say is that it is hard enough to get one winner. Clocker Mike will be hungry tonight unless he can bum a half buck. I have no sympathy for a fellow who uses up two weekly meal tickets between Monday and Friday. Jockey L. Machado had won 11 races up to today's fourth race and don't fool yourself into believing that he wont be the leading rider at the meeting, Palumbos or no Palumbos. You might write Stealing Home in your book for future purposes. This Happy Time filly works like the wind and got some needed education today. Beware of the tout here who gives six different horses to six different people and poses as a clocker.

BILL.

First race—Nay Nay, winner of her last, seems well placed again and needs only the right handling. Miss Trycom turned in a nice win in her most recent start and looms as the one to beat. Veritas has some class and may be closer.

Second race—Mint Bud has been rested and seems to have been rewarded with the right spot. An off track would help, but I'm stringing along regardless of conditions. Whiskora showed some improvement last out. Mazyniata's last was poor.

Third race—Fred's Warning, a recent surprise winner, is a bad post actor, but has plenty of speed and may take this. In the mud I would have to shift to Radial. Justa Canter for the show award.

Fourth race—Yardstick will have Palumbo to do the riding tomorrow and I expect sudden improvement. Wise Money has some class and looms as the chief contender. Lady Gurzil is better than generally rated and could surprise.

Fifth race—Miss Adeline seems suited in this field and I'm going to string along. Locomotive turned in a good effort here the other day and is dangerous. Sun Belle for the show end.

Sixth race—The Belk entry of Wise Sister and Scudder carries the top weight of this field, but packs the punch of the party. Timber Lady may find the route a little too long, but is far too fit to be disregarded. The Feltner entry of Emve and Small Change may figure.

Seventh race—Lady Cirek is definitely better than rated before she came here. Needs only to run back to that recent race. Post Brigade is in good form and a threat. Bungalow to take care of the others.

Eighth race—Canimar, if in shape, should have no trouble with a field of this sort. Heaven and Holland are ready for the best and will fight it out if anything is wrong with the top one.

Best bet—Mint Bud.

On the Air Today

Clem McCarthy has been signed to give the blow-by-blow description of the Braddock-Louis fisticuffs from Chicago the night of June 22, via the N. B. C. combined networks. It is held in some quarters quite a victory for a man trained in newspaper reporting to be called over those who have come up with microphone experience only.

Personally, McCarthy is a great hoss race announcer and that's all. But the auto manufacturer who has employed his talents before, at the prize ring, certainly knows what America at large feels about McCarthy—and apparently the mass radio audience says he's okay.

This is the third major bout that McCarthy will have handled. They say he has a split-second eye—that he can sit in the judges' stand and pick the first through fourth horses in a blanket finish and be as correct as the camera's eye. And that, it seems, is the reason he is reliable at the prize ring. He calls the hooks and jabs and crosses with reportorial accuracy as well as speed.

At least this can be said for McCarthy's description of a fast round of fighting: he gives the best possible blow-by-blow description without muddling up the works with a lot of blah a la the fellow with the microphone who is just having-a-peachy-time-and-wish-you-were-here.

No one has been named as yet to support McCarthy between rounds.

Business Pace Slackens After Spring Spurt

Recession Is Expected to Last Well Into Summer.

New York, June 4.—In its weekly summary of the general business situation the Standard Statistics Co. says today:

"Industrial activity is beginning to taper off, and there are signs that the recession will be extended well into the summer. It is now believed that the spring peak in production, which was reached in March and early April and reflected in part heavy advance buying because of labor troubles and price increases, will mark the highest level for 1937.

"Despite the collapse of the speculative boom several months ago, the actual volume of industrial operations is not far from the recovery highs, because heavy shipments are still being made against orders placed earlier in the year. However, new orders in such industries as cotton, textiles, and steel have declined steadily for a number of weeks, and the extent of the prospective summer letdown will depend to an important degree upon how soon new buying will be started after present order backlogs have been worked off.

"As the situation shapes up at present, business activity for the third quarter, even after making allowance for seasonal influences, will be less favorable than in the second quarter, but based on the current operating outlook for all major industries, aggregate production should hold well above a year earlier.

"There is no question that business sentiment in certain parts of the country is less favorable than actual operating statistics would ordinarily warrant. Whether present conservatism will be justified by later developments is impossible to determine at the moment, but it is clear that many business men have adopted a sober view toward the immediate outlook. It is the intangible rather than the tangible factors that are arousing the most concern."

Record Gold Sales On London Market

London, June 4 (AP).—An all-time record of £4,200,000 in gold (about $21,000,000) came on the market today mostly, it was believed, from hoarders nervous about a possible lowering of the gold price. The price fell four pence (about 8 cents) an ounce to 140 shillings and 5 pence (approximately $34.57.

Most of the offerings were believed to have been taken by the exchange equalization fund. The operations raised to £15,283,000 (about $76,415,000) the aggregate volume handled in the bullion market since May 24.

New York, June 4 (AP).—Many more millions of dollars in gold, returning to monetary channels from hiding places abroad, were reported today en route to this country to swell Uncle Sam's history-making hoard, now about $12,000,000,000.

Record offerings of gold in the London market were accepted in banking circles here as pointing to further heavy engagements for shipment to New York. Already this week nearly $40,000,000 has been reported taken for transfer to the United States, mostly in London.

Curb Irregular In Light Trading

New York, June 4 (AP).—With the exception of a selected group of industrial specialties, the curb market developed little in the way of a definite trend today. Niles-Bemont-Pond and Pepperell staged sharp gains, the former running up 4 points to 52 and the latter jumping to 126¾, a gain of 6¾ points.

In general movements were confined from fractions to a point either way. Aluminum Co. showed a gain of a point, closing at 146½, Newmont Mining rose a point and a fraction and United Gas, Technicolor, United Light and Power "A" registered fractional betterment. The utility was mostly on the up side.

Among losers were Venezuela Petroleum, Sherwin Williams, Sunshine Mining and Celluloid to the extent of fractions to a point. Oils showed indications of sagging. Volume totaled 156,000 shares against 171,000 on Thursday.

Excess of Rain And Wind Lift Wheat Prices

Fields in United States and Canada Are Damaged.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 4.—Influenced a good deal by late reports of heavy rains and winds unfavorably affecting domestic crops in five States, wheat late today advanced 1⅜ cents. Numerous fields of wheat in Ohio, Indiana, Missouri and Central Kansas and Oklahoma were asserted to be tangled and down as a result of unwanted moisture and of winds. Advices were also received that entire lack of subsoil moisture reserve in approximately one-third of Canadian wheat territory has caused the poorest crop start in many years, and that in southern Saskatchewan and eastern Alberta conditions are alarming.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were around the day's top price level, ¾ to 1½ cents above yesterday's finish, July, 1.10⅞@1.11; September, 1.10⅛@1.10⅜; December, 1.12⅛@1.12¼. Corn, ¼ off to ⅝ up; July, 1.22¾@1.22⅞; September, 1.08½@1.08⅝; December, 78¾; oats varying from ⅜ decline to ⅛ advance and rye at 1¾ setback to ¼ cent gain, July, 92¼. Provisions results were 2 cents to 15 cents lower.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively,
A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Improve Moderately, With Steel Leading in Rising Activity; Bonds Hold Firm.

New York, June 4.—Bonds were quiet and firm, commodities hardened and stocks enjoyed their first recovery, modest though it was, in several days. In addition the trading volume in stocks rose a little on the late rally. September wheat closed 1⅜ cents higher at 110⅜ cents a bushel.

An excess of bearishness, partially induced by the slack volume of trading, brought in part its own remedy, and prices improved in several sectors. Gold issues recovered on reassurances over the gold price. Even the utilities, and indirectly the rails, were not as hard pressed as might have been supposed on the Administration's scheme for wholesale Government competition. Perhaps the reason for that is the lack of restraint which is calculated to increase opposition of a Congress already ready, as most persons believe, to show a little independence of the Executive and defeat the plan for packing the Supreme Court, regulating its vacation periods, and the like.

Opening prices for stocks were mixed, with only small changes. Here and there a stock moved as much as a point. Local tractions were weak from the start. Bonds of the companies also declined. The SEC report on sales incidentally disclosed that BMT in April had sold 21,400 shares of Brooklyn & Queens Transit, and that in turn some large holdings of its own stock had been sold. Third Avenue Railway reported uncompleted plans for taking care of a July 1 bond maturity.

Steel Crosses Par.

Steel common coasted along until early afternoon, when buyers appeared and the price once more crossed par with a point or two to spare. Improvement in that stock heartened other shares. Youngstown, Inland and Bethlehem hardened. Metals moved up 1 to 2 points. General Electric was especially strong. Farm implements and mail orders rose with the spread of the feeling that the farm income this summer and autumn is bound to be larger, because of big crops and high prices.

Aside from a repetition of President Roosevelt's charge not to worry too much about gold, little happened calculated to help either business or the markets. The unloading of another huge amount of gold on the London market naturally increased rumors of a cut in the gold price, on the assumption that this country cannot go on indefinitely taking all the metal the world chooses to offer. President Roosevelt was quoted as saying that nothing at all would be done. Since that statement has behind it not only good logic on the economic side, but also is thoroughly in line with what to expect from a political regime which has gone in heavily for inflation, there is more reason for believing it than for doubting it.

Gold Price.

A cut in the gold price certainly would be a deflationary step, would enhance the value of the dollar, would bring down the price of farm products, and possibly of other commodities, and except for a brief interval, would not stop the flow of gold to this country. It might even increase it, on the greater possibility of a still further cut. It seems more likely that we will have an inflationary boom than that we will go into another depression first, as a result of deflationary action on commodity prices.

On other counts the day's remarks of the President were less reassuring. His criticism of the Supreme Court, which probably itself will not question the propriety of fishing trips by the Executive (it might even vote for more frequent and longer ones), scarcely aroused confidence in anyone. Likewise the outline of the vast scheme for Nation-wide ownership and operation of electric power and light properties, under the guise of flood control, was not a confidence producer—especially among those who already are alarmed at the mounting public debt and taxation.

Financial changes of the week as revealed by the Federal Reserve System's statement were connected with the gold imports and the month-end and holiday financing. Currency in circulation jumped sharply, largely because of the combination of holiday week-end and month-end. That brought down excess reserves considerably, the total of which is now $860,000,000, ample to insure easy money conditions for a long time. The gold stock rose $50,000,000 to a new high total of $12,027,000,000.

More Gold Dumping.

More than $21,000,000 in gold was dumped on the London market at the time the price was fixed, a new high record volume at a new low record price which figured at $34.6092 an ounce, giving a profit of 15 cents an ounce. Probably the international stabilization funds got most of the gold at a discount so wide banks were afraid of it. Because much of the metal was Swiss owned, some London observers jumped to the conclusion that the Bank for International Settlements "knew something." The stabilization funds are being blamed for buying gold at a discount from dollar "party" so great as to weaken confidence in gold more and more and demands were heard in the House of Commons for a statement of intentions by the signatories of the three-nation agreement, the United States, England and France. Such a statement seems improbable.

Limiting Gold Production.

One alternative to a cut in the gold price, as some observers see it, is an international agreement to limit production. Naturally almost all the British financial comment soft-pedals mention of limiting production, for South Africa is the world's chief producer. Means to limit output of gold mines would be a difficult process to put into operation, but it could be done and possibly the majority of the mines would rather have that than a cut price. Some authorities believe that control of new production would have much less repercussion generally than would a cut in the price of gold. Actually nothing needs to be done beyond a common-sense balancing of the budget on this side.

Fruit Shipments.

Shipments of citrus fruits from the Atlantic seaboard States would appear to refute the cry of rail management that water and motor carriers are encroaching seriously into the railroads' volume of freight tonnage. In the citrus fruit season extending from September, 1935, through June, 1936, 26,895 carloads of the crop were shipped by rail, 20,758 carloads by steamer and 9,558 carloads by truck. With the end of the 1936-1937 season in sight estimates indicate that of the present crop, 42,243 carloads will be moved by rail, 22,512 by ship and 10,775 carloads by truck. Railroads in that territory registered an important gain in the proportion of freight obtained.

Member Trading 22.42% of Total

The securities commission said yesterday that transactions for their own accounts of members of the New York Stock Exchange in the week ended May 8 totaled 22.42 per cent of all round-lot sales on the exchange. The member trading included 7.04 per cent in transactions initiated on the floor, 5.66 per cent initiated off the floor and 9.72 per cent by specialists. The commission also reported the total volume on the Stock Exchange during the week was 4,453,150 shares, or 7.8 per cent more than reported on the ticker.

London, June 4.—Stocks steadied today after an unsettled forenoon session. Prices generally were small fractions lower at the close. Sharp losses in gold shares were partly recovered as dealers absorbed offerings more readily. Industrials, transatlantics, and gilt-edged issues were quiet. German bonds had a firm tone.

Paris—Prices changes were mixed on the bourse today. Industrial issues closed firm while government bonds continued easy. Bank of France was unchanged. Suez Canal advanced 75 points.

Liverpool—Wheat futures rallied sharply near the end of today's market as traders covered actively, presumably to correct an oversold position. The close was steady, unchanged to ⅛d lower. Cotton ended quiet, 1 to 4 points lower under hedging against foreign cotton and scattered liquidation. There was nervousness over widening gold parities. Some spot house covering in nearby positions appeared on the decline.

Realty Bonds Decline 2.5% From Last Year

Washington One of Four Cities to Show Gain for Five Months.

New York, June 4.—A decline of 2½ per cent for 250 Eastern real estate bond issues during the first five months of 1937 is recorded by the Eli T. Watson & Co. real estate bond index. The severest decline affected hotel issues, which declined from an average bid of 42.5 on January 2, 1937, to 38.4 on June 1, 1937, a decline of 9.6 per cent. Apartment hotels, apartment houses and office buildings also registered declines of from 2.5 per cent to 2.7 per cent, while theater issues were the only type to show an increase, rising from an average bid of 7.3 on January 2, 1937, to 74.2 on June 1, 1937, a percentage gain of 1.2 per cent.

Of the cities in which the underlying properties are located, Boston, for the five-month period, showed a gain of 7.6 per cent. Other gains ranging from .9 per cent to 1.9 per cent were registered by Pittsburgh, Washington and Westchester County. The other five cities covered by the Index showed losses for the five months' period ranging from 3.6 per cent for Brooklyn to 6.9 per cent for Philadelphia. The 123 New York City issues included in the Index showed a decline of 4.5 per cent.

The average bid of 46.5 for the entire 250 issues as of June 1, 1937, is approximately equal to the average bid as of December 1, 1936, when the average was 46.3

Fundamental Investors Votes 25-Cent Dividend

Directors of Fundamental Investors, Inc., a mutual investment company, has declared a dividend of 25 cents per share, payable July 1, to stockholders of record June 15. A dividend of 25 cents per share was paid in the first quarter of 1937 and a special year-end distribution of $1.75 per share was made in the last quarter of 1936. Net earnings totaled $245,782.99 for the five months and three days ended June 3.

As of June 3, total assets, at market value, had advanced to more than $11,000,000. 'Mystery Man' Reveals Keene Aloof on Boat to State's Attorney F. Kirk Maddrix, of Somerset County, and that Maddrix then would take appropriate action.

Reminded that a coroner's jury on Smiths Island, where Keene's body was first taken, had issued a verdict of murder, Sergt. Brubaker said:

"That doesn't mean a thing."

Sergt. Brubaker said that Starkey had thrown "great light" on the mystery, but that the case was still open. Efforts would be continued, he said, to find out whence came the automobile jack, the hammer, the tire iron and the other articles that weighted down the briefcase tied around Keene's neck.

Inspector Bernard W. Thompson, chief of detectives, said he expected an early solution.

Two circumstances that have made the case look like one of murder were a blood stain reported to have been found on a hand rail about nine feet from the window of Keene's stateroom, and the knot in the rope tied to the brief case—a knot which fishermen at Crisfield, Md., said must have been tied by a seafaring man.

Not Sure of Stain.

Some of the investigators are not at all sure the smear on the handrail was blood.

Inspector Thompson said last night Sergt. Guy Rone, who has made a study of knots, insisted the one in the Keene case was a simple one, and would not require any particular skill.

Keene's room bore evidence of a struggle when a maid entered it on the morning of May 14. There was blood on the wash basin and blood on the bed. Keene's effects were strewn about, and his glasses—without which he was almost blind—lay shattered on the floor.

The story about the "red-faced man" came from J. M. Eby, proprietor of the news and refreshment stand on the boat. He told how, on the way down the Potomac, Keene, wearing a brown beret, and a "red-faced" man came to his stand, and how the man bought Keene a glass of beer and himself a coco cola.

Starkey Relates Incident.

Starkey related this incident in detail in his statement to police. He told how he first spotted Keene out on the deck.

"I walked up to him," Starkey related, "and said, 'Why, hello Charles, where do you think you are going?' As I recall, his answer was, 'Where are you going yourself?'"

Starkey said he told Keene he was going to Newport News on a Resettlement project, and that Keene then told him he was on his way to Norfolk on a real estate deal—"that a client was interested in a piece of property on the water front between Ocean View and Virginia Beach."

Starkey said he asked Keene to join him at dinner.

"He refused," Starkey related, "saying, 'No, I think I will conserve what cash I have on me.'"

Starkey said he invited Keene to eat as his guest, but that Keene declined, explaining that he ate at home before going to the boat.

After dinner, Starkey said, the two of them got together again in the salon.

"I said, 'Charles, I looked for you when I came up for dinner, but couldn't find you anywhere, so I went out on the front and walked my dinner down, and then did some reading. Where did you get to?'

"To the best of my recollection, he replied, 'I've been in my stateroom talking over my deal.'"

Chatted 15 Minutes.

"I said, 'Well, come on and sit down a while.' This he did. We chatted for probably 15 minutes to a half hour and I said, 'Charles, how about having something to drink?' He at first refused, but when I asked him again a little later he consented and we walked together down to the newsstand. I asked him what he would have to drink, and after some hesitation and after asking the attendant at the newsstand what he had, he decided to take a glass of beer, and I asked for a bottle of coca-cola.

"We requested glasses and took our drinks and sat down on the long seat in the middle of the salon.

Starkey said that later on, as he was about to go to bed, he told Keene that if he didn't see him the next morning he wanted to wish him good luck on the Norfolk real estate deal.

"I don't recall that he made any reply," Starkey said.

Starkey said the next evening he was in Blacksburg, Va., and called his wife on the telephone. Not until then, he said, did he learn about the tragedy. His wife told him, he said, the newspapers had carried a story of Keene's disappearance and described the blood-spattered stateroom from which he had disappeared.

Offers No Theory.

Detective Flaherty here took up the questioning of Starkey.

Q. When you left Washington on the District of Columbia steamboat, did you know that Mr. Keene was also leaving on that boat?

A. No, sir; I had not seen Mr. Keene for probably ten days prior to that time.

Q. During your trip on the boat, did he tell you whom he was supposed to have a business deal with in Norfolk?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you have an automobile with you on this trip?

A. No.

Q. What did you think of Mr. Keene's actions on this night on the boat?

A. There wasn't in his manner the cordiality with which he had usually treated me in the past. He appeared reticent and preoccupied, and at times the conversation was rather one-sided on my part.

Q. What is your theory about how Mr. Keene came to his death?

A. I have no theory at all.

of the 100th anniversary of the birth of Frances E. Willard in 1939.

Mrs. Margaret C. Munns, national treasurer, reported at the afternoon meeting that $423,211 of the sum already has been collected. She said that the campaign will be built around "the radio, the movies, highway signs, newspapers, schools and churches" and that it will look toward the complete prohibition of the use of intoxicating liquors in this country.

Membership Increased.

Declared typical of the literature to be used in the program was the four-reel sound movie shown last night. Under the title of "The Beneficent Reprobate," the movie told the history of alcohol during the last 400 years—stressing its usefulness as much as its danger.

Membership in the W. C. T. U. in the United States has been increased by 26,420 women during the past year. These gains were illustrated at the convention by a large jigsaw map, pieced together State by State as the delegates reported increases.

Mrs. Nelle G. Burger, national recording secretary, presented a review of the temperance work being done throughout the country. A radio transcription called "Americans to the Rescue" has been widely used and more transcriptions are being planned, according to her report. In Missouri alone, she said, 350 large safety posters have been placed along the highways.

The delegates today will turn their attention to the problems of gambling, use of opium and protection of native races.

To Present Reports.

Mrs. Emily Moffat Clow, of Ireland; Mrs. Loretta Howman, of Egypt, and Mrs. Maskew Miller, of South America, superintendents of the three respective departments, will present their reports at the morning session.

Special messages were brought to the convention yesterday from Japan, Esthonia and Egypt, with Mrs. C. Tsune Gauntlett, Mrs. Helmi Maelo and Mrs. M. C. McFeeters as speakers.

Miss Emily McCoy, the delegate from Pitcairn Island, said that inhabitants of that storied place do not "indulge in the liquor habit." The use of intoxicants was prohibited soon after their forefathers landed there and they are interested in its prohibition throughout the world, she said.

Sessions will end Tuesday night with presentation of a pageant, the scene at 4:15 a. m., a few minutes after the accident, and was told by other spectators that the bus swerved suddenly and ran up a bank at the roadside.

Sparks Catch Gasoline.

The big vehicle then toppled back onto the traffic lane and burst into flames, Speck said. Onlookers could see the victims in the burning bus.

Highway Patrol Capt. Foster reported the bus, entering a mountain cut on a slight curve, ran straight ahead instead of following the traffic lane, climbed 22 feet up the embankment and struck several large rocks. One of the four 50-gallon gasoline tanks was found broken open. Foster attributed the fire to sparks from rocks igniting the liberated gasoline.

Coroner Roy S. Duggins ordered the burned bodies returned to Redding.

O. K. Fagan, advertising agent for the line, said suggestions had been advanced that the driver swerved the bus to avoid striking another vehicle, but there had been no reports of any other car on the road nearby at the time.

Fagan said the bus had been checked by mechanics before it left Sacramento at 9 o'clock last night.

California Court Voids Baby Sale

Los Angeles, June 4 (AP).—A mother's plea for return of the baby daughter she "sold" before birth to her sister-in-law was answered today in a superior court decision.

Mrs. Marian Brown Beard, 20, was granted custody of her child, little Nadeen Gloria, who was taken from San Jose, Calif., by Mrs. Evelyn Brown soon after her birth.

Both women told juvenile officials they drew up and signed a contract, stipulating in return for payment of Mrs. Beard's hospital bills of approximately $200, Mrs. Brown was to receive the baby.

Fairfax Twins Located After All-Night Hunt

Girls, 6, Strayed 18 Miles; Left Home to Trade Egg for Candy.

The next time Maxine and Pauline Howke, 6-year-old twins, decide to go visiting they will take their father and mother along, they declared in lisping voices yesterday after a runaway adventure that took them 18 miles from home and left them stranded all night among strangers.

The daughters of Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Howke, tenants on the farm of Miss Lillian Millan, near Legato, Va., the twins left their home Thursday afternoon to go to a store on the Lee highway 1 mile away and barter an egg for candy.

They did not return until yesterday morning, although their father, the neighbors and the Fairfax County police searched for them all night.

Just what happened in the meantime is being pieced together with difficulty, as the girls—one a blonde and one a brunette—do not care to discuss their adventure.

As their mother understands it, they accepted a ride in an automobile with a man and a woman, who—at their request—let them out near Gainesville, which is almost 18 miles from where they started.

Afraid and not knowing the way home, the twins were sobbing by the roadside at dusk, when the son of Mrs. Lizzie Swartz heard them. Mrs. Swartz took them in and endeavored to locate their parents by telephoning all her neighbors up and down the highway.

Not guessing her unexpected visitors were from so far away, she was unsuccessful until she called the store of H. M. F. Colmer yesterday.

The twins were of no aid in efforts to locate their relatives. They would not talk or eat. And they refused to go to bed until they were exhausted from crying, at around 11 o'clock.

Their mother, who Thursday night went to look for them with a switch in her hand, greeted them with hugs and kisses. The twins have repeated over and over that they do not want to go anywhere any more.
